Scramble On -- 7 Potential Candidates Special Oct. Election For Cerasoli Seat

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

A special election will likely be called in October to fill the vacancy created when Rep. Robert Cerasoli was named the state's new inspector general last Friday.

Cerasoli, 43, a Quincy Democrat who represented the Third Norfolk District for 18 years, was unanimously selected inspector general from 109 applicants by Gov. William Weld, Attorney General Scott Harshbarger and Auditor Joseph DeNucci.

He replaces Joseph Barresi, who retired last week after 10 years in office. State law limits the inspector general to two five-year terms. The post pays $58,500 annually.

Based on the number of inquiries regarding Cerasoli's seat since his appointment Friday, City Clerk John Gillis said the special election should generate considerable interest in Quincy and Weymouth. The Third Norfolk District comprises 12 precincts, six in Quincy and six in Weymouth.

In Quincy, the district includes all of Ward 2 (mainly Quincy Point) and Ward 3 Precinct 1 (Quincy Square and Hospital Hill).

In Weymouth, the district includes Precincts 5, 6, 9, 12, 16 and 17, or the area from Weymouth Landing up into South Weymouth.

Cerasoli's resignation has opened the door for a potential blockbuster election. Notable Quincy residents who have been mentioned by political observers include School Committeeman Ron Mariano, former Norfolk County Treasurer Daniel Raymondi, former mayor and city councillor Joseph LaRaia and Bruce Tobin, son of former mayor and Norfolk District Court Magistrate Arthur Tobin.

Tobin is the brother of Representative Steve Tobin who was first elected to the Second Norfolk District seat in 1988. The seat became vacant after former Rep.

Thomas Brownell was named an associate justice in Plymouth District Court.

Raymondi, an attorney, has been considering a run for either Quincy school committee or city council.

Mariano, Raymondi and Cerasoli have been friends and political allies since high school. Although unlikely, it is possible Mariano and Raymondi would both jump in the race.

Cheryl Balzano, daughter of Judith Balzano, who ran against Cerasoli last year on the Republican ticket, also inquired about the seat Monday, said Assistant City Clerk Joseph Shea.

Two familiar names have surfaced in Weymouth as potential candidates: Selectman Jack Carey and Atty. Jack McGlone.

Carey, who recently moved into the district, was defeated by Paul Haley in a state representative race last year. McGlone, a well-known defense lawyer, had been considering running against Cerasoli when he came up for re-election in 1992.

To appear on the ballot, registered voters in the district must obtain and file nomination papers bearing at least 150 signatures of registered voters. Papers will be available in Quincy City Hall and Weymouth Town Hall after the special election is called.

Although the district covers fairly equal parts of both communities, the district has not had a representative from Weymouth since William Connell held the seat in 1964. In fact, over the last 23 years, Quincy has been

Cranch Hill Sewing Club Reunited A Special Tribute To Sybil On Her 65th Birthday

By Eleanor Reidy

A birthday seems a fitting reason to reminisce. So, I am going to reminisce about a very special friend, Sybil Mattson, who celebrated her 65th birthday Monday.

Friends she introduced to one another over 40 years ago had an intimate birthday party on her birth date.

This friendship group started when we were all young. Sybil invited nine neighborhood gals one lovely evening to her tiny, four-room apartment on Whitwell St. and suggested we start a sewing club. Most of the group knew one another. All were Protestants, all were good cooks, all could knit, except me.

I was the Catholic in the group, just an average cook, could not knit and did not know most of the others. It was a fun evening. Sybil was so pretty, so vivacious and so talented. She had made a daffodil cake and in the center had inserted a tiny vase of purple pansies. It was a conversation piece then and we still talk about it.

The Cranch Hill Sewing Club still meets once and sometimes twice a month at Sybil's. Members provide refreshments. We have often discussed the name and wonder why it was called the Cranch Hill Sewing Club but no one can seem to remember.

Sybil and I lived side-by-side on Whitwell St.

Only two members still live on the hill. The young mothers who walked the hill together with their children are now grandmothers who often babysit for grandchildren while their daughters or daughters-in-law work.

The intervening years have been kind to us all except Sybil. It was on a hot day in August of 1955 that Sybil was stricken with polio and her life was changed forever. The day she was diagnosed and taken to Massachusetts General Hospital is still vivid in my mind. I can remember sitting on the front steps with two other club members, arm-in-arm, weeping, it seems for hours, after we heard the terrible news.

Each of us took turns going to the hospital with Sybil's devastated husband, Ralph. The scene of hundreds of rocking beds and iron lungs and the screams of frustrated victims will never fade from memory. To recall the scene is to relive a nightmare. Hopelessness and desperation were pictured from every area of the huge room. Tears flowed not only from the eyes of the afflicted, but also from every visitor who stared helplessly at a loved one, unable to utter even a word of comfort. What could one say?

Through the years, as one sadness followed another, Sybil has maintained a certain tranquility. Her faith, she says, has given her the strength to face each day.

Her faith has been tested. Her endurance has been severely strained. The death of her dear mother who had come to live with her to take care

THE CRANCH HILL Sewing Club is reunited with Sybil Mattson to help celebrate her 65th birthday Monday. Mrs. Mattson was stricken with polio in the epidemic of 1955 and confined to bed most of the time since then. of her two, young children, Debbie and Cliff, was the first blow after her paralysis.

Her devoted husband, Ralph, was stricken with a heart attack and died at work. Her minister spent hours talking with her. Even he had a hard time dealing with her loss.

News of the sudden death of her son-in-law, Mike, at the age of 39, while playing racquetball, raised the question again--"Why?"

No one had the answer. Her daughter, Debbie, was left with four, young, school-age sons to raise.

There are those who cannot believe that Sybil is not bitter. She does not dwell on her losses. She spends her days searching for ways to stretch her budget, going over catalogues looking for ideas for gifts for birthday and Christmas presents.

She has her aides or whoever is with her write birthday, anniversary and "just thinking of you" cards to people in her circle of friends. She is constantly wondering about others. But, she does not worry.

She worries that her state funds will be cut off--that her generator will cease to work if there is a power outage--or that an aide will not show up for duty. But such concerns do not prevent her from being amused when a youngster from the neighborhood comes in and asks her to play or begs for a cookie.

Meetings of the Cranch Hill Sewing Club have now turned into gabfests. There is much laughter as Sybil keeps us up-to-date with the news of her grandchildren. Recently, she told us of how shocked her oldest grandson was when she sang a rock song. He was flabbergasted that she knew the words. Sybil is no lover of rock music but she listens to it occasionally so that she can relate to the young people who come to see her. She listens to the talk shows and keeps abreast with the news of the day. Sybil has not been completely confined to her bed. A portable generator enables her to be taken out in a van. It is a tiring experience but she is grateful that she can see some of the outside world and the changes that have taken place.

She recently visited a club member who lives on the Cape and had a wonderful day. Thanksgiving spent at her daughter's home in Hanover this past year was a real treat.

It is easy for me to write of the positive side of Sybil's life. It is not easy for me to write of her recent diagnosis. Sybil has cancer. She has been taken by ambulance to Beth Israel this past year for several treatments. At the present time it is in remission. Sybil is carrying on as she has always done, she wears a happy face and spreads sunshine over all those within her shadow.

Special October Election For Cerasoli Seat

Before Cerasoli was first elected in 1974, present Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall held the seat for six years from 1968 to 1974.

Back in the 1960s, the district also included Braintree. Between Connell and Marshall, two Braintree residents, Barry Hannon and the late Carl Johnson served as representatives. Hannon is the present Norfolk County Registrar of Deeds. Johnson was a former town clerk in Braintree.

In terms of the number of registered voters in the district, Quincy has 753 more than Weymouth, according to the latest figures. Quincy has 10,965 registered voters in the Third Norfolk District compared to 10,212 in Weymouth.

On Monday, Peter Lucas, press secretary for House Speaker Charles Flaherty, said the speaker will set a date for the special primary election after he officially receives Cerasoli's letter of resignation as a representative. As of late Monday afternoon, Flaherty had not received Cerasoli's resignation, Lucas said.

According to state law, the earliest a special election can be held for state office is 14 weeks after the seat officially becomes vacant. Since Cerasoli will likely be sworn in this week, the special primary election could be held in early or mid-October.

After Flaherty finally receives Cerasoli's resignation, Lucas said the speaker will call the elect.... within a couple of days.

The final election for the seat must be held within 60 days of the primary, said Quincy City Clerk John Gillis.

Cerasoli, one of the seven most senior members of the House of Representatives, is a former chairman of the Ethics Committee and House Post Audit and Oversight Committee. He resigned from the latter in November, 1989 after disagreeing with then House Speaker George Keverian about proposed tax increases.

The inspector general has broad powers to investigate corruption, waste and fraud in state and local agencies. However, the office cannot prosecute wrongdoers or impose reprimands or fines.

Cerasoli was not available for comment.

Quincy Hospital Awarded $108,799 Grant From State

Quincy Hospital has been awarded a $108,799 grant from the Massachusetts Executive Office of Human Services for career advancement and education toward professional certification in medical laboratory science.

The proposal was submitted by Quincy Hospital's Department of Human Resources in collaboration with Milton Hospital and Northeastern University under state Labor Shortage Initiative legislation.

The program will provide an opportunity for laboratory personnel to enhance their skills through courses at Northeastern University. Course selection will be based on an assessment students' educational background and the requirements of the specific certification exam they will be preparing to take.

In addition to current laboratory personnel at Quincy and Milton Hospital's, two individuals from a targeted population--a member of the Quincy Asian community and a Milton displaced homemaker--will be included in the program.

If they successfully complete the laboratory assistant/phlebotomy certification program, they will be hired into entry level positions at the hospitals.

The program will cover the costs of tuition, textbooks, laboratory fees, challenge examinations and personnel replacement costs.

City, BFI Establish DPW Awards

Commissioner David Colton announces the city's department of Public Works will present $1,000 in awards next year to eligible groups for completion of approved public works related projects in Quincy.

The awards, sponsored by Browning-Ferris Industries, will be presented during National Public Works Week which is usually held in mid-May.

Any not-for-profit civic, fraternal or social group which operates in Quincy is eligible. Groups whose sole purpose is to raise money for public projects are not eligible, Colton said.

To apply, any eligible group may submit a description of a public project for approval to the commissioner.

Projects must be public works or park related and provide a lasting public improvement. Generally, projects must be to construct, reconstruct, rehabilitate, restore or in some way substantially improve a public facility.

Maintenance work and projects begun prior to the establishment of this award are excluded.

Applications may be submitted at any time. Projects must be completed by April 30.

Materials will be furnished by the DPW. All labor and equipment must be provided by the eligible group.

Ideas for projects will be provided by the DPW upon request. The department will assist in obtaining any permits required by others.

Judging for the awards will be done by a group of at least selected by the commissioner of Public Works.

The number and amount of the awards will be determined each year based on availability. Three awards will be presented in 1992:

a $500 Browning-Ferris Award, a $250 Mayor's Award and a $250 Commissioner's Award.

Wollaston Is For Everyone

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Recently, in the Patriot Ledger, an article was published entitled "Couple Plans Chinatown In Wollaston." I rise to make comment.

The article, in a fashion, simply dismisses generations of businesses that have called Wollaston home and details one couple's intent to create what would appear to be, not a diverse business community, but rather a center dedicated to the service of only one component of our community.

Few in government have done more to support Quincy's Asian population than I. However, I rise in protest to any one group's exclusion of others. Whether that group is a majority or a minority, neither has the right to preclude the other from our common and shared destiny.

Wollaston is, for as long as I continue in government, will remain Wollaston; a healthy mix of independent merchants who welcome all and exclude none.

Thomas Jefferson, one of America's great champions of individual liberty once said, "Let us, then, fellow citizens, unite with one heart and one mind."

I find issue with those that would exclude others and I find issue with those that would preclude others.

The new are welcome, but the old are not rejected. Diversity, not homogeneity, should be our goal; tolerance, not exclusion, should be our practice. It is only together that we can find our common goals.

NOSEBLEEDS

Nosebleeds are common, rarely serious, events. Most are caused by a minor injury, or by scratching or picking at the lining of the nose. A nosebleed may also occur after a few days of nose-blowing with a cold or allergy, or upon arrival at a high altitude area. If you develop a nosebleed, don't panic. Even though the amount of blood lost looks spectacular, it's rarely more than a tablespoon full. To stop a nosebleed, sit down with your head angled slightly forward so the blood doesn't run down your throat. Swallowed blood can make you feel like gagging. If blood is coming from only one nostril, pinch it to the middle; if from both, pinch them together. Maintain the pressure, without releasing it for at least five minutes. Most nosebleeds stop within a few minutes and need not any further attention.

P.S. If bleeding is a result of direct trauma to the nose, only gentle pressure should be applied.

If you experience chronic nosebleeds, medical attention may be indicated. If you suffer from these symptoms, we suggest that you contact the appropriate physician for a consultation. I would be happy to discuss any medical problem with you at any time. This column is presented in the interest of better health by the office of COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24, in Quincy. Phone 472-2550. I am affiliated with Quincy, Milton, Carney and South Shore Hospitals.

A Political Milestone

This year's city election may not be a political blockbuster but it might go down as a local political milestone.

Edward Lee of Highland Ave., Wollaston, has taken out nomination papers for School Committee -- apparently the first local political candidate of Asian ancestry.

Lee's family owned the former China Star Chinese restaurant in Merrymount. Lee was born here.

GILLIS

City Clerk John Gillis who has been around City Hall for over three decades and on Quincy's political scene for nearly a half century, says he can't remember anyone else of Asian descent ever running for public office in Quincy.

Political observers think that someday in the future Quincy's growing Asian population will make it a strong voting bloc. And believe someday there will be a member of that community elected school committee member, city councillor - and maybe, someday -- mayor.

But Gillis thinks a strong Asian voting bloc may be a long way off.

The U.S. census shows the Asian population in Quincy at 5,000.

Gillis thinks it is closer to 15,000.

He believes that as many as 10,000 are living here in Quincy but did not respond to the U.S. census.

"I think the forms which were mailed out confused them," he says. "And because of the language barrier, many just didn't respond."

But, he says, the city will get a better handle on its Asian population next year.

The city will begin its own census in January, he says. And it will not be done via mail.

"We are going to do it door-to-door," he says.

It will be the first time the city has gone door-to-door in eight years.

Gillis agrees with observers that some day the Asian community will be a strong factor in Quincy politics.

"But," he says, "somebody is going to have to work with them to register them to vote. Right now, there aren't many registering."

LEE'S ENTRANCE INTO the School Committee race brings that field to eight candidates -- one more than the required number for a preliminary election runoff.

Colton Member MWRA Wastewater Advisory Group

Quincy Public Works Commissioner David Colton is a member of a newly formed citizens' committee which has launched a review of wastewater planning and management that face the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority.

The Wastewater Advisory Committee (WAC) was created by the MWRA's Board of the Directors and charged with advising the authority on current and proposed programs and policies.

"Wastewater issues will now have a sounding board for discussion similar to the role played by MWRA's Water Supply Citizen Advisory Committee for water supply issues," said Susan Redlich, the committee's executive director.

Besides reviewing and commenting on Boston Harbor project plans, the committee will advise the MWRA on region-wide pollution and abatement and prevention. Other issues the committee will review include household and industrial toxics reduction, stormwater management, inflow and infiltration reduction and combined overflow control.

Committee meetings are scheduled the first Friday of every month and are open to the public. For specific information on location, time and agenda, call Redlich at 241-6513.

Reunion With Famed World War II Commander Quincy Man On Sentimental Journey For Commissioning Of USS Arleigh Burke

By ROBERT
BOSWORTH

Quincy businessman Paul Hurley, Sr. is on a sentimental journey this July 4th holiday and a reunion with one of the most famous Navy names of World War II.

Hurley will be reunited in Norfolk, Va. tomorrow (Thursday) with Admiral Arleigh (31-Knot) Burke at a rare occasion: the commissioning of the destroyer Arleigh Burke (DDG-51).

It is rare because in the Navy's long history, few ships have been named in honor of an individual while he was still alive.

Hurley, 73, a long-time Quincy civic leader, was a gunnery officer on the USS Converse, one of five 2100-ton destroyers in Destroyer Squadron (Des Ron) 23 commanded by Burke in the South Pacific.

Burke, who is 91, won the nickname "31 Knot Burke" for pushing his destroyers to that speed. Burke nicknamed his squadron "The Little Beavers" which also stuck in World War II history.

A knot is equal to 1.15 miles per hour and most destroyers of World War II vintage traveled in around 28 knots at top speed.

Burke preferred to have his ships moving at full speed—then 31 knots.

But, reveals Hurley, Burke might have become famous as "38 or 39 knot Burke" if it weren't for a broken boiler on the ships. "Little is it known that all our ships could move at 38-39 knots, but due to one boiler of one ship being out of commission we would only move at the maximum speed of the slowest ship, 31 knots," Hurley said.

The USS Burke, a 5,600-ton vessel, is a far cry from the 2100 "tin cans" of World War II. In those days, a vessel that large was more like a light cruiser.

Hurley was among the 20,000 veterans, dignitaries and officials expected to attend the commissioning. President Bush and Defense Secretary Dick Cheney were invited to attend.

"Admiral Burke was a great, great leader and we were so proud and sure of his leadership that we would and did follow him anywhere," Hurley said. "That was then, and almost 50 years ago, and the same feelings persist now. That is why so many of those who served with him will be coming from all over the country to join honor to him as this ship is commissioned in his name."

duty was aboard the USS Arkansas in the Atlantic Fleet. After Pearl Harbor, he was sent to Bath, Maine, where the USS Converse was being built. Eventually, the ship joined Des Ron 23 and Burke became the squadron's leader.

From November, 1943 to February, 1944, the squadron, under Burke's command, participated in 22 separate enemy engagements for which it was awarded the coveted Presidential Unit Citation "for extraordinary heroism in action against enemy Japanese forces during the Solomon Islands campaign."

During the campaign, Des Ron 23 boldly penetrated submarine-infested waters during a period when Japanese naval and air power was at its height.

It was in November, 1943 that the squadron engaged six enemy destroyers at the Battle of Cape St. George, sinking four of them and badly damaging the other two in what has been described by historians as a "near perfect surface action."

Hurley recalled one battle which typified Burke's leadership, courage and perhaps most of all, his intelligence.

Early in the morning on Thanksgiving, 1943, the Navy broke Japan's code and Burke's squadron went after six Japanese ships near the northwest end of Bougainville. Des Ron 23 got five enemy ships without one American casualty.

"It was quite a battle. It was one of the most outstanding naval attacks in history," he said.

Despite the overwhelming victory, Burke wanted a clean sweep. However, the early morning sunlight began rising over the horizon. "The squadron had no air cover and was getting close to Rabaul Navy base, one of Japan's largest bases in the Pacific."

"We were dead ducks if they caught up to us," Hurley admitted.

Then, one of the captains in the squadron used a little "subliminal diplomacy." He called Burke to wish him a Happy Thanksgiving and "many more." The commodore got the hint that the squadron was entering a potentially devastating situation and ordered the ships to turned back.

In 1944, Hurley left the Converse to become gun boss of a bigger destroyer, the USS Lindsey. Soon thereafter, Burke left destroyer duty and moved up to staff work.

"As gun boss of the Lindsey we did not have the success that the Des Ron 23 had," Hurley said. On April 12, 1945, after many days of attacks by Japanese kamikazes, the destroyer was hit by two of eight who attacked her. "We lost lost 98 feet of our ship, many men killed and wounded and were towed back to base."

The Quincy native then received orders to become executive officer of a new destroyer not yet named. He was getting the crew together for the new ship in Norfolk when the war came a sudden and happy ending.

Hurley, who retired as a lieutenant commander USNR was later promoted to commander USNR, fondly recalls his time spent at sea with Admiral Burke. He also takes pride in their friendship which has endured since the war ended.

When Hurley received the South Shore Chamber of Commerce's Distinguished Service Award in 1984, Burke wrote a congratulatory letter to his friend. In the letter, Burke said Hurley was a integral part of the squadron's success.

"Paul has a great sense of obligation, greater than most of us. It is people who do have this feeling that they owe something to their society, to their country, to their associates, who help create great communities and great nations," Burke said.

Having the same birthday, Oct. 19, they have kept in touch over the years with cards. A photo of Burke with greetings to Hurley and his wife, Connie, hangs in Hurley's office.

The admiral has also made it a point to attend reunions of Des Ron 23. In 1983, 1500 veterans of the squadron attended a three-day reunion in Washington, D.C. and their leader was there to greet them. Hurley was the master of ceremonies for the event.

"(Burke) has always felt close to the men he served with on the ship before he went on to bigger and better things," Hurley said. "He always been a great guy."

The day before the Fourth, Quincy Legionnaires hosted some 5,000 children with merry-go-round and ferris wheel rides under the direction of Harry Ingalls, who also led the youngsters in a community sing.

The Red Men's band from Wollaston, under the direction of Douglas Haydock, gave concerts on two nights from the acoustic shell in the park and the New England Troubadours played for dancing in the pavilion on the pageant grounds.

Raymond Young 13, of 77 School St. was taken to City Hospital with burns about the face and body from an exploding firecracker.

Exp Collector Edward G. Morris spoke at the celebration at Merrymount Beach, where Helen Gavaza and Paul Benzaquin won prizes for the best costumes in the Horrible parade.

Siciliano Coordinating Auxiliary Police Assistance For State's Desert Storm Celebration July 7

Quincy Civil Defense Director Tony Siciliano, president of the Massachusetts Auxiliary Police Association, will coordinate assistance for the state's official homecoming celebration for Operation Desert Storm Sunday, July 7 in Taunton.

Taunton Police Chief David Westcott requested the assistance of 150 state auxiliary police officers for the 13-hour celebration. Activities will begin at 9 a.m. with a monument dedication and conclude with a "Stars and Stripes Forever" fireworks display at 9:15 p.m.

According to Siciliano, 25 of the auxiliary police officers are from Quincy and the rest are from various cities and towns.

He also pointed out Quincy auxiliary police will set up a communications center at the event which will honor the more than 12,000 Massachusetts veterans from all branches of service who served in the Persian Gulf. Other communication units will be built from the center.

Because the event is expected to attract several thousand people, Westcott asked the state's police chiefs for manpower, a mobile command center, cruisers and portable two-way radios.

"Any assistance, through the Massachusetts Auxiliary Police Association, would be greatly appreciated," he said in a letter to the chiefs.

Over 3000 troops and 7000 community and veteran groups will march east down Route 44 onto Winthrop St. and through the city of Taunton to the Taunton High School. The remainder of the celebration will be held at Bristol Plymouth Regional.

The state's official Desert Storm Welcome Home Celebration will begin at 9 a.m. with the unveiling of a seven-foot marble monument dedicated to those Massachusetts military members who served during the conflict. The nine Massachusetts families who lost their sons and daughters to the war have been invited to attend the ceremony which will be held on Route 138 in Taunton.

After the dedication, an ecumenical service will be held the troops and their families and friends at St. Mary's Church. Following the service at 10 a.m., a wreath will be placed on the Taunton Green as a U.S. Garrison flag is hoisted above. A 21-gun salute will be fired followed by the playing of taps. Gov.

William Weld will preside over the flag raising ceremony and will review the parade that follows.

Weld, who has proclaimed July 7 "Stand Tall For America Day," invites all Massachusetts citizens to the state's official celebration for Persian Gulf troops.

From 12:30 to 2 p.m., Desert Stormers will march along with hundreds of veterans from previous wars. The parade will also include many other attractions, such as antique cars, Clydesdale horses and several floats.

An M1 Abrams tank, Bradley fighting vehicle, Cobra helicopter gunship, 155mm self-propelled Howitzer and other military equipment will be on display at Bristol Plymouth Technical School.

From 3 to 8 p.m., there will be a Welcome Home picnic featuring a concert and skydiving demonstrations. After messages from Taunton's mayor and Gov. Weld, a fireworks display from 9:15 to 10 p.m. will conclude the celebration.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

SOME THOUGHTS FOR THE FOURTH OF JULY ...

Our constitution provides us with the rights to free speech, freedom of religion and a free press, allowing us to enjoy this beautiful land in a manner that is not possible in a lot of other countries.

However, we should not take all this freedom for granted, and not put to use the powers our freedom gives us. We have our freedom for a reason, and that is to let everyone be heard so we have a government that is "of the people" of this great country. Americanism depends upon people putting to use their freedoms for the sake of promoting and improving our great country to make it even greater. So let's write to those congressmen when we have an opinion, make that phone call when someone is on the air taking calls, vote for those we believe will do the job honestly and in the best interest of our country ... After all, our system of government is counting on our constant input!

For those times when the darkness lingers

With the loss of a loved one through death, it is helpful to be able to share the feelings and emotions which we all experience.

For most of us, there are family members, clergy, and friends who are ready to listen in a caring way.

Yet, there are those who find it helpful to share their grief with someone outside their immediate circle of support.

Because of our continuing commitment to the families we serve, Keohane Funeral Service is pleased to announce that Dr. Sherry Johnson has joined our staff as a Grief Counselor. Her educational background, professional experience and understanding manner can be particularly helpful.

We are the first funeral home in New England to offer the service of a Grief Counselor.

A Few Words on FUNERAL SERVICE

Children at Funerals?

By all means, "Yes." But only if you've explained it to them.

Don't make up fairy tales or fudge with the truth. Don't say "Grandpa is going on a trip," etc. You'll cause more harm than good.

Relate the passing to something familiar and natural. "Flowers or birds or pets grow and bloom or live and are enjoyed by all. Grandpa lived a long time and you enjoyed him, but like the flowers, he died and you'll always remember him."

Or relate the death to things natural — the sun, the moon and stars. But let the children come to the funeral only if they wish to.

Legion Baseball

Morrisette Blanks Randolph Behind Rawdon's 2-Hitter

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Morrisette Legion baseball team improved its Zone 6 leading record to 8-1 as it opened the second half of its schedule with a 2-0 victory over Randolph last Friday behind the two-hit pitching of Gary Rawdon, who improved to 4-0.

Morrisette, whose record is somewhat surprising with 11 16-year old players, played at Weymouth Tuesday and will be idle until Monday when it plays at Braintree at 7:30 p.m. Next Wednesday it will host Wollaston at 8:30 p.m. at Adams Field.

Morrisette, the only team to defeat Randolph

(5-2), continued its hex over Randolph ace Curt Romboli. Romboli, who held Morrisette to four hits last week, has never beaten Morrisette in five tries.

The game featured fine pitching and defense by both teams. Rawdon was shaky in the first three innings, walking five. He pitched out of a bases-loaded jam in the first and had men on first and third in the third but first baseman Tom Balzano made a fine catch of a ball headed for the right field corner.

Rawdon settled down and allowed only one hit and a walk, striking out eight, over the last four innings.

Morrisette scored in the second inning without a hit as Pat Clifford walked and went to third on a wild throw on a pickoff attempt. He scored on Mark Kelliher's sacrifice fly.

The second run came in the third when Robbie Kane doubled to left and scored on Mike Baylis' long triple to right-center.

Morrisette might have scored more except for outstanding defense by Randolph. Balzano was robbed on a scorching line drive with two men in scoring position.

Kane played a fine game at second base as did Serge Belcastro behind the plate. Rawdon and Belcastro each had a hit.

Saturday night, before one of the largest crowds to watch a Legion game in many years at Adams Field, Morrisette defeated a touring New York 16-year old team, 13-6. Wollaston was defeated 7-1 by the New York team also on Saturday.

Morrisette fielded a 16-year old team of its own with Clifford picking up the win. Matt O'Toole and Billy Warren also pitched.

Morrisette led, 13-2, going into the last inning when the New Yorkers scored four runs.

Mike Patch led the offense with a double and two singles and three RBI. Belcastro, Noel DiBona and Liam Higgins had two hits each.

CHRIS FERRARA

Ferrara Closes Suffolk Season With .340 Average

Christine Ferrara of Quincy enjoyed an outstanding season as a tri-captain of the Suffolk University softball team.

Ferrara, a junior playing her third season, hit .340 and had 12 RBI in 20 games.

"Chris was our leadoff batter. Her on-base ratio was very good," said Suffolk coach Doreen Matta. "She was a very smart base runner. That, combined with her ability to get on base, clinched the leadoff spot for her."

Ferrara is a graduate of Archbishop Williams High School.

Quincy's Eileen Hilton, another member of the Suffolk team, also earned praise from Matta.

"Eileen has a lot of drive and a lot of enthusiasm," said Matta.

Hilton, a freshman, saw action at catcher and second base this season.

She is a 1990 graduate of Sacred Heart High School in Weymouth.

Blaikie, Charlie Doherty and John Parastatedes all played well.

The Tigers outslugged the Mets, 15-10, with Ken O'Connor the winning pitcher with Mike Whalen pitching well in relief.

Junior League

Foley Shells Cable, Burgin Defeats Kiwanis

Foley Chrysler, after losing a 7-1 lead, exploded for nine runs in the sixth inning to defeat Continental Cable, 16-7, to continue its hot pace in the Quincy Junior Baseball League. Foley improved its record to 13-5.

Cable had tied the score with six runs in the bottom of the fifth.

Paul Markinovic had a home run and a double in the nine-run inning and Bob Walsh had a double and single. Walsh went 4-for-5 in the game.

Mike McEvoy had a triple and double and Mark Foster hit two singles. After his rocky fifth inning, Walsh struck out two in the last two innings to win his sixth game.

Foley also defeated Keohane's, 10-5, getting off to a 3-0 lead in the first inning.

Walsh went 3-for-3 with a triple, Markinovic drove in four runs and Brian Beaton went 2-for-2 with a

Scott Howard had a triple and single for Keohane's.

Burgin Platner defeated Kiwanis, 11-10. Billy Barron, the starting pitcher for Burgin, went 3-for-4, two singles and a double, and Jason Chagnon and Mark Driscoll pitched well in relief.

Chagnon had a double, three singles and four RBI, Mike Prinkle a double and single and three RBI, Carl Ehrhnes a single, Will Tracey a double and John Barron and Judson Sherman drove in runs.

O'Brien played his first full game as catcher and turned in a fine effort.

At 81 He's Still Following In His Father's Footsteps

Ellery Clark Jr., of Cohasset, has been a regular competitor in the Quincy Senior Olympics and this year, at age 81, repeated his past successes by winning four gold medals, finishing first in the half-mile walk, mile walk, three-mile walk and mile run in his division.

Clark's father, the late Ellery Clark Sr., was recently inducted into the National Track and Field Hall of Fame in Indianapolis, the first Boston AA athlete and first Harvard graduate to be inducted.

The elder Clark, who died in 1949 at age 75, was one of the top trackmen in the country. He competed in the most events, 21, had the most years of competition, 20, and won the most prizes, 75 first places, 46 seconds and 30 thirds.

He primarily represented the Boston AA and won the running long jump and high jump in the 1896 Olympic Games in Athens, Greece.

He twice was the winner of the National All-Around Championship of America, in 1897 when he broke the record and again in 1903.

Clark's most famous first was just a month short of his 33rd birthday when he shocked New York track and field experts by handily winning for the BAA the running high jump at the annual indoor games of the famous New York Athletic Club.

Beach Water Sampling Begins

The Quincy Health Department has begun its summer water sampling program, announces Health Commissioner M. Jane Gallahue.

Water samples will be collected every Tuesday until Sept. 3 at 10 beaches, one to two hours before high tide. Results will be analyzed for fecal coliform counts by a certified private laboratory, and will be made available to the media throughout the summer months.

The Metropolitan District Commission will collect and analyze water samples at four locations along Wollaston Beach. Samples will be obtained on Wednesday and will be reported to beach managers and the Quincy Health Department by Friday of each week.

Quincy, like most coastal communities in the South Shore area, utilizes a standard of 200 or greater fecal coliform colonies as an indication of health risk. Beaches with counts of 180 or greater will be resampled.

Beaches with counts of 200 or greater will be posted with signs which read: WARNING, beach unacceptable for swimming, per order of Quincy Health Department.

Such beaches are considered unsafe for swimming and signs will remain in place until water samples show fecal coliform counts below 180.

If a period of rainfall has occurred after the water samples were taken on Tuesdays, it is important that people understand that such samples may not represent an accurate reflection of the water quality which will be reported on Fridays, Gallahue said.

Sewerage is often discharged into the harbor from pipes and drains that contain overflow wastewater in combination with rainwater after one quarter of an inch of rainfall or greater occurs in a given day, the health commissioner explained.

"We therefore recommend that people refrain from swimming or bathing for a period of 48 hours after a rainfall to allow the natural diluting action of the tides to dilute and cleanse the water," she said.

Quincy is involved in a multi-year program to detect and repair problems with the city's sewer and storm drain pipes which may adversely affect Quincy Bay. The project will involve a series of steps which include cleaning sewer and storm pipes, detecting possible leaks through the use of closed-circuit television equipment and dye testing, and repairing any leaks or problems which are detected.

Gallahue urges the public to avoid bathing or swimming in the areas immediately adjacent to storm drain outlets until the cleaning, detection and repair work on the pipes is completed.

Dye testing is scheduled to occur periodically over the next few years. On occasion, releases of dye may be noted at different locations within the waters of Quincy Bay. The dye used is fluorescent green-yellow in color, is water soluble and is not harmful to humans or the environment.

A pamphlet on the Bathing Beach Water Sampling Program is available from the Quincy Health Department. For more information regarding the testing program, call 773-1380 ext. 219.

Quincy, South Shore Board Of Realtors Continuing 'Safety In Numbers' Program

The Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors, along with its' members firm, is continuing its sponsorship of the "Safety in Numbers" program designed to encourage Quincy home and building owners to post address numbers for easy identification.

The Quincy Fire and Police Departments are also participating in the program. Mayor James Sheets also supports the program.

Sheets reminds Quincy citizens that the city has an ordinance which requires address numbers be posted on dwellings and buildings. The program, he said, is an opportunity for people to correct a situation that they may have overlooked.

The address numbers may be obtained free of charge from local realtors. This relieves home and business owners of the burden of purchasing numbers and also increases their safety net in terms of response time needed by the fire and police departments to answer citizen calls.

New England Telephone is introducing a new emergency 911 number statewide that will force all homes to be numbered so they can be logged into a data base and more easily found by police and firefighters.

QUINCY AND South Shore Board of Realtors are continuing with their "Safety in Numbers" program designed to encourage Quincy building and home owners to post address numbers of the dwellings for easy identification by police and fire officials. Board members stress the need now because of the enhanced 911 system to be implemented soon. The caller's address is displayed on a computer screen to the 911 operator. Placing numbers on Fire Headquarters, Quincy, is Sen. Paul Harold. South Shore YMCA Support Campaign Raises $79,631

This year's South Shore YMCA annual support campaign raised $79,631, surpassing its $75,000 goal, announces Alex Clark, chairman of the support campaign.

More than 100 people, who were involved in the fundraising effort, attended a recent "Victory Celebration" held at the Ocean Terrace at Marina Bay in Squantum. Clark recognized the outstanding volunteer leaders who headed the various selections of the campaign, including John Sheskey, Presidents Club Section Leader; Charles Pearce, Major Gifts Section Leader; John Nicholson, Phone-a-thon Section Leader; Mary Wentworth, Board Section Leader; and Bill Johnson, Staff Section Leader.

More than 900 individuals and corporations from throughout the South Shore have supported the YMCA's work through donations to the annual support campaign. Every dollar raised goes directly to helping people participate in YMCA programs which are vital to the health of their own, and their family's, spirit, mind and body.

Thanks to the efforts of the more than 100 volunteers who worked on the campaign, hundreds of local children and families with limited financial resources will be able to attend YMCA summer camp, participate in Y programs, and receive child care services in one of the Y's full day or after school programs.

Bragg Calls For School Budget Format Reform

The recent discovery of $914 in school budget funds being used to pay for tuxedo rentals for high school proms further illustrates the need to change the school budget format, says JoAnn (Grazio) Bragg, a candidate for School Committee.

"A year ago when I was vice president of the CityWide Parents' Council we made a recommendation to the school committee to change the budget format. We even gave a copy of a model school budget as a means to accomplish this change but the school committee took no action," Bragg said.

Earlier this year, Bragg was a member of the School Committee Budget Task Force. The 26-member group also recommended the budget format be changed.

"We found the school budget unnecessarily confusing and there were times when the committee had to postpone discussion on many different line items to ask the school administrators to provide basic details that we felt should have been part of the budget to begin with. In our recommendations," Bragg said, "we pinpointed several areas of discrepancies and gave suggestions on ways to improve the format."

School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci and the entire school committee agreed the format should be changed yet the next school budget still used the same old format, Bragg said. She said someone needs to take the bull by the horns and if elected she will do just that by insisting the format change.

"The public has the right to know how their tax dollars are being spent. A document like this needs to clearly state what is in it," she said.

Bragg said she is "appalled" that the school committee knew tuxedos were funded by public school dollars and allowed this practice to continue.

"Our school budget has been cut every year for the last three years, staff has been laid off, employees are settling contracts with no pay raises, academic programs are being eliminated, the budget line item for learning supplies and textbooks have been cut, how can the school committee justify renting tuxedos during these times of financial constraints. It makes you wonder what else is in the budget," Bragg said.

In addition, she Bragg said each and every dollar must be spent wisely. "Money management is crucial and educational priorities must be set so that the students are receiving the best possible education."

Bragg said the $914 allotted to school administrators for tuxedos could be better spent on computer instruction for teachers. "There are too many computers in our system being underutilized because there are not enough staff members who know how to use them," she said.

Robert Callahan Graduates From U.S. Naval Academy

Robert Callahan, son of Edward and Margaret Callahan, 54 Lenox St., Quincy, was recently commissioned a lieutenant in the Marines after his graduation from the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md.

Callahan, who grew up in Houghs Neck, attended Quincy public schools and is a 1987 graduate of Boston College High School.

WARD 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley, center, presents a $5,000 U.D.A.G. donation to members of the Squantum Community Association. The funds will be used to help build the new "Squantum Kidsport" playground. Accepting the check are, from left, Grace Buscher, Louise Downs, Judy Levering and Kathryn MacRitchie. The playground will officially open July 4.

Traffic Commission Approves School Zone On Water St.

The Quincy Traffic Commission approved nine changes and denied five recommendations at a recent meeting.

The commission voted to:

- Create a school zone from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. on school days at the Water St. side of Lincoln-Hancock School. Members recommended 20 MPH School Zone signs be posted on Water St.

- Install no parking-tow zone signs on the southerly side from Willard St. to the boundary line of 28 Hayden St. The commission also recommended the police department be contacted of any violations.

on both sides of the street prohibits use of sidewalk by pedestrians; also prohibits proper snow removal and sanding and is also a safety hazard in the event of fire emergency.

A petition for both changes was signed by 60 residents.

- Install handicapped parking space at 116 Sagamore St.

- Install two-hour parking on Wayland St., from Berlin St. to Hancock St. to prevent all day parking by MBTA riders.

- Install resident only parking signs on Carruth St.

- Install stop sign at the corner of Rice Rd. and Wendell Ave.

- Install no parking signs along the east side of Winter St., from the southerly line of the property at 10 Winter St. to DesMoines Rd.

- Approve an application for handicapped parking space at 322 Fayette St.

The Traffic Commission denied the following recommendations:

- Prohibit or regulate delivery trucks on Hobart St. due to truck traffic to and from business establishment at the corner of Newport Ave. and Hobart St. Members said there is not a substantial amount of traffic volume to warrant the change. The also deemed the change unenforceable.

The commission will write a letter to Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien asking him to contact the resident who made the request.

- Install traffic signals at the corner of Hancock, Fenno and Clay Sts.

Members said the request does not meet the state's minimum traffic volume requirements for traffic signals set forth by the manual on Uniform Traffic Control Devices.

- Install 15 minute only parking signs on Goddard and Independence Ave., adjacent to the Adams Cleaners. The request, which was made in the interest of public safety, was denied because the city has no existing ordinance for 15-minute parking. Members also deemed the recommendation unenforceable.

- Install one-way, Beach St., entering from Quincy Shore Dr. The request was denied because Quincy Shore Dr. is under MDC jurisdiction.

- Install four-way stop sign at the intersection of Crescent and Cross St. The request, made in the interest of public safety, was denied because it does not meet the state's minimum traffic volume and accident requirements for a four-way stop sign as listed by the manual on Uniform Traffic Control Devices.

In addition, the traffic commission held a request for a handicapped parking space at 79 Farrington St. The request was held because the person making the request did not file an application with Traffic Engineer David Kinnecon. After an application is filed, a site inspection is made.

The commission's recommendations will be submitted to the City Council for final action. Any request which has been denied can be resubmitted by a councillor.

KIM GAGEL and STEPHEN MCCANN

You're All Invited They're Getting Married -- On Hancock St.

By JANE ARENA

When Kim Gagel of Quincy and Stephen McCann of Hanover exchange their wedding vows Saturday, July 20, there will be a few thousand people on hand to wish them well. The two are tying the knot as the highlight of the annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Sale, sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, (QCBPA), to be held July 18, 19 and 20.

The wedding will take place in a tent in front of the Bank of New England in Quincy Center at 2:30 p.m. and anyone who wants to witness the event is cordially invited to attend.

Yes, it's a real wedding. Bernie Riesberg, owner of Bernies Formal Wear and a Justice of the Peace, will officiate the ceremony.

He's also supplying tuxedos for the groom and his party.

In fact, everything from the bridal gown, the reception and the wedding trip right down to the nail polish on the Maid of Honor's fingertips, will be donated by Quincy merchants and merchants from surrounding towns.

Donations include the gowns and shoes for the bridal party, the flowers, the video taping and photography, the cake, the invitations, the wedding bands, and even gifts for the happy couple.

"I think I've put in about $200 myself," Gagel said, and that includes the marriage license and the blood tests.

Gagel, who works at Pilgrim Restaurant in Quincy Center, says she's excited about the wedding, but a bit nervous.

"The crowd scares me," she says. "I'm sure the news cameras will be there and everything."

Gagel and McCann were selected from about 12 other couples who filled applications and were interviewed by Major Productions, the company putting together the event along with the QCBPA.

"We're happy we got it," she says, "we're just getting married 10 months earlier, that's all."

FY 91 Receipts Down $2.5 Million

City May Face Another $4-M In Budget Cuts

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Just two weeks into the new fiscal year, Mayor James Sheets may have to order another round of budget cuts since low receipts and local aid cuts may add up to as much as $4 million in red ink.

The city's local aid amount for FY 92 which began July 1 will be revealed after Gov. William Weld signs the state's new budget into law. Sheets said he hopes to know the figure by early next week.

Based on preliminary figures, Quincy could lose $5.1 million in local aid over last year. In FY 91, the city received $26,605,935 from the state. This year, that number could come in at $21,427,912.

In preparing the FY 92 budget, Sheets anticipated a $3 million cut in local aid. If the $5.1 figure sticks, another $2.1 million would have to be cut from the budget.

Although the local aid number was still in limbo as of Tuesday, Quincy's FY 91 receipts figure was disclosed Monday and the news was not good.

According to Auditor Robert Foy, the city's receipts for FY 91 came in at $22 million, not the $24.5 million officials had anticipated. The mayor blamed the slumping economy for the sluggish receipts, which cover all monies generated by fees such as building permits, water and sewer bills and licenses.

The mayor said the FY 91 deficit will be made up using free cash. "I don't know what that will do to the free cash account. We could be three to four hundred thousand dollars in the red or three to four hundred thousand dollars in the black. It's going to be that close."

Last year's lower than expected receipt figure means the city must cut $2 million from the FY 92 budget. According to state law, a municipality cannot budget more in receipt revenue than it collected the previous year.

"We can no longer use the $24 million figure that we used when we calculated the FY 92 budget because the state requires you to go back to what it actually was, in your estimation. We have to make up that two plus million dollars."

"It's a double whack. We lose $2.5 million bucks in free cash and we must also reduce the budget by that amount this year."

A $5.1 million cut in local aid combined with the $2.5 million in lower than expected receipts would spell another round of budget cuts in Quincy, including layoffs. Sheets

Gorman Or Walsh

Fire Chief Selection In Sept.

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Mayor James Sheets will appoint either Acting Chief Thomas Gorman or Deputy Chief Joseph Walsh the city's next fire chief in early September.

Both Gorman, who will turn 54 years old July 19, and Walsh, 41, passed the Civil Service chief's exam administered in Boston in March. Gorman, a 27-year veteran, scored an 82. Walsh, a 16-year veteran, scored a 93.

As he did when he appointed a new police chief, Sheets has set up a screening committee which will interview both candidates before the mayor makes the appointment. Besides Sheets, Executive Secretary Thomas Koch, Administrative Assistant Bernice Mader, City Solicitor Stephen McGrath and Personnel Director

JOSEPH WALSH

Kathleen Yaeger will sit on the committee.

Asked why he formed a committee, the mayor replied, "We did it with the police chief. I think you have to be consistent with how you make these major decisions."

"We will meet sometime this month as a group to decide the format for the interview. Then we'll notify each of the candidates of the format which will be a very simple format," Sheets said.

The committee will interview each candidate the first or second week of August, the mayor said. "The minimal will be that each candidate will have an opportunity to express himself in terms of his qualifications."

The mayor would not discuss specific qualities

Comer Feels 'A Lot Better' After Hospitalization

By STEVE KAVANAGH

John "Jake" Comer, executive director of the Quincy Housing Authority, returned home to Quincy Tuesday after being hospitalized in Putnam, Conn., over the weekend.

"I feel a lot better," Comer said from his home Tuesday. "At first I thought I had a bleeding ulcer but it turned out to be a severe case of gastritis."

Comer, past National Commander of the American Legion, was in Putnam to speak at a "Welcome Home Troops" July 4th parade on Sunday. Comer was taken from his hotel room to the hospital in Putnam by ambulance Sunday at 2 a.m.

"The speaking ceremonies got rained out anyway," he said. "This was the first time in 59 years that I've been hospitalized," said Comer, 59.

Comer's doctor told him to stay off of his feet this week. Comer is frustrated by the fact that he will miss the State American Legion Convention this week.

"It will be the first time in 30 years," he said.

Raymondi Out; Eaton, Falco In? Scrambling In Third Norfolk Representative Race Continues

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

With the date of the special election for state representative in the Third Norfolk District still up in the air, the scrambling for the seat formerly occupied by Robert Cerasoli continues.

As of Tuesday, House Speaker Charles Flaherty had not announced the date for the special election. It is expected to be held in October.

The House will be back in session next Wednesday, July 17. A decision on the date of the special election is not expected before then.

Meanwhile, one potential candidate has announced he will not seek the seat while two other residents are sizing up possible runs.

Daniel Raymondi, who was mentioned as a potential candidate when Cerasoli resigned late last month to become the state's new inspector general, announced Monday he would not run.

Raymondi, who is a former Norfolk County treasurer and has been chairman of the Quincy Democratic Committee for more than 10 years, said, "I've decided not to be a candidate in order to devote more time to my law practice. "I want to be in a position to be able to help the Democratic nominee. We want to make sure the seat remains in Democratic hands," he said.

Raymondi is still mulling a possible run for School Committee or City Council. He is expected to make an announcement regarding those seats shortly.

Two other Quincy residents are considering joining the representative race.

Anthony Falco, 28, a lifelong Quincy resident, told the Sun Tuesday that he is "seriously considering" entering the race. "I've gotten a lot of good feedback on my initial discussions," he said.

Falco, of 25 Summer St., has been practicing law in Quincy for nearly three years. Falco, who is the brother-in-law of Councillor Timothy Cahill, has co-chaired Cahill's campaign committee the last six years.

It would be his first run for public office. He said he will make his decision after the special election date has been set.

In addition, Francis "Sandy" Eaton, 53 Quarry St., has inquired about the special election. Eaton, 47, who is a nurse at Quincy Hospital, challenged Cerasoli last year as an Independent.

He said he has begun contacting those who supported him last year. "I'm chopping at the bit. I'm calling supporters and conducting a straw poll and so far the poll is very encouraging.

"I'm not committed but I am seriously interested in running," Eaton said.

Others who are considered to be seriously considering the race include School Committeeman Ron Mariano, Bruce Tobin, a research analyst for the Post Audit and Oversight Bureau; Cheryl Balzano, a senior accountant at State Street Bank; and Atty. Jack McGlone of Weymouth.

The district includes parts of Quincy and Weymouth.

Political observers also say former mayor and councillor Joseph LaRaia and Michael Marshall, son of Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall, may enter the race.

Weymouth Selectman Jack Carey, who was interested in running, had to drop out of contention because he has not lived in the district for one year. Carey recently moved into the district.

City Clerk John Gillis said the special election will cost the city an estimated $23,000. Standard elections cost between $45,000 and $50,000.

Cheney City Council Candidate For Re-election

MICHAEL CHENEY
proponent of the city's curbside recycling program.

"I have made protecting the environment a top priority during my seven years in elected office and I will continue to do everything that is humanly possible to improve the environment."

Cheney has also proposed a number of measures that would raise money for Quincy, such as a city lottery, as well as several measures to cut existing expenses. "I believe that I have demonstrated fiscal responsibility during these difficult times through pushing for the implementation of actions that were adopted and saved thousands of dollars over the past several months."

Cheney, who has served as the council's Ordinance Committee chairman, has pressed for codifying city ordinances. Codifying is a process that will reorganize and update city ordinances to conform with state and federal laws. The process is expected to be completed later this year and will be available to any resident upon request.

"I believe that my candidacy for re-election offers the residents of Quincy experience in environmental affairs, fiscal management, due process of legislative matters, human relations and a candidate who has earned the reputation for doing his homework and one that is willing to do what it takes to get the job done-- someone who is deeply committed to neighborhood issues."

DeCristofaro, Kolson Blast MWRA Officials For $1.1 M In Raises

Councillors Ted DeCristofaro and Peter Kolson blasted Massachusetts Water Resources Authority officials for their "recent insult" to rate payers by handing out $1.1 million in pay raises to MWRA employees.

At a time when most people are having difficulty paying their escalating water and sewer bills, DeCristofaro and Kolson said the salary hikes show that the MWRA is extremely insensitive to the over burdened rate payers. They pointed out many rate payers have lost their jobs due to the slumping economy.

DeCristofaro, who is the council president, represents Ward 2. Kolson represents Ward 1.

The councillors called on MWRA Director Paul Levy to demonstrate "some consideration for the vast majority who are struggling to keep up with their ever-increasing water and sewer bills."

Bills are expected to increase $75 to $485 under the recently approved MWRA budget for FY 92. The $1.1 million pay hike represents a 4.5 percent salary increase for more than 500 MWRA employees, many of whom already earn more than $40,000 per year.

Permits Issued For $413,974 In Wiring

The Quincy Wire Department issued 142 permits for an estimated $413,974 in wiring during May, reports Wire Inspector Thomas Purpura.

The major project for which a permit was issued in May was for a new library for Eastern Nazarene College, 119-121 E. Elm Ave., Wollaston.

Last month, there were 46 certificates of approval to the Massachusetts Electric Company and $5,934 in permit fees.

In addition, there were 403 inspections, 71 defects, 58 inspections and five fire calls.

Tobin Wants MWRA Assessments Held Until Pay Hikes Are Rescinded

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
Rep. Steve Tobin (D-Quincy) has called on the 43 cities and towns in the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority's district to refuse to pay their water and sewer assessments until the MWRA rescinds more than $1.1 million in pay raises.

Tobin and other city officials criticized the secrecy and timing of the raises which were approved by the authority's Board of Directors prior to the Independence Day holiday.

"Nobody asked the rate payers how they felt about the raises. They just did it and hoped we wouldn't notice. That's disgraceful behavior on the part of a public authority that doesn't realize we're in an economic recession," Tobin said.

Tobin said he would introduce a resolution condemning the pay raises to the House during the next informal session. "We believe it is in the best interest of the rate payers whom we represent to withhold from the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority payment against assessments until such time as these pay raises are rescinded," Tobin wrote in the resolution.

The MWRA Board of Directors approved a FY 92 budget which will increase the average cost this year to rate payers by $75 to $485. The average increase of $75 per rate payer family was presented by the MWRA as a necessary cost in the course of funding the Boston Harbor cleanup.

Tobin said the MWRA did not disclose their intention to use a portion of the said rate increase to fund pay a 4.5 percent pay hike amounting to $1.1 million to more than 500 employees, many of whom already earn more than $40,000 per year.

The representative said he believes the MWRA is "out of touch" with the concerns of average rate payers. "People are finding it difficult to pay their bills. It is clearly not the time to ask us to pay more so that employees making $70,000 per year can have a raise."

Tobin said he believes all elected officials in the MWRA district have an obligation to the rate payers to stand up and fight the pay raises. He and Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson will contact the members of "Save the Sixty," a coalition of MWRA communities recently founded by Kolson, to urge all communities to refuse to pay their assessments.

Tobin said if all communities join in the effort, the MWRA will be forced to back down. "This is not an overreaction to the issue. The rate payers are outraged at the disrespect shown by them by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority."

"We have crossed the line of decent behavior and we have no resource but to refuse to pay the raises," he added.

For Sgt. James Fernandez: A Real Stars And Stripes Welcome Home

By JANE ARENA
When Sgt. James Fernandez returned home to Quincy after serving with the Army in Operation Desert Storm, he, like most returning heroes, was greeted by yellow ribbons and the stars and stripes.

But the stars and stripes that greeted Sgt. Fernandez were a little different from most: They were on the flag pole, not just a flag flying from the flag pole, but actually on the flag pole -- painted all the way down the pole by his brother John in honor of his homecoming.

"I thought it was amazing," the 26-year old Sgt. said. "He really did an outstanding job on it."

John, 31, had to construct scaffolding in order to paint the flag pole, which is about as tall as a telephone pole. At the top are white stars painted on a field of blue, and red and white stripes are painted all the way down to the ground.

"It was John's idea to do it," his mother Frances Fernandez said. "It's like a permanent flag."

The Fernandez family certainly has reason to be proud of their returning hero.

Sgt. Fernandez served four months in the Persian Gulf, stationed with his unit in King Khalid Military City where he worked as a radio operator in the command post. He helped his unit to shoot down three scud missiles.

The experience is something he'll always remember, right down to the exact minute.

The first two scuds came in one right after the other on February 21.

"The first warning came in at 17:10 (5:10 p.m.) and at 5:13 there were two missiles in the air and we shot it out of the sky," he said. "Then the second one came in at 16 minutes past the hour and at 18 past the hour we shot it out of the sky...the last one came in on February 24. We picked it up at 12:25 p.m. and at 12:27 we shot it down."

As a radio operator in the command post, James was one of the first to hear scud missile warnings. "We got the first initial messages," he explains, "and then it's our job to sound the alarm so everybody can get to the scud bunkers."

After his brief leave at home in Quincy, Fernandez returned last week to Hanoi, Germany, just outside of Frankfurt, where he has served for three years with an Army Defense Artillery unit.

Kelly Won't Run For Council At-Large Because Of Kolson Ruling

Former Ward 1 City Councillor Leo Kelly has removed himself from the City Council at-large race this year.

Kelly, who several months ago indicated he would run, said he has changed his mind because of a recent State Ethics Committee advisory.

The Advisory Committee told Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson to discontinue his practice of distributing his $10,000 council salary for various projects and programs in his ward to avoid possible conflicts of interest.

Kolson, who is employed by the Quincy Housing Authority, can draw only one salary. He gave up his City Council pay in favor of his larger QHA salary.

Now he has to let the city keep it instead of distributing it.

Kelly also is employed by the Quincy Housing Authority and if elected to the City Council would also have had to make a choice between the two salaries. He too, would have elected to take his bigger QHA pay.

"I knew I would have to give up the City Council salary," Kelly said. "I never have had any problem with that."

"But not being able to disperse the salary for worthy causes takes away the incentive and desire for me to run for the City Council."

"I could have used the $10,000 for positive things in the community -- especially in the environmental field in which I have been actively involved."

"I've thought it over and I'm just not going to get into it. (the at-large race.) I would definitely have run if I could have used the money as I had hoped I would have been able to do."

Kelly's decision leaves the three at-large incumbents -- Tim Cahill, Michael Cheney and Patricia Toland -- with only one challenger at the present time. He is Lou Zagami of Furnace Brook Parkway.

Calls Mini-Mall Idea For Vacant Store 'Nonsensical'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
Last week's Quincy Sun contained an apparent advertisement from Ward 6
City Councillor Thomas Nuttley concerning the re-use of the vacant Best Buy warehouse store at the corner of Quincy Shore Drive and East Squantum Street. According to the advertisement a community meeting is planned in mid-July. One idea mentioned in the advertisement for a mini-mall is nonsensical.

Best Buy couldn't make it at that corner, the mini-mall proposal is just silly campaign banter. In business everything comes down to two things: timing and location and this is neither the time nor the location for a mini-mall.
Such malls depend on heavy foot traffic and foot traffic is a nonentity at this proposed site.

Nobody wants to see property stay vacant but before rushing into any one proposal, it is time to scan the horizon for a host of ideas. The people of Squantum, Marina Bay and North Quincy's Atlantic neighborhood could very much use a supermarket, why not have that proposal assessed for economic viability and community support? Or how about a family style restaurant? Or why not a children's playground like the one recently completed over behind the Squantum School?

All of these ideas make far more sense than the pipedream of a mini-mall.
Hopefully, the mall concept was nothing more than a trial balloon floating in the political atmosphere because I would hate to think there are folks at City Hall who actually believe the idea makes sense for the site and the surrounding neighborhood.

BREAST IS BEST

If you ask any woman who's nursed a baby for a couple of months, she'll tell you at great length what a wonderful experience it is, how close she feels to her child, and how the nutritional benefits stack up. Breast milk is not only easy to digest, but it contains important antibodies which help keep the baby healthy. According to some estimates, breastfed babies suffer less than half as many infections as bottle-fed babies. Breast milk is inexpensive and convenient. Baby's lunch is ready whenever Mom has a chance to sit down.
Babies with a family history of allergies are less likely to develop eczema or other allergic problems on a breast milk diet. There are a few drawbacks, though.
Some mothers find it confining, but Dad can give a supplemental bottle, once nursing is well established. Nursing can continue as long as mother and baby want it.

P.S. Most doctors recommend that nursing moms continue to take their prenatal vitamins while breastfeeding.

Frank Remick's Reaction To Lee

Lee Remick won many accolades as an actress including an Academy Award nomination ("Days of Wine and Roses") and her own star on Hollywood's "Walk of Life."

But, perhaps her finest tribute as an actress was short, sweet and somewhat private.

It came from her father, Frank Remick, late Quincy businessman who owned the well-known but now gone Remick's store in downtown Quincy.

The Quincy born actress had played a trampy-sexy role in one of her early movies and a Quincy friend asked her father for his reaction when he saw it.

Remick smiled and said:
"I thought she was good. I could have spanked her."

A FAVORITE STORY at the Remick store was about the day Miss Remick was mistaken for a shoplifter. The incident was mentioned last week in a newsstory following her death.

But this is the story as it actually happened.

A young high school girl working part-time at the store saw a woman walking around putting clothing and other articles into a shopping bag.

She telephoned upstairs to Bill Draicchio, a Quincy police officer who was working security on a part-time basis.

"Just keep an eye on her but don't do anything until I get there," Draicchio said.

He was down the stairs in a flash. The girl pointed out the woman. Draicchio looked and backed off.
"That's Lee Remick," he told the girl.
"She can have anything in the store."

Miss Remick's son, Matthew Colleran, worked at the store summers and she had stopped by to visit him and her father and while there pick up a few things.

The girl hadn't recognized the actress because she had never seen her in a movie. But she became a fan of her's right there on the spot.

When Miss Remick heard that she had raised the young girl's suspicions by stuffing articles into a shopping bag, she smiled and said to her: "You're doing your job."

Frank Remick laughed when he heard about the incident.

Regular employees of the store got accustomed to seeing Miss Remick strolling through the store on a number of occasions and found her to be "friendly and nice."

LOCAL RESIDENTS WERE among the first to spot Miss Remick's talent when she was still a virtual unknown.

Maybe you were among them.
It was back in the 1950s when she played a supporting role in "Brigadoon" at the South Shore Music Theater.

In those days she was known as "Frank Remick's daughter."

It wasn't too long after that he was known as "Lee Remick's father."

DAN RAYMONDI this week removed himself as a candidate for the state representative seat vacated by Robert Cerasoli to become State Inspector General.

Raymond, who had been mentioned as a potential candidate, said he was not interested and in fairness to other possible candidates wanted them to know so early.

Raymond, who is chairman of the Quincy Democratic City Committee noted:
"My interest in that seat is to get a Democrat elected to it."
Now, what about the city council at-large and school committee races this year?

Raymond is certain to get into one or the other. But which one?

Those close to him feel he has made up his mind and it will be: School Committee.

ROBERT CERASOLI, who has lived a political figure's life for nearly two decades, is now adjusting to a non-political one.

Politics is a no-no now that he has been named State Inspector General.
So, Cerasoli has already resigned from the Ward 3 Democratic City Committee.

Cerasoli notes that as Inspector General he cannot be politically active, support, endorse, or contribute to political candidates in any way.

But, with a salary of $58,000, staying away from the political scene, really can't be too great a sacrifice.

INCUMBENT Peter Kolson has a challenger for the Ward 1 City Council seat. Gail Glover, 36, of Captains Walk, Germantown, took out nomination papers Tuesday.

A FUNDRAISER
FOR Charles Phelan, seeking his third term as Ward 5 city councillor, will be held Thursday, July 18, 7 to 9 p.m. at Amelia's, Marina Bay, Squantum. Tickets are $20 per person, $30 per couple.

RETIREED QUINCY
HIGH School teacher Donald MacDonald (one of our favorites) sends along this observation and a report on a friend:

"At the age of 82 I have little desire and even less energy to sample life in the fast lane but this gives me more time to contemplate the great mysteries of life."

"One such mystery continues to perplex me. Why, as I grow older, does my hair grow more sparsely on my head but with renewed vigor and vitality in my nose and ears?"

"My only consolation comes from the words of my friend, John Chrusciel, retired Head of the Science Department at Quincy High School. John lost the hair on top of his head at a comparatively early age but was consoled by an article which he read in the Science Digest which stated that baldness was caused by the absence of fatty tissue between the skull and the scalp. "Just as I've always stated! Only fat heads have hair," he stated to his hairy friends.

"John is now home from the hospital after recent heart surgery. I'm sure that his friends, once they know this, will keep him in their prayers."

45 Acres Near Marina Bay

Squantum Point Park Opened

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Hailed as a cooperative effort by the MDC, MWRA and the city, a host of state and local officials as well as several dozen residents recently joined in celebrating the opening of Squantum Point Park.

The 45-acre park, located near the Marina Bay community, features 10 acres of landscaped grounds, parking lot and a lighted wooden pier. The pier was constructed by the MWRA as part of the water transportation system to Deer Island for Boston Harbor workers.

After the cleanup, the 240 by 20-foot timber pier, which is attached to a 200 by 20-foot floating dock, will become part of the MDC and will be open to the public. It can accommodate vessels of all shapes and sizes up to approximately 200 tons.

The cleanup is expected to be complete in 1999.

During peak construction years of the Boston Harbor project, the parking lot will accommodate a maximum of 600 worker vehicles during a single shift. The landscaping of the parking lot was designed in conformance with MDC park standards.

The remaining 35 acres will be maintained in its natural condition as a passive park for fishing, bicycling and bird watching. The park is open to the public on a dawn to dusk schedule consistent with other MDC parks.

In May, 1989, the MDC took the park property by eminent domain from Boston Edison. With the help of the MWRA, the MDC purchased the property for $4.6 million. The purchase price includes the $1.7 million for the pier, landscaping, parking lot and the access road.

MDC Commissioner Ilyas Bhatti said the park is the result of cooperation from MWRA and city officials, legislators, citizens and activists.

Referring to the MWRA as the MDC's "sister agency," Bhatti said, "Our interests converged on the point where we said, 'we are both working for the environment, we are looking for the enhancement of the environment, let's join in and try to develop this park.'

"I think it is a result of those collective efforts that we are standing and looking at this beautiful park."

Sen. Paul Harold called the joint effort a "unique teaming up of Quincy's favorite agency, the MDC, and the city's not so favorite agency, the MWRA."

"But with the eminent domain power of one, and the money of the other, we were able to do two things," the senator said. "First, meet some short-term needs which is the construction out at Deer Island, and the long-term needs in guaranteeing this beautiful site be maintained for many generations of people from Quincy."

A TIMBER PIER, measuring 240 by 20 feet, can accommodate vessels of all shapes and sizes up to approximately 200 tons at the recently dedicated Squantum Point Park. The pier, which was part of a $1.7 million contract, is attached to a 200 by 20-foot floating dock.

Harold also recognized former Gov. Michael Dukakis for supporting the park project. "This was not an easy project to put together. We had the money but that doesn't mean we can always do the job," he said.

Morrissey recognized former MDC Commissioner and Quincy resident William Geary for devising and pursuing the Commission's open space agenda. From that list, Squantum Point Park became a high priority for the MDC.

"A number of people were concerned that this one peninsula would be overdeveloped and we fought to take this and save this for public access and I think that has been one of the most enjoyable parts of the job," Morrissey said. "This is something that long after I'm gone will be here... That pier is built to last."

Turning to Executive Director Paul Levy, Morrissey then said, "We criticize (the MWRA) for certain activities and we'll probably continue to do that, Paul, but you should also be commended for the work you've done here."

Levy noted the authority recycled 43,000 tons of concrete, asphalt, stockpiled gravel and construction debris--remnants of an abandoned naval air base at Squantum Point, as part of the park facility. The recycled product was used to create a base for the new parking lot.

By recycling materials instead of importing new materials, the authority eliminated 3,400 truck trips through Quincy over the course of the project.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Della Chiesa Passes Up Congress To Run For State Rep Post

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa decided not to seek the Republican nomination for Congress.

Della Chiesa said he had consulted with friends and, although some urged him to run for Congress, most of them felt he would be of greater service to Quincy as state rep and mayor.

Besides, he said, City Clerk John Gillis had informed him that it would cost the City of Quincy about $30,000 to hold a special election for mayor if he should go to Washington.

HOSPITAL DILEMMA

City Hospital officials were faced with a dilemma in the construction of a new nursery.

They were told that unless the city goes ahead with the project the federal government will withhold the $35,353 balance of $250,000 used to build the new wing that opened in February.

Architect Paul A. Coletti estimated that the nursery would cost between $80,000 and $100,000 and City Auditor Alexander Smith said the city has only $40,000 available.

Meanwhile, Mayor Della Chiesa estimated that hospital receipts will run a half million dollars more than last year, thanks to the opening of the new wing.

FIREFIGHTER HONORED

Quincy Firefighter Waldo E. Lagerquist received a commendation for his action in reviving by mouth-to-mouth resuscitation a youth who had been struck by lightning while standing under a tree on Washington St.

Father And Mother In Local Theater

Lee Remick Got A Good Start To Stardom Here In Her Hometown

It was almost inevitable that Quincy-born Lee Remick would become an actress—and a good one.

In a way—a bigger way, she followed in her footsteps of her father and mother and became acquainted with the stage through them.

Her father, the late Frank E. Remick, is better remembered as the owner of the former Remick's store in downtown Quincy and as a civic leader.

But in his younger days both he and Lee's mother, Patricia, were members of the Quincy Community Players, a talented amateur theatrical group that staged plays throughout the city. Founded in 1927, the group was in existence 45 years.

Doris Oberg, former president of the Quincy Historical Society in which she is still very active, was also a member of the Community Players and a close friend of Frank and Patricia Remick who were then living on Stoney Brae Rd. where Lee Remick grew up.

Frank and Patricia appeared in a number of the Community Players productions—he in small roles and she in major and sometimes leading roles. She also directed.

Mrs. Oberg remembers them together in "Candle Light" presented Oct. 21, 1936 at the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

Patricia Remick directed "Ready Made Family" which was presented to women's clubs, schools and various city groups in the spring of 1938. Mrs. Oberg appeared in that play.

Mrs. Remick also has the lead in "Taming of the Shrew" in 1938 in which her husband also appeared.

So, according to Mrs. Oberg, it was no great surprise that Lee Remick would become an actress and a star. Acting ran in the family, she notes.

After the Remicks separated and later divorced, Patricia went to New York where she continued acting and appeared in television commercials.

Lee went to live with her mother in the early 1950s when she was 14 or 15, according to Mrs. Oberg.

Mr. Oberg and her daughter, Josephine, visited Mrs. Remick and Lee in New York while the latter was enrolled in an acting school.

Lee, however, remained close to her father and often visited him, sometimes at the Remick's store where employees remember her as being "friendly and nice."

Patricia Remick still lives in New York.

Apparently Lee Remick's ill health started at least two years ago.

"I called Pat two years ago," notes Mrs. Oberg, "and she told me that Lee had had surgery. But she said 'things look good.'"

Mrs. Oberg recalls seeing Miss Remick in "Annie Get Your Gun" in summer stock in Stockbridge. And, on the stage in Boston.

"She was the most appreciative of her fans. I can see her now patiently signing autographs at Stockbridge."

How does Mrs. Oberg remember Lee Remick?

"She was very sweet, unassuming, very beautiful, very proper, very lovely, gracious and had a tremendous amount of

A memorial service for Miss Remick was held Tuesday morning at the Westwood Mortuary in Westwood, Calif.

She died July 2 in her Brentwood, Calif., home of cancer after a two year battle with kidney and lung cancer. Her family was at her side.

Her career spanned 37 years, beginning with her debut on Broadway in the play, "Be Your Age," and ending with her stage performance in mid-summer opposite Tom Skerritt in "Love Letters" at the Canon Theater in Beverly Hills.

She won an Academy Award nomination for her performance as an alcoholic in "Days of Wine and Roses" with Jack Lemmon.

After growing up in Quincy, she lived in New York and had a home on Cape Cod. She attended the Hewett School and Barnard College in New York City and studied ballet at the Swoboda Ballet School and with Charles Wiedman in New York.

Miss Remick is survived by her husband of 21 years, producer Kip Gowans; a son, Matthew Remick Colleran of Los Angeles; a daughter, Kate Colleran Sullivan of New York City; two stepdaughters, Justine Gowans Solly and Nicola Gowans, both of London; and her mother, Patricia Packard of New York City. She was divorced from producer-director William Colleran in 1969.

Contributions can be made to the American Cancer Society, 247 Commonwealth Ave., Boston, or the National Institute of Health, Bethesda, Md., 20815.

Maria, Rene Rancourt To Open Summerfest Concert Series July 17

This year's Summerfest concert series at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheatre will begin Wednesday, July 17 with a performance by Rene and Maria Rancourt.

All performances will be held Wednesday from 7 to 9 p.m.

Other shows scheduled to be held are:

Soul Sensations, July 24; Thompson Brothers, July 31; Yankee Jack, Aug. 7; Sound Investment, Aug. 14; Navy Show Band, Aug. 21; Canvass Sky, Aug. 28; and Army Show Band, Sept. 4.

This is the ninth year of Summerfest. According to Joseph LaRaia, president of the Quincy-South Shore Cultural Commission, the concerts were almost cancelled this year because of cutbacks of private and public financial support.

"The appeal of the concerts by people of all ages groups has sparked businesses and organizations and political leaders to continue a tradition that began its roots in the summer of 1983 in front of City Hall and to its present location at Merrymount Park adjacent to Adams Field," LaRaia said.

The outdoor theatre was built with federal C.E.T.A. funds in 1977 and finished off by volunteers in the fall of 1984 with an official grand opening featuring Quincy-born actress, the late Ruth Gordon, in attendance.

The concerts draw from surrounding communities as well as from Quincy. Concerts are covered live by Quincy Continental Cablevision and radio station WJDA. Some concerts have drawn up to 1,000 people.

Cancellation notices are reported on WJDA.

The program is sponsored by the Quincy-South Shore Cultural Commission, a non-profit organization. The program is staffed by volunteers and funded through private contributions and sponsorships with supportive services provided by the city of Quincy.

It is also supported in part by the Massachusetts Arts Lottery administered by the Quincy Arts Council.

The commission welcomes donations to fund the programs.

... JUST FOR TODAY

Just for today, I will try to strengthen my mind reading something that requires effort, thought and concentration.

Just for today, I will do somebody a good turn and not get found out.

Just for today, I will do a task that needs to be done but which I have been putting off. I will do it as an exercise of will power.

Just for today, I will try to exert patience with people and things and especially have patience with myself.

Just for today, I will look upon the present as the past of my future.

Just for today, I will aim to praise not criticize.

Just for today, I will do all the good I can willingly and "save my indignation by thinking pleasantly."

Just for today, I will be unafraid. Especially, I will not be afraid to be happy, to enjoy what is beautiful, to love and to believe that those I love, love me ...

Legion Baseball

Morrisette Win Streak Snapped By Braintree

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Morrisette Legion baseball team had its seven-game winning streak snapped Monday night, losing to Braintree, 4-2, but still holds a slim lead in Zone 6 with a 9-2 record.

Meanwhile, Wollaston won three of its last four games to improve to 6-5, topping Quincy, 12-6, Monday and still has a slim chance of finishing among the top three teams and qualifying for the state playoffs.

Morrisette, second-place Randolph, Wollaston, Braintree and Weymouth are in the running for the top three places with Morrisette having a good chance of winning its second straight zone title.

The Zone 6 teams will compete in a 12-team playoff with Zone 10 and Zone 9 teams. That group will be reduced to three, who will participate in the eight-team Legion state championship series in Lynn.

Morrisette faced Wollaston last night (Wednesday), will play at Holbrook Friday night at 8:30, will host Canton Monday at 8:30 at Adams and will be home to Quincy next Wednesday at 8:30 at Adams.

Wollaston played at Randolph Tuesday, faced Morrisette last night (Wednesday), will host Weymouth Saturday night at 8 at Adams and Braintree Sunday night at 8 at Adams.

Braintree scored a run against Morrisette in the first inning Monday night on a hit, sacrifice and two wild pitches.

Morrisette scored in the third to tie the score on singles by Noel DiBona and Robbie Kane and an RBI single by Gary Rawdon.

Braintree scored three in the fourth, putting together three hits, a walk and two errors. This was the only bad inning for Rawdon as he suffered his first loss of the season after four wins. He allowed only five hits, struck out eight and walked two.

Morrisette tried to rally in the seventh when DiBona led off with a walk, Kane reached on a fielder's choice and went to second on a wild pitch. He scored on Mike Baylis' double but that was all it could do as the last two batters grounded out.

Morrisette outthit Braintree, 8-5, but stranded eight runners. Baylis had two hits, Serge Belcastro a single and double and Pat Clifford, Kane, Rawdon and DiBona a hit apiece.

Earlier Morrisette rolled over Weymouth, 11-1, scoring seven runs in the fifth inning as it sent 11 men to the plate and combined six hits with three walks.

Baylis was the winning pitcher, giving up one unearned run, four hits, struck out five and walked only one in improving to 3-0.

Kane paced the 14-hit attack with a double, single and two walks, scored three runs and drove in two. Tom Balzano went 3-for-4 and drove in two runs. Baylis had a double and single and two RBIs, Clifford and Belcastro each had two hits, Rawdon had a two-run double, Adam Calvert a double and Mark Kelliher a single.

In Wollaston's win over Quincy Monday, Duane Holmes started pitching but his arm tightened up and he was relieved by Mark Taylor.

Chad McMahon, Fred Regan and Pat Gallagher had three hits each, including a double by Gallagher and Chris Cunio and Steve Loud had three apiece, including a double by Loud.

Wollaston twice defeated Holbrook, 5-1 and 3-2, and lost to Milton, 5-0.

Scott Dunn pitched a one-hitter in the 5-1 win over Holbrook, struck out eight and walked five in improving to 2-1. Dave Gamsby had two doubles and a single and an RBI. Marc Swirbalus had two singles and two RBIs and Loud and Dunn had hits.

In the 3-2 win McMahon pitched all the way, allowing only three hits and striking out six.

Wollaston scored a run in the fourth as Chris Cunio tripled and scored on a fielder's choice. It added two in the sixth when Regan walked and scored on Loud's triple and Loud scored the winning run on McMahon's sacrifice fly.

Bob Fitzpatrick, Jeff Craig and Gamsby also had hits.

Wollaston was held to five hits by Milton, one each by Cunio, Gallagher, McMahon, Craig and Dunn. Taylor was the losing pitcher.

Babe Ruth

Tirrell Fires No-Hitter As Barry's Bounces Back

Barry's Deli, which won its division title in the Babe Ruth League last year, has had rough sledding this season but won two games last week, highlighted by Jeff Tirrell's no-hitter in a 19-0 breeze over Local 1139.

Tirrell struck out eight and walked only one. He was backed up by excellent defense, led by Danny Duncan, who had a fine game behind the plate.

Sean Kennerson led the 15-hit attack with four hits. Tirrell had three as did Tom Pepdjonovic, Jim Conroy had two and Duncan and Kenny Ledwak one each.

Ron McGann, Jim Goldrick, Paul Greeley, Roy Rose, Steve Finn and Billy Manning played strong defense. Rookie Neil Kiley made a fine running catch in left field to preserve the no-hitter.

Barry's also shocked the Police Club, 2-1, with Greg Santoro stealing home in the last inning with the winning run.

This year Barry's has taken the lead in almost every game only to fall apart late in the game. This game was the exception.

The teams battled to a scoreless tie until the final inning when the Police took the lead in the top of the inning.

McGann pitched four strong innings, giving up four hits. Duncan finished up and allowed two hits and struck out five over the last three innings.

Kennerson again led the attack with two hits and Pepdjonovic, Tirrell, Ledwak, Goldrick and McGann also had hits. Santoro made an outstanding catch in left field.

Scott Kelley pitched well for the Police and had two hits as did Steve McDougall. Mark Thibault and Chris Conlon had one hit apiece.

The Elks stopped the Police's 12-game winning streak with a thrilling 1-0 victory as Pat Bryan pitched a three-hitter and walked only one. The Elks led the American League and the Police Club leads the National League, each with a 12-4 record.

Bryan and Dave Cooper had the clutch hits for the Elks. Cooper played well behind the plate and Pat Connolly, Bob Johnston and Mark Cahill also played well.

Golden Print improved its record to 11-5 with victories over Bryan Post and the Police.

In a 6-1 win over Bryan Post, Dave Reinhart pitched a three-hitter, struck out 12 and walked two.

Chris Klier had two hits, drove in a run and scored one. Jamie Schatzel and Jeff Russell had two hits each and Kevin Ross and Craig Pinkham one apiece.

In a 4-1 decision over the Police, Reinhart pitched another three-hitter, struck out 13 and walked three in lowering his ERA to 1.62 and improving his record to 4-1.

Pinkham and Steve Miller had two hits each and Schatzel and John Riley had key hits.

The standings:

American League: Elks, 12-4; Golden Print, 11-5; VFW, 7-9; Firefighters, 8-9; Barry's Deli, 5-11; Houghs Neck Legion, 3-13.

National League: Police, 12-4; Sons of Italy, 10-5; Granite City, 11-6; Morrisette Legion, 8-9; Poland Spring, 6-9-1; Local 1139, 4-13.

Bortolotti Team Sweeps Broom Classic

For the second year in a row Al Bortolotti captained his team of Todd Smith, Chris "C.J." Bell and Rick Newcomb to sweep the Broom Classic Golf Tournament at Presidents Golf Course with a 6-under-par 64.

Eleven teams tied with a score of 65 in the closest finish in tournament history. After the tiebreaker system it was determined that the team of Mike Donoghue, Mike Conlon, Paul Preziosi and Chris Butler was second while the team of Paul Donoghue, Paul Radzik, Brett Buckley and Don Comis finished third.

No team was over par in the tournament that saw 11 teams within three shots of each other. The team of Sam Abraham, Dave Robinson, Kevin Moran and Dave Comis needed just two pars on the 17th and 18th holes to win the tourney but bogeyed both holes to finish eighth.

Prizes were awarded by tournament director Brian Buckley to the top six teams and the following individuals:

Mike Donoghue, longest drive; Ged Phelan, longest putt; Ged Dahlquist, Paul Donoghue, Todd Smith, George McCall, Charlie Bergeron and George Peachey, closest to the pins on par-3 holes.

Peachey's tee shot fell just eight inches short of the 18th hole. Had he aced the hole he would have won a new Buick Skylark from South Shore Buick. At 73, he was the oldest competitor in the tourney.

Proceeds were donated to the Quincy Family/Youth Services Group Home for Girls.

New Committee Formed To Focus On Refurbishing Wollaston Children's Park

A new committee has been formed which will focus on planning and reconstructing the Quincy park area known as the Collins Rest a While, announces Michelle Lydon, director of the Lydon-Russell Funeral Home.

The committee, called the Quincy Park Improvement Committee, will be composed of volunteer Quincy residents dedicated to the concept of planning and improving the play environment of Quincy's children.

"An investment in our children is an investment in our future," said Lydon, who is serving as the committee's chairperson. "The future of Quincy is dependent upon the quality of life of our children."

Collins Rest a While is a municipal play area located at the intersections of Hancock St. and Southern Artery. It is one of the city's most heavily utilized children's play area. With recent downturns in municipal expenditures, the area is in much need of repair and renewal. Much of play equipment is broken and needs attention.

The committee is planning to utilize present part assets that lend themselves to repair. However, the most exciting part of the new plan is the new construction of a wooden children's entertainment park called Wood Park.

The park, which will extend beyond the boundaries of the present children's play area, will be composed of structures constructed with pressure treated wood. The area will include a cabin, swing sets, twin slides, jungle bars, a toddler's sand boxes and wooden ships.

The most unique aspect is the children's water jet which will provide children with a cooling spray under which to play during the summer months.

The committee will provide all funding from private sources.

Committee members include:

Donna Buccheri, Ronald Ceriani, Rose Cristiani, Deborah Finn, Maureen Grindley, Lynn Houghton, Janet Lydon, John J. Lydon Jr., Michelle Lydon, Richard Meade, Chuck Phelan, Patricia Toland, Stephanie Veneto and Claire McGillicuddy.

The committee's first meeting will be held July 18 at 8 p.m.

Cheryl Balzano, Judith Balzano Not Related

A story in the July 3rd edition of The Quincy Sun mistakenly identified Cheryl Balzano of Quincy as the daughter of Judith Balzano of Quincy.

Cheryl Balzano is not the daughter of Judith Balzano and is not related to her in any way. Cheryl is the daughter of Anthony Balzano, a Quincy police officer.

Cheryl was listed as a potential candidate for the special election which will fill Rep. Robert Cerasoli's seat in the Third Norfolk District. Cerasoli resigned to become the state's new inspector general.

In the story, Cheryl was identified as the daughter of Judith Balzano, who challenged Cerasoli for his seat in the Third Norfolk District last November. The information came from City Hall officials.

Balzano, 29, a lifetime Quincy Point resident, lives at 70 Arnold St. A senior accountant at State Street Bank in Quincy, Balzano told the Sun she is "seriously considering" running for the vacant seat as an Independent.

It would be her first run for public office.

MWRA To Meet In Quincy On Harbor Cleanup Funding

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson announces a meeting will be held in Quincy within a few weeks regarding the MWRA's funding for the Boston Harbor cleanup project.

A recent meeting of the 43 cities and towns currently being assessed by the MWRA was "a very positive introductory exchange," Kolson said.

Future meetings will be planned and selectmen, councillors, mayors and state representatives are invited in order to form a strong voice in opposition to the dramatic increases and financial burden being placed on the 43 communities which receive water and or sewer services by the MWRA.

"Hopefully, this week lead to a more equitable method of funding a project which is estimated to be in the area of six to seven billion dollars," Kolson said. The councillor said now is the time to deal with the 1992-95 assessments since those are expected to be the top billing periods as related to the overall cost of the harbor cleanup project.

first named the Quincy Business Voice Association, has been organized to provide a vehicle of representation for the business community, and to strengthen the tax base for the betterment of both residents and businesses of Quincy.

The owners feel the business community is not being treated fairly when it comes to allocating the share of the municipal tax burden.

In March, the City Council voted 8-1 to hike the residential tax rate 54 cents up to $10.72 and the commercial, industrial and personal property rate $1.12 up to $2.02. Residential property owners will pay 60 percent and business 40 percent of the $69.5 million tax levy in FY 92.

The group believes the city's tax classification is tilted politically in favor of residential property owners at the expense of business. But in the long run, they say, residents are going to lose out, too, as small businesses are forced to close their door and local jobs dry up.

Loren Strout, one of the prime movers of the group, has proposed that the organization change its name to the Quincy Business Coalition. "It has become clear to me that what we are striving to do is to create a coalition of businesses and business groups, to establish a united and aggressive front against the shabby treatment of the business community by our city government," Strout said.

Strout's family owns the Presidents' City Motel and Winfield Gift Emporium.

At Monday's meeting, members will vote on the organization's by-laws. The by-laws include sections on membership, rights of members, meeting schedule, executive board, committees, officers, dissolution, amendments and parliamentary rules.

As presently written, membership is open to an individual who supports the organization's stated purpose and pays dues set by the executive board. Membership applications must be approved by a majority of the executive board.

The organization plans to hold four quarterly meetings, of which one will be an annual meeting and the other three regular meetings. Additional meetings may be called by the president, according to the current by-laws.

that he believes the next chief should have. "I'm looking for those characteristics that are good for a chief," he said, adding leadership and experience are important.

He also said the fact that Walsh scored 11 points higher than Gorman "is a plus for him."

After the interviews are completed and the city receives the new Civil Service list, Sheets will make the appointment. He does not expect to receive the list for another six weeks.

"I don't anticipate the appointment will be made before the first of September because I don't think we'll have the list before then. We have to be notified by Civil Service that the list exists. We then must then file formally for that list and then they must send it out.

"My experience has been that it takes about four weeks to create a list from the test and another two weeks to get it here when we ask for it. Technically, you can't make the appointment until you get a list."

Gorman and Walsh received their grades last week in the mail.

LEGAL NOTICE

CITY OF QUINCY
IN COUNCILORDER NO. 280

June 27, 1991

Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Quincy, that the revised ordinances of the City of Quincy, 1976, as amended, are further amended upon the recommendation of the Commissioner of Public Health. In Chapter 13, Article IV, ADD THE FOLLOWING:

Section Regulation of Tanning Facilities/Units

Section 1: Rationale: Tanning Facilities are offered to residents in Communities throughout the country with increasing frequency in a form of sole proprietary establishments and/or through use of a tanning unit within a health club and/or hairdressing salon. Such tanning facilities exist in Quincy.

Overexposure to ultraviolet radiation through natural sunlight and use of a tanning device may cause eye and skin injuries as well as allergic reactions. Repeated exposure may cause chronic damage to the skin in the form of wrinkling, dryness, bruising of the skin and skin cancer. The failure to use protective eyewear while using a tanning device may result in severe burns or longterm injury to the eyes. Individuals using certain cosmetics or taking specific medications, who are exposed to ultraviolet radiation, may experience abnormal skin sensitivity and reactions.

The Massachusetts legislature recently passed a statute, Chapter 111, Section 207-214 which requires local health departments/boards to license all tanning facilities in their community by July 1, 1991.

Therefore, pursuant to the provisions of Chapter 111, Section 31 and 31C of the Massachusetts General Laws, the City of Quincy adopts the following ordinance which is designed to protect the health of residents in the City. This ordinance shall include all requirements of the state law.

Section 2 Legal Significance:

This regulation requires that no access shall be granted to a tanning device in the City of Quincy until the facility has been granted an annual license from the Health Department. The license may be revoked for failure to comply with a written order to correct the violation, so stated within this ordinance and so noted during an inspection. An appeal process exists.

Section 3: Definitions:

a. "Tanning Facility" shall mean any place at which exposure to ultra-violet radiation is made available to the public for a fee and aesthetic purposes except: hospitals, physicians offices, medical clinics and private residential properties.

b. "Tanning Device" shall mean any equipment used for tanning the skin that emits electromagnetic radiation with wavelengths in the air between two hundred and four hundred nanometers, including but not limited to a tanning booth, tanning bed or sunlamp which includes high pressure tanning lamp. Tanning devices shall also include any accompanying equipment including, but not limited to protective eye-wear, timers and handrails."

c. "Tanning Booths" - shall refer to any enclosed or semi-enclosed structure which is designed to accommodate one person in a standing position. The booth provides radiation consisting of electromagnetic waves through use of ultraviolet lamps or bulbs which produce ultraviolet radiation in wavelength intervals of 180 to 400 nanometers.

d. "Tanning Beds" shall mean a bed covered with an acrylic sheet upon which an individual lies and lowers the top enclosure over the body. Ultraviolet radiation is provided through the use of lamps or bulbs located in both the lower and upper components of the bed.

e. "Exposure Time" shall mean the amount of time per visit and number of visits during which an individual is exposed to ultraviolet radiation to produce a tanning effect.

Section 4: Implementation Requirements:

a. A knowledgeable operator shall be present at all times to assist the customer and to provide sanitized protection eyewear and towels.

b. The tanning device shall be protected so that the interior temperature does not exceed 100°F and timer shall have an accuracy of plus or minus ten percent.

c. The tanning facility shall provide every customer with a written statement of warning and post such warning in a conspicuous place wherever the device is used. The state shall include the information as follows: "Danger: Ultraviolet Radiation - follow instructions -- (1) avoid frequent or lengthy exposure. As with natural sunlight, exposure to a sunlamp may cause eye skin injuries and allergic reactions. Repeated exposures may cause chronic damage as wrinkling, dryness, fragility, bruising of skin and skin cancer. (2) wear protective eyewear. -- Failure to do so may result in severe burns or long term injury to the eye. -- (3) Ultraviolet radiation from sunlamps aggravates the effects of the sun -- Do Not Sunbathe before or after exposure to ultraviolet radiation. -- (4) Consult a physician before using a sunlamp if you are taking medication, have a history of skin problems or believe you are especially sensitive to sunlight as exposure to ultraviolet radiation may cause abnormal or increased skin sensitivity or burning. Pregnant women or women on birth control pills who use a tanning device may develop discolored skin. (5) If you do not tan in the sun you will not tan from use of a tanning device. It does not provide substantial protective base against the effects of the sun.

d. All tanning lamps shall be surrounded by physical barriers to prevent a person from being cut, shocked, burned or otherwise injured by falling into or bumping against the lamp. At no time shall the temperature of the tanning device exceed 100° fahrenheit.

e. Doors to tanning booths shall open outwardly and be easily opened from the inside. Doors shall be capable of being opened from the outside in case of emergency.

f. All booths shall be wired in conformance with the Massachusetts Electrical Code and other applicable standards.

g. The operator shall follow the manufacturers operating instructions for correct exposure times for each unit.

Specific Operator Requirements:

a. One operator from each facility shall be required to attend any tanning sessions provided by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health and, in turn, follow the department's requirements for training of other operators in the establishment. Such training shall include but not be limited to: Knowledge of the tanning process, skin type and safe tanning schedule, and proper sanitation practices within the facility.

b. Operators shall screen potential clients to determine if taking medications including but not limited to: tranquilizers, diuretics, antibiotics, high blood pressure medication and birth control pills.

c. If using medications, have a history of skin problems or believe they are especially sensitive to sunlight, operators shall advise clients to consult with their physicians before using a tanning device.

d. Operators shall implement the establishment's policy requiring persons fourteen years of age to seventeen years of age inclusive not to use a tanning device without the prior written consent of a parent or legal guardian.

e. Operators shall implement the establishment's policy requiring that no person under age fourteen shall use a tanning device unless accompanied by a parent or guardian.

f. Operators shall send written reports of an injury or complaint of injury to the health department.

Sanitization Requirements:

a. All client contact surfaces shall be thoroughly sanitized with an E.P.A. Approved and registered sanitizing agent after each use.

b. Bathrooms must be clean and sanitary, provide single-service towels, provide soap through a dispensing unit and a trash receptacle.

c. The number of bathrooms provided shall comply with all State Plumbing Code and Department of Public Health regulations for tanning facilities.

d. Separate changing rooms shall be provided for males/females utilizing the facility if such units are not designed with their own private changing space. Such areas must be maintained in a clean and sanitary manner.

Section 5: Enforcement

a. No access shall be granted to a tanning device until the facility has been granted a license from the Health Department. A license is good for one year from the date of issue.

b. The Health Department shall inspect each tanning facility within 30 days of licensure and every 6 months thereafter; (December 31 to December 31st annually following the initial licensing on July 1, 1991.)

c. The Health Department may revoke a license for failure to comply with a written order after seven days. An appeal of the revocation is made to the Department of Public Health.

d. Violations are punishable by a fine of $200.00

Section 6: Severability

a. If any provision of this regulation is declared invalid or unenforceable, the other provisions shall not be affected thereby.

Section 7: Effective Date

a. This regulation shall take effect thirty (30) days after final approval of this ordinance.

Police Checking Suspects In QHA Rent Collector Robbery

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Quincy police are checking out several possible suspects in Monday's armed robbery of a Quincy Housing Authority rent collector.

Rent collector William Corcoran was robbed Monday at about 11:30 a.m. outside the Pagnano Towers senior citizens housing complex on Curtis Avenue.

A lone gunman pointed a .38 caliber pistol at Corcoran and stole an envelope containing more than $4,600 in cash plus an unspecified amount in checks.

A police spokesman described the robber as a white male, 5'8" tall with a thin build, in his late 40's or early 50's, with dark hair and a grubby beard and mustache. The robber was wearing a red lumberjack type jacket and dungarees. He was also spotted wearing a t-shirt and white baseball cap.

The thief ordered Corcoran out of his car which he also took and drove away. Police recovered the car nearby Tuesday morning and are checking it for fingerprints.

John Cattaneo, assistant director of the QHA said the exact amount stolen will not be known until the authority completes a review of tenants receipts.

Cattaneo said he believes the QHA's policy of accepting cash payments will change.

"We have never had a problem. But the way things are going these days I guess it was inevitable," he said.

Cattaneo said the QHA has hired a police detail for its collections for the time being.

Bush Wreath To Commemorate John Quincy Adams' Birthday

A wreath from President George Bush will be placed on the tomb of President John Quincy Adams in a ceremony today (Thursday) at 12:15 p.m. The tomb is located in the crypt at United First Parish Church (Unitarian), "Church of the Presidents," 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center, opposite City Hall.

The ceremony will commemorate the 224th birthday anniversary of President John Quincy Adams, sixth president of the United States, who was born July 11, 1767, son of President John Adams and Abigail Adams

The wreath will be presented on behalf of President Bush by Commander Floyd Dunphy, U.S. Navy Reserve Center, Quincy. The U.S. Navy Color Guard from the South Weymouth Naval Air Station will present the colors.

Mayor James Sheets and Dr. Sheldon Bennett, minister of United First Parish Church, will deliver brief remarks. Other elected officials are expected to be present. The public is invited and encouraged to attend.

The presenting of presidential wreaths at the tombs of deceased Presidents on their birth date anniversaries is an annual event begun in 1966 under President Lyndon Johnson.

Each year in Quincy, ceremonies are arranged by the U.S. Navy, United First Parish Church and the city on the birth dates of the two hometown Presidents, John Adams on October 30 and John Quincy Adams on July 11. Both Presidents were strong advocates for the U.S. Navy.

said the shortfall could range from $1 million to $4 million.

"If we have to make further cuts, there will be layoffs. We no longer have the capability of cutting the budget without extensive layoffs. The positions are filled so now you're going to cut real people," the mayor said.

As a budgetary rule of thumb, 33 jobs can be eliminated for every $1 million.

"The problem is we do not yet know how many million we will have to cut," Sheets said. "Some departments you can't cut because to cut a person is to cut a department. We'll try to be as fair and equitable in the cutting process as you can be."

"Your big departments are fire, police and schools and so you know if you have to cut $3 million, the lion's share is coming out of those three places."

The mayor has instructed Foy to gather all the pertinent fiscal information so that he can begin making budget decisions next year.

"We had hoped the receipts would be higher, that's what really hurts us. The decline in receipts for FY 91 is as devastating as $2.1 million (further reduction) in local aid. We could be looking at having to make up four million dollars."

Historic Quincy

A Tourist Guide

City of Quincy, Massachusetts

Office of the Mayor

Welcome to Historic Quincy

Quincy, Massachusetts is a city rich in history and as the Mayor of this wonderful city it gives me a great deal of pleasure to welcome you to the City of Presidents.

This administration and the citizens of Quincy continue to acknowledge our wealth of history and our heritage. Within the City's boundaries are many important historical sites: the Adams Academy (site of the birthplace of John Hancock), the Adams Houses (birthplaces of the first and sixth Presidents of the United States), the Adams Mansion (the summer White House of the Adams' family, the "Church of the Presidents" (First Parish Church) where two Presidents are buried, the Dorothy Quincy Home, the Josiah Quincy Homestead are but a few of the important sites. While in the City you should also try to visit the Hancock Cemetery, the Abigail Adams Cairn (where Abigail Adams with her children, Abby, age 10, and John Quincy, age 8, watched the burning of Charlestown during the battle of Breed's Hill), the First Productive Iron Works, the First Commercial Railway and Moswetuset Hummock and, of course, old City Hall, built of famed Quincy granite in 1844.

Hundreds of years ago the first Europeans settled in what is now Quincy and even now the City is home to a new wave of immigrants. For 100 of those years Quincy has been a city changing from a small trading post to a city of almost 89,000.

Through the pages of this historic issue you will be able to read about the many places and men and women that play significant roles in our City and our nation and continue to do so, you will learn why our City is QUIN-ZEE and not Quin-see.

Most of the historic sites are within walking distance of each other and are fine examples of the heritage Quincy has preserved for our visitors and citizens.

The City of Quincy and its citizens welcome you to our fine City and we hope that you will find your visit to be a rewarding and memorable learning experience and that you will come back again.

Sincerely,

JAMES A. SHEETS
MAYOR

After Painstaking Renewal Project

John Adams Birthplace 'As It Was'

The birthplace of John Adams, second president of the United States, now looks like it did when he and his parents, Deacon John and Susanna lived there.

It took on that "as it was" look after a painstaking six-year reconstruction project.

Visitors to the John Adams Birthplace, which peers over the shoulder of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace on Franklin St., South Quincy, can now see more completely how the house looked.

The house is well furnished and looks like it did when John and Abigail lived in it.

The final renovation touches were to the room where Deacon John Adams made shoes.

The rooms are furnished from the period of Deacon John and his wife and probably reflected her taste. They are furnished not elaborately, but sufficiently to have a lived-in look.

The birthplace was probably built in the late 17th or early 18th Century for less than $1,000 in the pounds of the day and the clapboards were hand-hewn from trees that grew in its fields.

The pine clapboards of the John Adams Birthplace are unpainted and the U.S. National Park Service, which restored the house, insists that based on research the house will remain that way, despite the fact that John Adams was known to have preferred it white.

For more than 80 years they were the little red farmhouses at the foot of Penn's Hill. But research turned up the fact that Abigail Adams, the wife of the second president, wanted them "stone" and white in color.

Since what Abigail wanted, Abigail usually got, in the summer of 1880, the John Quincy Adams Birthplace was repainted to Abigail's taste, the "stone" color determined to be a sort of off-white mixed especially for the occasion from a late 18th Century formula.

The John Adams Birthplace was painted white so that both houses would look as they did in 1807, the year the last Adams lived in them, but later research indicated it was unpainted. Mrs. Harris, an authority on the Adams family, hopes the USNPS will change its mind again.

The birthplaces, parts of which date back to the 17th Century, were taken over by the National Park Service on May 1, 1979, after years of semi-neglect due to lack of restoration and maintenance funds.

The John Quincy Adams Birthplace re-opened in 1982 for the first time in three years after undergoing a $175,000 rehabilitation faithful to the lives of the prominent family that lived there.

If you close your eyes and give your imagination full rein you can see them now as they were more than 200 years ago.

JOHN ADAMS BIRTHPLACE

There is Abigail Adams in the new pink gingham dress. There is the curly-haired infant, Thomas Boylston Adams, bouncing on his father's knee. And there is John Adams, home from the Continental Congress in Philadelphia for the first time in a year, sitting at the table drinking a cup of tea.

The setting, right down to the pewter plates and candlesticks, is reproduced faithfully in the corner room of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace.

The furnishings of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace are precise reproductions of those that were in the house when the second president lived there. The originals are at the Old House, the Adams National Historic Site, from which they cannot be removed under the ownership agreement with the Adams family.

The most interesting room in the John Quincy Adams Birthplace is John Adams' old law office, in which the elder Adams, James Bowdoin and Samuel Adams drafted the Massachusetts State Constitution, the model on which the U.S. Constitution was based.

The law office is furnished pretty much as John Adams had it.

There is the hutch table on which he wrote the State Constitution; the bookcase filled with books that probably were there in John Adams' day, judging by an inventory of his law library; his old writing desk and two chairs that were copies from those in his second law office in Boston.

Pastels of Abigail and John, originally done in Salem, were photographically reproduced by photographer George Dow and now hang in Abigail's sitting room. The originals are in the possession of the Massachusetts Historical Society.

Abigail's old kitchen cabinet was discovered serving as a bookcase in the Old House.

The cabinet was reproduced and installed in the kitchen of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace along with copies of the blue china that John purchased when he was emissary to Holland.

The Adams Birthplaces are at 133 and 141 Franklin St. They are open daily, including Sundays and holidays, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. from April 19 to Nov. 10 with guided tours. The last full tour is at 4:15 p.m. Admission is $2.00 for adults and children over age 16, which also includes admission to the Adams Mansion within seven days. Park passes available.

The Adams Cottages

Our Only Father - Son Presidents Born Here

It was the North Precinct of Braintree then, a sprawling tract of woods and farmlands on the gently rolling hills some 10 miles south of the Boston Stone along the winding Coast Road to Plymouth.

Something less than 1,500 people lived in the North, Middle and South Precincts of Braintree in the year 1735 and two of them were Deacon John Adams, 44, farmer and cordwainer, and his wife, Susanna, 26.

Their home was a weathered gray farmhouse with a high peaked roof and attached lean-to kitchen set on seven acres of farmland at roughly Milepost 11 of the Coast Road, just where it turned up the wooded slopes of Penn's Hill toward the Monaquot River ford.

He was a pillar of his rural community. Mr. Adams was, a deacon in the First Parish Church, a lieutenant in the Braintree militia and a town constable with a forceful personality and tact that enabled him to collect taxes from his neighbors.

He was a hard-working farmer whose cider was acknowledged best in town, he worked in leather during the winter months, and he had an eye on an adjoining piece of farmland, 9½ acres owned by the Billings brothers, complete with a farmhouse similar to his own.

Susanna Adams was a Boylston of

Brookline, socially a cut above her husband, and perhaps there were moments in the simple house at the foot of Penn's Hill when she thought of the home of her uncle, the noted Dr. Zabdiel Boylston of Brookline, whose furniture came all the way from London.

Their first child, a son who was named John for his father, was born in the southeast bedroom of the farmhouse on Oct. 19, 1735 (Old Style). He would become the second president of the United States.

Deacon John purchased the house next door for 500 pounds in 1744 and it was ready 20 years later when young John moved in with his brand new bride, the former Abigail Smith, the preacher's sparkling daughter from the next town of Weymouth.

Their second child, a son who was named John Quincy Adams after his great grandfather, Col. John Quincy, was born there on July 11, 1767. He would become the sixth president of the United States.

The junction of Franklin St., Independence Ave., and President Ave. in South Quincy is the only place in the country where the birthplaces of two presidents who are father and son stand side by side in the same city.

The precise age of the two cottages at the foot of Penn's Hill is not known.

When the John Adams Birthplace was retored by the Daughters of Revolution in 1897, a brick bearing the date 1681 was discovered under the southeast corner, and the house was known to have been occupied by one Joseph Penniman in that year.

And a man named Samuel Belcher was living in the John Quincy Adams Birthplace as early as 1663, when it was little more than a one-room shack with fireplace. It was built to its present size in 1716, as evidenced by a date brick found in the new fireplace.

According to Henry Adams, a grandson of President John Quincy Adams, no member of the family lived in the cottages after 1818, although ownership remained in the Adams family until 1940.

Both houses were restored by the Adams Realty Trust, the John Quincy Adams Birthplace in 1896 at a cost of $1,650 and the John Adams Birthplace a year later at an expense of $515.49.

They were presented to the city of Quincy in 1940 and supervised by the Quincy Historical Society until they were turned over to the U.S. National Park Service in 1979.

The Adams Birthplaces are at 133 and 141 Franklin St. They are open daily, including Sundays and holidays, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. from April 19 through Nov. 10, with guided tours. Admission is $2 for adults and children over age 16, which also includes admission to the Adams Mansion within seven days.

The Quincy Presidential Trail

The Adams Birthplaces are an important stop on the newly designated Quincy Presidential Trail, a 10.5 mile route that takes the visitor through the 17th and 18th Century locales associated with the lives of the Adams family.

Historic sites along the trail include the Adams Mansion, Dorothy Quincy Homestead, Adams Academy, First Parish Church, Adams Crypt, City Hall, Hancock Cemetery, the Birthplaces, Abigail Adams Cairn, First Commercial Railroad, First Ironworks, Col. Josiah Quincy House and Moswetuset Hummock, most of which are described in this magazine.

The Quincy Presidential Trail is a National Recreation Trail, the seventh in the state of Massachusetts and the 625th in the nation.

HISTORIC QUINCY

The City of Quincy has almost everything a city can offer with its brilliant, magnificent shoreline, its National Historical sites, its two colleges and its neighborhoods. It is rich in heritage, natural and human resources -- and it is particularly enriched by its unique blend of old and new.

First settled in 1625 at Mount Wollaston, separated in 1640 from Boston as a Town called Braintree, our Quincy was established as a Town of its own in 1792 and incorporated as a City in 1888.

It continues to be one of the finest cities in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. It produced two Presidents of the United States. The mortal remains of Quincy's two most famous sons, Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams lie at the First Parish Church, Unitarian, in Quincy Square. The citizens of this City are very proud of its history and working together they are ready to meet the challenges they face as they look ahead to the 1990's and the 21st century.

ADAMS MANSION NATIONAL HISTORIC SITE

The Adams Mansion

Summer White House And Home Of 2 Presidents

Josiah Quincy, the one who built railroads around New England and founded the cooperative bank movement in Massachusetts, was in his boyhood a frequent visitor to the mansion where John Adams, the second president of the United States, lived in retirement.

Later, he wrote with wry amusement about Sunday dinner with the aging patriarch of the Adams clan and his wife, Abigail, a dinner that inevitably began with a thick pudding made from boiled corn meal.

"...it being thought desirable to take the edge off one's hunger before reaching the joint," wrote Quincy.

"Indeed, it was considered wise to stimulate the young to fill themselves with pudding, by the assurance that the boy who managed to eat the most of it should be helped most abundantly to the meat, which was to follow."

"It need not be said that neither the winner nor his competitors found much room for meat at the close of their contest; and so the domestic economy of the arrangement was very apparent."

Quincy, as a young Harvard law student, stopped by several times a week in summer to talk and read to the former President. He found the visits delightful. Indeed, the Adams of the cold and austere public mien was never more relaxed and warm than he was at his country home in Quincy.

The original house, a small part of the present building, was built probably in 1731 by Major Leonard Vassall, a wealthy West Indian sugar planter who lived in Cambridge and apparently used it for a summer place.

His daughter, Mrs. Anna Borland, who was a Loyalist during the Revolution, abandoned the house to leave with the British forces when they evacuated Boston in 1776. For a while it was used as a haven for rebel refugees fleeing the war zones.

Mrs. Borland returned to reclaim the house after the Revolution and John Adams, then in Europe as the first American ambassador to London, purchased it for 600 pounds through the good offices of the Cotton Tufts of Weymouth, his wife Abigail's cousin.

The Adamsses were about to return to the United States after seven years abroad and Abigail was concerned that John's books and papers and the furnishings they had acquired in Europe would not fit into their old farmhouse at the foot of Penn's Hill where they lived before.

The deal was closed on Sept. 26, 1787, and the deed is still on file in the Suffolk County Registry of Deeds in which the Adams purchase is specified as a house, barn and other buildings on seven acres of land with some 76 acres more scattered around the North Precinct of Braintree.

There are indications that Abigail was at first disappointed with her purchase. It was a lot smaller than she remembered it.

"In height and breadth it feels like a wren's house," she wrote to her daughter, Abigail, the wife of Col. William S. Smith. "Let Col. Smith come without heels to his shoes or he will not be able to walk upright."

Abigail and John Adams moved into the house, which they named "Peacefield," after his retirement from the presidency in 1801 and lived there until they died.

It was from the "Old House," as the family called it, that John Adams carried on his long and increasingly warm correspondence with his old rival, Thomas Jefferson of Virginia, who had succeeded him in the presidency. In retirement, they became firm friends as they outlasted their contemporaries.

"Thomas Jefferson lives," whispered John Adams as he lay dying in the Old House. He was wrong. Jefferson, in far away Monticello, Va., had preceded him in death by a few hours on the same day.

It was July 4, 1826, the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

The Old House which served as summer White House for two presidents, was home to four generations of the Adams family, the last, Brooks Adams, dying in February, 1927. It was taken over by the U.S. National Park Service in 1946 to become the Adams Mansion National Historic Site.

The site at 135 Adams St. is open to the public from April 19 to Nov. 10 daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The last full tour is at 4:15 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults and children over 16, and includes admission to the Adams Birthplaces within seven days.

THE FIRST PARISH CHURCH

TOMBS OF PRESIDENTS John and John Quincy Adams and their wives in First Parish Church.

First Parish Church

Where 2 Presidents, Their Wives Are Entombed

In 1949, when the present First Parish Church building, the Old Stone Temple, was 121 years old, it was ruled officially that the church is older than the city itself and the town before it.

It was then that the late historian William Churchill Edwards was called upon to resolve a minor dispute that involved the rounding of the corners of the church lot in downtown Quincy.

"Almost the first subject to which the minds of the early settlers of our country were turned after they landed here was the formation of a church," said Edwards.

The first church in these parts was established as a branch of the Church of Boston in 1636. It became a church in its own right in 1639. The Mount Wollaston section of Boston was incorporated as the town of Braintree on May 23, 1640. Ergo, the church came first!

Quincy's first house of worship, the branch of the Church of Boston, was called the "Chappel of Ease," and if it was neglected by early historians it was because its first pastor, the Rev. John Wheelwright, his sister-in-law, Anne Hutchinson, and others were banished from the Massachusetts Bay Colony for heresy.

The new church, the one that lasted, was gathered by covenant on Sept. 26, 1639, and it was holding services in its third meeting house in 1732 when its pastor was the Rev. John Hancock, father of the bold first signer of the Declaration of Independence. Son John also was a member.

The affairs of the church and the town of Quincy were one and the same until 1824 when church and state were separated in Massachusetts and the Congregational Society was established to handle parochial matters.

The old Hancock meeting house was still standing, although a little run down, on the south lawn of the present church lot in 1822 when former President John Adams deeded the interest from certain of his lands and granite from his pastures to build a stone temple.

It was completed in Greek revival style at a cost of $30,488.56 which was some $3,000 less than architect Alexander Parrish's estimate and dedicated Nov. 12, 1828, with John Quincy Adams, the sixth president of the United States holding Pew No. 1.

Even before the church was dedicated, the mortal remains of its benefactors, John and Abigail Adams, were transferred to tombs in the crypt of the church and, in 1852, the bodies of John Quincy Adams and his wife, Louisa, joined them.

It is the only church in the United States in which two Presidents are buried. The only other church in which a President is buried is the Episcopal Cathedral in Washington D.C., where President Woodrow Wilson is entombed.

An active Unitarian Church, it is open to the public for tours by appointment July 1 through Labor Day. There is no charge for the tours but donations are accepted. Group tours should make reservations at least one week in advance. For further information call the church office at 773-1290.

Why We Pronounce It 'Quin-zee'

Why do we pronounce Quincy "Quin-zee" when just about everyone else in the country refers to it as "Quin-see?"

There are 19 other Quincys in the U.S., but they pronounce it "Quin-see."

Can they be right and we be wrong?

Not according to Quincy's late city historian, William C. Edwards who never budged an inch whenever the argument ever came up. And it still comes up.

The reason we pronounce it "Quin-zee" is very simple.

"That's the way the Quincy family pronounced it," he used to explain.

"The original Quincy family which settled here at Mount Wollaston pronounced it 'Quin-zee,' including Col. John Quincy after whom Quincy, Mass.-the first Quincy-was named in 1792."

Colonel Quincy was the great grandfather of sixth president John Quincy Adams.

Apparently all 19 other Quincys in the U.S. were named after John Quincy Adams.

And, apparently the early settlers of those communities thought John Quincy pronounced it John "Quin-see."

Anyway, that is how Edwards explained it. Seems like a sound argument.

Seat Of Government For 147 Years

Daniel and Hannah French deeded the land to the town of Quincy for $1,000 with the stipulation that it "shall not be used for any other purpose than as a place for a Town House for the said Inhabitants."

And, with a few minor transgressions of that vow, the solid structure of Quincy granite on Quincy Square has been just that for the past 147 years, the nerve center of government for first the town and then the city.

It was the great hall on the second floor that the popular John Quincy Adams II, grandson of a president of the United States, held forth as town moderator for many years and, with his brother, Charles Francis Adams Jr., gave informal direction to town affairs.

One of the earliest ordinances passed by the first City Council on March 8, 1889 was the adoption of the City Seal emblazoned with the four most significant dates in Quincy's history:

1625, for the first settlement on Mount Wollaston; 1640, for its separation from Boston as the town of Braintree; 1792, for its separation from Braintree as the town of Quincy; and 1888, for its incorporation as a city.

CITY HALL

Designed by the architect Solomon Willard, who received $280 for drawing up the plans and superintending construction for five months, the City Hall was completed and occupied for the first time on Nov. 1, 1844.

It cost exactly $19,115.93 to build, including 88 cents to John Briesler for lead to seal the chimney.

In 1979, when a 3 and one half story reflective glass addition was built behind the old City Hall, the cost was $1.9 million.

Quincy College Public Report, 1990-91

QUINCY COLLEGE first opened its doors in September of 1956. Since the first graduating class of 3 in July, 1960, Quincy College has grown rapidly with a current enrollment of almost 3,000 students. Following is an update on the accomplishments of the College and the new directions being taken.

Quincy Campus

Quincy College gained classroom space for its growing enrollment through the purchase of two houses on Saville Avenue which now house the School of Allied Health faculty and college administrative offices. The additional classroom space allows for approximately 20% more growth in the student body. It has also arranged with the N. E. Medical Center to house its Surgical Technology program, where classrooms and state of the art lab space are available. No problems are foreseen for additional space in the near future.

Plymouth Campus Plan

The College plans to open a satellite campus this fall at the North Street Library complex in Plymouth. The College will offer a daytime two-year program of studies for students who want to transfer to a bachelor's program. Students will take two years of core curriculum work and earn an associate's degree which they can transfer to a four year institution, entering as a Junior. This campus will serve the increasing number of applicants from the lower south shore.

Sullivan Labor-Management Center

This new Center is dedicated to issues of labor-management. Over the next two years, it will develop a library and research facility, conferences and seminars, and certificate and degree programs. Topics of interest to labor unions and management will be explored and new cooperative approaches will be sought. The Center is named for Edward T. Sullivan, a prominent labor leader in Massachusetts for the past forty years.

Bachelor of Liberal Studies: A New Challenge

Planning is underway for a unique bachelor's degree program to be introduced after 1993. Students with an associate's degree and prior work experience will be eligible for the program. A faculty advisor will be assigned to each student to help create an individualized course of study. Courses would be taken both at Quincy College and at other area colleges with all credits being applied to the degree. A personalized, supportive environment, access to some of the best universities in the world, and full transfer credit for the associate's degree will be features of this unconventional four-year program, which will provide an opportunity for students with practical work experience to continue their education in a flexible and creative environment.

Josiah Quincy Homestead

Lookout For Spying On British Ships

Abigail Adams stood with her great uncle, Col. Josiah Quincy, in a window of his mansion overlooking Wollaston Beach and watched the tall masts of 170 ships stand slowly out to sea. It was March 17, 1776. The British were evacuating Boston.

But even in triumph there was tragedy.

Aboard the departing ships were more than 1,000 Loyalists, Americans who had chosen King above country, and one of them was Abigail's cousin, Samuel Quincy, the Colonel's only remaining son, an avowed Tory.

"I take a long farewell," his sister, Hannah, wrote to him for one last time. "Let it not be published that a brother of such brothers fled from his country. Can you expect to walk uprightly now? Can you take fire in your bosom and not be burned?"

Two of Col. Josiah Quincy's sons had died young. Now he had no more.

But there was no time for regrets. The work of revolution had begun. The second floor of the house at what is now 20 Muirhead St., Wollaston, was a lookout from which the 66-year-old Colonel spied on British ship movements for his friend, Gen. George Washington.

A few months before, Col. Quincy watched the Royal Governor, Gen. Thomas Gage depart and he scratched on a pane of window glass the reminder: "Oct. 10, 1775, General Gage sailed for England with a fair wind."

This time he remained in the window for three days as the British tall ships moved restlessly about the Harbor as if reluctant to leave. Finally, on March 20, the last of them passed through the roadstead and out to sea.

The mansion in Wollaston reached full social flower under the aegis of the Colonel's grandson, the third Josiah, the "Great Mayor" of Boston, president of Harvard and Congressman, who called it "Tranquillia" and used it as his summer home.

It was there that the Marquis de Lafayette visited one Sunday afternoon after dinner with his friend, ex-President John Adams at the Adams Mansion. He carried flowers from the Adams garden for Mrs. Eliza Susan Quincy and her five attractive daughters.

The house was built in 1770 by the old Colonel himself, the first in a line of six Josiahs. It was said that, while most families passed their line from sire to son, the Quincys went from 'Siah to 'Siah.

But, while there were six Josiahs and innumerable Edmunds, the city was named for yet another member of the prolific family - Col. John Quincy, the great grandfather of John Quincy Adams sixth president of the United States.

JOSIAH QUINCY HOMESTEAD

The Josiah Quincy Homestead is open to the public from June 1 to Oct. 15, Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. Visits may be made at other times by appointment. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for children age 12 and under. Residents of Quincy are admitted free.

How Many Miles From Boston?

Stone mile markers across Hancock Street from each other indicate that the traveler is both 7 1/4 and 10 miles from Boston. And both are correct.

The 10-miles marker was placed on the Old Coast Road, one of the oldest highways in the United States still in existence, which went from Boston to Plymouth in 1639 by way of inland Milton.

The 7 1/4-mile marker was raised after the first bridge over the Neponset River was built in 1803, creating the Neponset Turnpike, which is today Hancock St. in North Quincy and Wollaston.

When Josiah Quincy IV built a house for his family he considered location, beauty, and community, and then he picked the best spot in town...

Abigail Adams Cairn

The Smoke Could Be Seen Over Bunker Hill

Abigail Adams was awakened at dawn in the farmhouse at the foot of Penn's Hill by the sound of far off guns. All through the sweltering morning of June 17, 1775, as she hustled about with the chores, the dull boom of cannon intruded on her consciousness.

Riders on the Coast Road to Plymouth, stopping at the farmhouse for a drink of water, told her of a great battle underway on Breed's Hill in Charlestown.

One of them brought word that Dr. Joseph Warren had been killed in the fighting and little Abby, age 10, burst into tears, and John Quincy, nearly 8, felt bewildered and sad, for Dr. Warren was the Adams family doctor in Boston.

In the afternoon, Abigail could stand it no longer. Taking Abby and John Quincy by the hand, she walked up the Coast Road to the top of Penn's Hill and climbed up on the rocks for a better view.

The panorama of the Bay, a shimmering blue in the sunshine, spread out before them, the tiny houses on the three hills of Boston and, beyond, the black smoke rising in billows.

"Good God," exclaimed Abigail, "they are burning Charlestown!"

The scene etched itself forever in John Quincy's memory.

The early days of the Revolution were times of turmoil in Old Braintree and its North Precinct, which was later called Quincy.

Abigail's husband, John, was away most of the time at the Continental Congress in Philadelphia, leaving 31-year old Abigail to manage the farm and look to the needs of four small children, Abigail, John Quincy, Charles, 5, and Thomas Boylston, 3.

There were days of alarm as the British, penned up in Boston by the brand new Continental Army, foraged up and down the coast for supplies. Refugees from occupied Boston and the inner towns of Dorchester and Roxbury sometimes slept in the kitchen and in the fields.

As the wife of a member of Congress, Abigail was a center of attention. The house on the Coast Road was a favorite stopping place for travelers to Plymouth. Politicians up from Philadelphia made it a point to stop by for a visit with John Adams' wife.

Abigail was invited to visit Gen. George Washington's headquarters at Winter Hill. The aristocratic Washington was suspect among New Englanders. He was a Virginian; he was an Anglican; and, it was said, he held slaves. But John Adams liked him and Abigail was soon charmed.

ABIGAIL ADAMS CAIRN

One day, young John Quincy came home to find his Uncle Elihu melting down Abigail's pewter spoons in the kitchen to make bullet molds. He looked at his mother and she looked back at him and something indefinable passed between them.

"Do you wonder," wrote the sixth president of the United States some 68 years later, "that a boy of 7 who witnessed this scene should be a patriot."

In 1896, where the old Coast Road (now Franklin St.) meets Viden Rd. atop Penn's Hill a stone cairn was built to mark the spot where Abigail and young John Quincy watched the Battle of Bunker Hill. It is open to the public free of charge.

The Thomas Crane Library

A Romanesque Architectural Beauty

He came to Quincy as a boy of 7, grew to young manhood on a farm in Quincy Point, learned the granite-cutters' trade, and left at the age of 26 to win fame and fortune in stone in New York City.

That was the last Quincy saw of Thomas Crane for half a century until one February day in 1880, five years after his death, when his son, Albert, appeared with $20,000 with which to build a memorial -- preferably a library -- to his father.

"My father always retained a strong feeling for the town of Quincy," was his only explanation.

Albert Crane himself chose the man to design the building, Henry Hobson Richardson, grandson of the English scientist Dr. Joseph Priestly and the foremost architect of the day.

His reputation was so formidable that he was able to tell Crane, "I can not guarantee that the building, when completed, shall conform to (your) ideas of beauty and taste," and still get the job.

Richardson's Romanesque building, which now houses the reference section of the library, was dedicated on May 30, 1882, with the principal oration delivered by Charles Francis Adams, Jr., chairman of the Board of Trustees.

It was Adams who gave the library its name. Albert Crane wanted it to be "The Quincy Free Public Library." Adams insisted on "The Thomas Crane Public Library."

"Who's giving the building?" asked Albert Crane.

"You are, but you wouldn't have if it hadn't been for me," said Adams, who was used to having his way around Quincy, and that was that.

President John Adams' modest collection of books was housed in the library until 1893, when it was discovered that in 11 years only two persons, one of them Charles Francis Adams, Jr., had asked to see them. They were then transferred to the Boston Public Library.

At the start, Richardson's magnificent building was all but hidden behind a grain store, a hotel, an office building and four homes that lined Washington St.

Albert Crane, however, was a persistent man and, by the time he died in 1917, he had purchased and torn down all the buildings, leaving a broad expanse of open space to enhance the library.

But before the lawn could be seeded, World War I intervened and, in a burst of patriotism -- "Food will win the war," they said -- the area was planted with potatoes, tended by an expert brought in from Maine. The experiment failed.

THOMAS CRANE PUBLIC LIBRARY

"There wasn't a potato in the lot that was anywhere near as large as a golf ball," said Mayor Joseph L. Whitten. The harvest was donated to the poor farm.

Albert Crane also put up $64,000 to build the Spear St. wing of the library in 1907-08 and the Crane family gave yet another $164,000 for the free standing addition, built in 1936, that now houses the stacks and the children's section.

The Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., is open to the public, free of charge, Monday to Thursday, 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Friday and Saturday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. It is closed on Saturdays during June, July and August.

A Third Generation Continues Our Traditions.

Quincy has changed a great deal since Sweeney Funeral Home was established in 1917. But, it's nice to know some things will never change. Like the observance of traditional values and customs.

At Sweeney Funeral Homes, older residents are quick to notice the subtle reminders of yesteryear, such as the grey gloves our funeral director still wears. Like the characteristic top hat and tails that our founder, Dennis Sweeney, wore over 30 years ago, they reflect our Tradition. One that has been built on a dignified and instinctive concern for the city's bereaved families for three generations.

Today, our founder's grand-nephew, Dennis S. Sweeney has continued the family's philosophy of maintaining a beautiful, home-like atmosphere.

And like his namesake, who started pre-arrangements in the 1940s, Dennis believes in helping residents to plan for the future. Pre-planning means that this financial decision is not left for a family to decide while they are attempting to cope with a major personal loss. It's a difficult time, a time when family members are least able to make the wisest choice.

Sweeney Funeral Homes has been helping South Shore residents with difficult decisions for over 70 years. Call Dennis Sweeney at (617) 773-2726 for a free consultation. There's no time like the present.

Adams Academy

On Site Of John Hancock's Birthplace

By modern standards, the boarding house at the corner of Hancock and Depot Sts. had all the aspects of a genteel prison.

Residents were forbidden to leave between 7 p.m. and 7 a.m. They could not enter or leave at any time except by the hall door. They were banned from pool halls and bars. Smoking materials also were forbidden to them.

In exchange for good behavior, plus tuition ranging from $75 to $150 a year, they were given the best prep school education of the day for they were students at Adams Academy, which flourished from 1872 to 1907 in Quincy.

The academy was a gift of John Adams, the second President of the United States, who always had his checkbook ready to fill the spiritual and educational needs of the citizens of his beloved Quincy.

The trust fund, nourished by "rents, profits and emoluments" from certain Adams-owned properties, was set up in the Adams will of 1822, but it was not until 1869 that the fund was deemed large enough to start construction.

The location was specified by Adams himself as the corner of Adams and Hancock Sts., site of the birthplace of his childhood friend, John Hancock, the first signer of the Declaration of Independence.

The doors opened to the first students, 24 of them, on Sept. 4, 1872. Five years later, the academy reached a peak enrollment of 154 with an international student body ---25 from Quincy, four from Washington, D.C., 125 and 14 states, two from England and one from Chile.

It had one of the earliest prep school football teams, too, recording a tie with the Resolutes of Boston on Oct. 21, 1876, a scant seven years after Princeton and Rutgers played the first college game. It whipped Andover three times from 1877-79.

The admissions catalogue specified that applicants be "well prepared in the usual studies of good grammar schools" and warned that "no pupils are desired to give them a collegiate education."

The best known headmaster was Dr. William Everett, once acclaimed as one of the seven smartest men in the world. He ran the academy with a firm hand from 1878 to 1893 and again from 1897 to 1907. From 1893 to 1897, he was a U.S. congressman from Lynn.

Dr. Leverett, an aimable if sometimes waspish eccentric, was widely known as the man who hated Abraham Lincoln. He had reason. His father was Edward Everett, whose masterful oration at Gettysburg was over-shadowed by Lincoln's notes scribbled on the back of an envelope.

It was Dr. Everett who signaled the passing of Adams Academy --- and many other 19th Century classical prep schools --- at graduation exercises in 1907 when he said that "unless someone comes forward and planks down $50,000, the academy will be closed."

Nobody did and on June 22, 1907, the Adams Academy officially closed its doors.

The building today is occupied by the Quincy Historical Society, which maintains a museum and research library in the old classrooms as well as an expanded gift shop. The museum and gift shop are open all year, Monday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Saturday from 1 to 4 p.m. The library is open Monday and Wednesday from 9:30 a.m. to noon and 12:30 to 1:30 p.m., Tuesday, Thursday and Friday from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. and Saturday from 12:30 to 3:30 p.m. or by appointment. It is closed Sunday and holidays. There is no admission charge.

Quincy Was Almost Hancock

If some of the early settlers had their way, you would be living in the city of Hancock today instead of the city of Quincy.

Quincy, like George Washington, was born on Feb. 22.

On Feb. 22, 1792, the General Court of Massachusetts passed an act incorporating the North Precinct of Old Braintree as the separate town of Quincy.

But, just before that, quite a few of the residents wanted the new town named after native son John Hancock instead of Boston-born Col. John Quincy.

Colonel Quincy, who had represented Old Braintree in the General Court, was the great grandfather of President John Quincy Adams.

Many people today think Quincy was named after the sixth President but the honor actually goes to his great grandfather.

John Hancock who was born in the North Precinct, was governor of Massachusetts when the General Court passed the act incorporating the new town as Quincy. He signed the act the following day.

But at the first town meeting of the new town in May, a petition was presented to change the name from Quincy to Hancock in honor of the patriot and first signer of the Declaration of Independence. The move was finally defeated after a stormy verbal battle.

Opponents argued that Hancock

was still alive and that the honor should go to a distinguished-but deceased-person.

Colonel Quincy met those requirements. He was both distinguished - and deceased.

He had represented Old Braintree in the General Court from 1717 to 1741 - 12 of those years as Speaker of the House. He died in 1767 at age 77 - two days after John Quincy Adams was born.

Quincy became a city June 11, 1888.

But a lot of people will go right on thinking Quincy was named after John Quincy Adams.

THE GRANITE RAILWAY

The Granite Railway

First Commercial Railroad In U.S.

It was the darndest looking contraption that many among the distinguished gathering had ever seen.

Each of the three wagons had four wheels, 6 and one half feet in diameter, surmounted by a smaller gear wheel which was used to raise and lower the cargo platform that was slung low between the wheels.

It rode on foot-high wooden rails, topped by iron plate, which rested on stone sleepers or cross ties, placed eight feet apart and firmly supported on crushed granite to a depth beyond the frost line.

On Saturday, Oct. 7, 1826, the wagons were laden with 16 tons of the finest Quincy granite and the opening day guests were properly amazed when a single horse moved the whole thing with ease more than three miles to a special wharf on the Neponset River.

The granite blocks, a particularly hard and weather-resistant stone capable of taking a brilliant polish, were en route to Charlestown, where they were building a monument to the Battle of Bunker Hill.

The Granite Railway, the first such commercial venture in the United States, was built specifically to transport stone for the Bunker Hill Monument.

That it became successful, and a model for others around the country, is a tribute to three vastly dissimilar men, the engineer Gridley Bryant, the architect Solomon Willard and the financier, Col. Thomas Handasyd Perkins.

Bryant was 27 at the time but already an engineer of note. He invented the eight wheeled railroad car and, when a fellow named Ross Winans of Baltimore sued to establish a patent on it, Bryant was able to prove his claim to the satisfaction of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Willard, then 43, was a great bear of a man, gentle, obliging, industrious. Frivolity, it was said, was alien to him and he was never known to run. He could be crotchety, too. He was a carpenter turned wood-carver, turned stone-carver and, finally architect.

Perkins was the autocratic, 52-year-old merchant king of Boston who was said to have been offered the post of Secretary of the Navy by President Washington and turned it down with the observation that he owned more ships than the Navy.

It was Perkins who lobbied the Railway's charter through a puzzled and obstinate State Legislature, which had never been called upon to incorporate a commercial railroad before. It was Perkins who financed it, too, largely with his own money.

Even in its early days, the Granite Railway was a tourist attraction of some magnitude.

Daniel Webster, who used to stop off for a pick-me-up in Quincy en route from Boston and Washington to his home in Marshfield, viewed it and decided that it would never succeed because of the frost that would form on the rails in the winter.

The President of the United States, a local boy named John Quincy Adams, visited in August, 1827, got caught in a thunderstorm and took shelter in a shed where Willard's stone-cutters were hacking away at monument granite.

A group of visitors were riding up the Railway's incline in an empty car on July 25, 1832, when the chain broke and catapulted them over a 40-foot cliff. One was killed in what may have been the first railroad fatality in the United States.

The Granite Railway Co. survived until 1870, some 27 years after the Bunker Hill Monument was finished, when most of its track was taken over by the Old Colony Railroad, which in turn became a division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford.

Today much of the roadbed, over which freight moved commercially on rails for the first time in America, is buried under the macadam of the Southeast Expressway.

The incline of the old Railway has been restored and is located at the dead end of Mullin Ave. in West Quincy. It is open to the public year round, 24 hours a day. There is no admission charge.

Dorothy Quincy Homestead

John Hancock's Declaration Of Love

An aura of romance surrounds the stately old house that is set back in the trees from the corner of Hancock St. and Butler Rd., on the banks of Furnace Brook.

There is the wallpaper with its blue cupids and pink flowers that was imported from France for the wedding of Dorothy Quincy, the vivacious daughter of the house, to Quincy-born John Hancock, a patriot on the run with a price on his head.

There are the words "You I Love and You alone," addressed by Hancock to his beloved Dorothy and scratched on a window pane with his diamond ring just before he fled to Lexington on the eve of the Revolution.

And there are the secret chambers and passageways, used, it was said, to hide fugitive patriots during the Revolution and, at an earlier date, even certain Englishmen fleeing a charge of regicide in the death of King Charles I.

Parts of the house were built in 1685 by Col. Edmund Quincy, the second of the name, on land that was granted to an earlier Edmund in 1638. The major part was built in 1706 by Edmund the third. (There were six Edmunds in all, four in a direct line; two nephews.)

The house was the social center of old Braintree during the regime of the fourth Edmund, largely because he sired five beautiful daughters around whom swirled a whole future generation of judges, generals and merchant kings.

The undisputed belle of the household was Dorothy, the coquettish youngest of the eight Quincy children, whose troth was soon plighted to John Hancock, the wealthy young businessman from Boston who was already becoming known as a leader of the rebels.

Tradition has it that they were to have been married in the north parlor of the Quincy homestead with its French cupid wallpaper when Revolution intervened and John had to flee with the British on his heels.

Eventually, they were wed Aug. 28, 1775, at the home of Thaddeus Burr, uncle of Aaron Burr (later vice president of the United States) in Fairfield, Conn.

After the Revolution and the death of Edmund the fourth in 1788 the old house passed from the Quincy family. The Hancocks wanted nothing to do with it. Their only son, John George Washington Hancock, was killed in a skating accident at age 9 while on a visit in 1787.

The house was acquired in 1904 by the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames, who restored it

Abigail Adams Wife, Mother Of Presidents

Mrs. John Adams, the former Abigail Smith of Weymouth, is the only woman to be wife of one president and mother of another -- and she could have been grandmother of a vice president.

Husband John was chief executive from 1797 to 1801; son of John Quincy occupied the White House from 1825 to 1829; and grandson Charles Francis Adams ran for vice president on the Free Soil ticket in 1848.

An early advocate of women's rights, Abigail Adams once wrote to her husband, John:

"In the new code of laws which I suppose it will be necessary for you to make, I desire you would remember the ladies and be more generous and favorable to them than your ancestors.

"Do not put such unlimited power into the hands of the husbands. Remember, all men would be tyrants if they could."

Abigail (Smith) Adams was the only woman to be the wife of one President and mother of another.

She was the wife of John Adams, our second President.

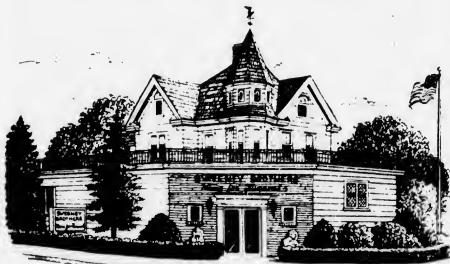

She died in 1818, however, and did not see her son John Quincy Adams elected our sixth President.

John Adams did live to see his son become President in 1825.

Hancock Cemetery

Patriots, Early Settlers, Intrigue Buried Here

Henry, the first Adams in Quincy, is buried there. So is the Rev. John Hancock, father of the first signer of the Declaration of Independence. And Col. John Quincy, for whom the city is named.

But of all the 800 graves in the Hancock Cemetery, the Old Burying Ground of Colonial Quincy, most intriguing is one marked by a tombstone bearing this cryptic epitaph:

"Erected to the memory of John R. Grieve: Died Nov. 12, 1850, age 22 years, and Hannah Banks, his wife, died Nov. 12, 1850, age 15 years. Both of Zanesville, Ohio. Deluded by the writings of A.J. Davis."

The mystery of John and Hannah has never been fully solved.

They came to Quincy in 1850, not as man and wife, but as male cousins, John Green and George Sands. They obtained work in a shoe factory but rarely left their lodgings on Elm St., spending long hours reading books on spiritualism.

Co-workers thought that George Sands looked frail, almost effeminate. It was widely suspected that "he" was a girl. A scheme was devised to test the theory.

One day at lunch one of the shoe workers tossed George an apple. A man would catch it by closing his legs; a woman by spreading her skirt. Guess what "George" did!

Humiliated, John and Hannah never went back to the factory. Nor did they ever return to the house on Elm St. Their frozen bodies were found next spring by rabbit hunters on Penn's Hill, locked in a loving embrace.

Several months later, the father of John Grieve arrived from Ohio to bury the young couple. It was he who directed the words to be chiselled on the headstone. He explained no further.

A.J. Davis was never identified for sure. But Andrew Jackson Davis, a spiritualist, hypnotist and faith healer, was then practicing in Boston.

Among the belongings found in the Elm St. lodging house were these words, written by 15-year-old Hannah Banks:

"To the oppressed and down-trodden, to the suffering and afflicted, I would cry out...Death is only an event, only a circumstance in the eternal life experience of the human soul. Death is simply a birth into a new and perfect state of existence."

Not far from the grave of John and Hannah is a tomb bearing words that cry out of an earlier injustice:

"Three precious friends under this tombstone lie

"Patterns to aged, youth and infancy.

HANCOCK CEMETERY

"A great mother, her learned son, with child.

"The first and least went free. He was exiled.

"In love to Christ, this country, and dear friends

"He left his own, cross'd seas and for amends

"Was here extoll'd, and envy'd all in a breath,

"His noble consort leaves, is drawn to death,

"Stranger changes may befall us ere we die,

"Blest they who will arrive eternally.

"God grant some names, O thou New England's friend.

"Don't sooner fade than thine, if times don't mend."

The tomb with its hidden message contains the family of the Rev. Leonard Hoar, third president of Harvard College, a man too liberal for his times.

He was forced by the General Court of the Massachusetts Bay Colony to resign at the instigation of religious opponents and jealous colleagues for permitting Harvard to "languish and decay." Eight months later in November 1675, he was dead at 45.

In 1975, the same General Court, now of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, righted the 300-year-old wrong done to the Rev. Mr. Hoar by "proclaiming and confirming his innocence of any misdeeds while president of Harvard College."

The cemetery, on Hancock St., Quincy Sq., next to City Hall, is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

Moswetuset Hummock

'Birthplace Of Massachusetts'

The Indians saw it as a hill (wetuset) shaped like an arrowhead (mos) so they called it "Moswetuset" and when English tongues got through mangling the word it came out "Massachusetts," which became the name of the bay and then the state.

The little wooded hillock near the junction of East Squantum St. and Quincy Shore Drive was once the seat of the sachem Chickatabot, who comes down through the pages of Quincy history as a rather pathetic figure.

He was the chief of the Moswetuset Indians, a once great tribe that occupied the coast north of Plymouth.

A few years before, under the great sachem Nanepashemet, the Moswetuset had been able to field some 3,000 warriors for a war with the Nanepashemet was killed.

Then came the plague.

In two years the mighty Moswetuset were all but wiped out. No more than 60 of them were left to till their fields on the banks of the Neponset River. Sachem Chickatabot fled his home on the hill in Wollaston and took refuge on Moswetuset Hummock.

That was the situation in 1621 when Capt. Myles Standish landed from a shallop with an exploring party of Plymouth Pilgrims that included the Indian guide Squanto (or Tsquantum), whose name was given to the peninsula that stuck out in the bay.

The tragic Chickatabot died not long after the Pilgrims' visit and he was succeeded as sachem by his son, Josiah Wampatuck, a boy who knew a good deal when he saw one.

Wampatuck sold what was left of his virtually deserted tribal lands to a group of whites for 12 pounds, 10 shillings. The lands included most of what is today the city of Quincy and the towns of Braintree, Randolph and Holbrook.

At 78 She Skydives 10,000 Feet!

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Doris Oberg of Quincy has walked the Great Wall of China, seen the majestic Taj Mahal and flown around the world in the supersonic Concorde jet.

Oberg, who will turn 79 Dec. 1, recently added a new chapter to her exciting life. The mother of one and grandmother of three safely parachuted from a Cessna plane 10,000 feet above Warm Springs, Georgia, on June 29.

The skydive was not only memorable but also a bit historic for Oberg, who is a past president of the Quincy Historical Society and an active member to this day. When she leaped from the plane in tandem with instructor Robert Long, Oberg became the oldest person to skydive from Roosevelt Memorial Field in Warm Springs, Ga.

Some people may consider skydiving nearly two miles off the ground and free falling at a rate of 100 miles an hour before a parachute opens risky business. But for Oberg, it was just another lifelong dream come true.

A former pilot, she said she really warmed up to the idea of jumping out of a plane after going up on skydiving expeditions with her niece, Barbara (Shalit) Kazmierczak. A Quincy native, Kazmierczak is one of three female commercial airlines pilots in the United States. She has also skydived more than 1700 times.

"I had gone out a couple of times with Barbara and I wore a chute but they wouldn't let me jump because I had no instruction but I had to wear the chute," she said.

Oberg, who stands five feet tall, also said the newer, larger parachutes make landings less shocking on the body. The parachute she used measured 450 square feet. In the past, typical chutes measured 150 square feet, making tough landings common.

"I've always wanted to do it but as I said there was no point to do it in the conditions there were but the conditions have changed. You can have

$2-$3.2 Million In Red

More Cuts Now! Override In Fall?

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Facing a $2 to $3.2 million shortfall in FY 92, Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday city departments will undergo another round of budget cuts including layoffs, and taxpayers may face a Proposition 2 1/2 override question in the fall.

On Tuesday, Sheets announced the FY 92 budget of $121,869,018 will have to be slashed between $2 million and $3.2 million because of lost state local aid and lower than expected city revenue receipts.

According to the state's FY 92 budget, Quincy will receive $5.3 million less in local aid over last year. In preparing the city's FY 92 spending plan, Sheets anticipated a $3 million cut in local aid. Because that figure is $5.3 million, another $2.3 million must be made up or cut from the budget.

In addition, last year's receipts came in at $22 million, not the $24.5 million which was budgeted for this year. State law prohibits municipalities from budgeting more in receipt revenue than was collected the previous year.

Because expenses are "down to bare bones" and there is no capital outlay appropriations in the budget, the mayor said the lost local aid and low receipts will force the city to make the toughest budgets cut since he took office in January, 1990.

He also noted there are no vacant jobs to eliminate because all positions are filled.

"There will be layoffs. I see absolutely no way to avoid them. Our expenses are down to bare bones, we have no capital outlay budget. All we have are people.

"If we cut X number of positions, 75 percent of them will be people. This will be the toughest round of cuts," he said.

Sheets said he will discuss specific layoff numbers after he meets with department heads and the unions. Because 81 percent of the city's discretionary budget is spent on schools, fire and police, a majority of the layoffs would likely come from those three departments.

"Any cut you make now will impact public service. It's as simple as that," the mayor said, adding the School Committee will determine the nature of the cuts in the education budget. The mayor is vice chairman of the School Committee.

Last month, Sheets said a $2 million shortfall could result in as many as 50 to 60 layoffs in the school, fire and police departments.

Other cost-saving measures, including school consolidations and fire station closings, will be looked at.

Besides the budget cuts, Sheets must also make a decision whether to call for a Proposition 2 and a half override question as part of "Super Tuesday," Sept. 24.

Under a section in the FY 92 state budget signed by Gov. William Weld, the mayor with the city council's approval, can place an override question before

Sheets To Launch $2 Million Fundraising Drive For Lexington

With state approval for a U.S.S. Lexington Commission near, Mayor James Sheets and aides plan to step up its bid for the celebrated aircraft carrier by launching a $2 million capital fundraising campaign.

In addition, Sheets said negotiations to purchase land at the former Quincy Lumberyard near the Town River will also increase. The mayor and other officials tied to the Lexington effort want the ship to be situated at the mouth of the Town River.

They scrapped their plans to bring the vessel to the former General Dynamics shipyard in Quincy Point, where she was built, after learning the carrier's flight deck is too wide to fit through the Fore River bridge.

It would cost an estimated $5 to 12 million to replace the flight deck, Sheets said. "Also, we weren't sure how the Navy would respond to that. They don't like people cutting up their carriers."

Legislation which would create the Lexington Commission was approved by the Senate last week. It was expected to be passed by the House this week and perhaps signed into law by Gov. Weld as early as Friday.

"The commission would give us the power to bond up to $10 million. Bonds would be sold on the general bond market," Sheets said, adding the bonds would be backed by the salvage value of the ship ($2.4 million) and the value of the land ($3 to $4 million).

Sheets said an estimated $5.5 million is needed to cover the costs of bringing the ship up to Quincy from Pensacola, Fla.; dredging the Town River, and prepare the location as a tourist site. The money would also pay for a road through the site, parking lot and a concrete "cradle" for the ship.

Since the Army Corps of Engineers will dredge the river, "We would have to make sure the carrier, which would really be at the mouth of where Town River empties out, wouldn't retard the flow of the Town River and cause a flood.

"We would use a cradle for the ship. When (the cradle) gets filled with water, the carrier would float. When the water is low, the carrier would settle right down into the cradle," the mayor explained.

"We could artificially pump the cradle dry every year and work on the ship's hull and the water from the Town River would circulate around the carrier and around

No Word Yet On Date Of Special Election In Third Norfolk District

The wait continues in the Third Norfolk District.

As of late Tuesday afternoon, there was still no date set for the special election for state representative in the Third Norfolk District.

Robert Cerasoli, who held the seat for 18 years, stepped down after he was named the state's new inspector general late last month. Since then, city officials and potential candidates have been waiting for House Speaker Charles Flaherty to set a date for the special election.

As the Sun went to press Tuesday, Flaherty's press secretary, Peter Lucas, said the speaker had not set a date. The special election is expected to be held in October.

Interest in Cerasoli's seat has been heavy. To date, as many as nine potential candidates are considering running for the seat which represents portions of South Quincy and North Weymouth.

The potential candidates include seven Quincy residents and two Weymouth residents.

Those from Quincy are: Cheryl Balzano, 29, a senior accountant for State Street Bank; Francis "Sandy" Eaton, 47, a nurse at Quincy Hospital; Quincy attorney Anthony Falco, 28; former Mayor Joseph LaRaia, 58; Ron Mariano, 44, a member of the Quincy School Committee; Michael Marshall, 26, employed in the MBTA capital improvements program; and Bruce Tobin, 28, a research analyst in the House Post Audit and Oversight Bureau.

Two Weymouth residents are also mulling a run: Atty. Jack McGlone, 33, who has worked in a number of local political campaigns; and Thomas Tanner, 53, former DPW commissioner.

Quincy Atty. Daniel Raymondi and Weymouth selectman Jack Carey will not enter the race. Raymondi is considering a run for the school committee while Carey cannot run for representative because he has not lived in the district for one year.

'Best Buy' Meeting Tonight

Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley will conduct a community meeting tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the former "Best Buy" discount store (now vacant) at Quincy Shore Dr. and East Squantum St. to hear the owners' proposal to convert the building to a 'mini-mall' of 6 to 12 specialty stores.

"I expect a large attendance of interested residents for a variety of reasons," Nutley said. "Their major concern will be the potential for increased traffic and congestion at this busy Quincy Shore Dr.-East Squantum St. location. Food shops, cooking odors, noise, late night hours of operation, etc., are other issues that will have to be addressed."

"The proponents will apply for special permits at the city's Zoning Board of Appeals later this summer. However," Nutley said, "this is the best opportunity for area residents to hear the proponents plans and to have their concerns addressed, before the ZBA hearings take place."

The proposal is expected to go before the ZBA either July 30 or Aug. 6.

Margaret King Candidate For School Committee

Margaret "Peggy" King, 49 Avalon Ave., Quincy Point, announces her candidacy for a four-year term on the School Committee.

King, 72, is a long-time political activist in Quincy, and a close observer of the school committee. This interest has continued since her retirement from the Quincy public schools, where she was a mathematics teacher at North Quincy High School and head of the mathematics department at Quincy High School during her 27-year career.

She said she is running for school committee because "I knew I could not help our children from the sidelines. It's time for me to enter the arena."

King said she will campaign on a platform of "true fiscal responsibility." First, she wants a clear, understandable budget.

"We need to spend what we have wisely, and to know where all our money goes. Renting tuxedos, for example, may be a small item, but we spent that money at a time of book shortages," she said, adding such spending indicates misplaced priorities.

Concerning a recent proposal by School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci to study the school system, King said she agrees that Quincy needs a long-range study of the schools so that "we can have facts and figures before we have premature discussions about closing or consolidating schools."

She also said when the School Committee voted $25,000 for such a study, guidelines should have been set for the superintendent as to what the study would entail. "I believe it would be inappropriate for the study to include proposals about educational changes in the system," King said. "Those proposals should be the prerogative of the incoming superintendent, not the outgoing one."

King cites her background as setting her apart from the other candidates. In addition to her teaching experience, she has 17 years experience in the business world as a work supervisor and insurance underwriter. "My math and business experience will help keep our fiscal house in order. My teaching experience involved me in a wide range of educational experiments."

"I know what works--and I know what doesn't work."

King is also calling for: "Greater involvement of senior citizens in the schools, so that seniors will know how cost effective good schools are, and what a good investment it is to support schools."

"Improved public relations for the schools. King said the public needs to know of the positive successes, excellent teachers and innovative programs already in place, despite funding problems in recent years."

"Improving School Committee advocacy for public education. To gain support for city schools, King stresses the need to build better bridges between the schools and parents, adults without children in the schools, business, seniors, city and state government.

"Implementation of school-based management. King said this means that those people who are an integral part of the school should become integral in the decision-making process, including budgeting, for that school. This would involve teachers, parents, other community members and school administration."

"Changing the policy for filling vacant principalships. Such jobs, King says, should be posted and advertised for the school where the vacancy exists. This is not current administration policy."

King is a single parent of one daughter, and grandmother of three. She holds a bachelor's degree from Radcliffe College in mathematics, a master's degree in secondary mathematics from Boston State College, and many other graduate course credits.

She is a member of the Ward 2 Civic Association, the Quincy Historical Society and the Quincy Retired Teachers Association, for whom she serves on the scholarship committee and as chair of the legislative committee. She is one of the founders of Citizens for Quality Education in Quincy.

King's first fundraiser and official announcement party will be held Tuesday, July 23 from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. at the Hollow Restaurant. Tickets are $15 per person. $25 per couple and will be available at the door as well as by reservation by check to Treasurer, Committee to Elect Margaret King, 55 Avalon Ave., Quincy, MA 02169.

Thursday, Friday, Saturday Activities Wedding, Bridal Show Sidewalk Sale Highlights

By JANE ARENA

The Annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Sale Days, which begins today and continue through Saturday, will feature more activities, attractions and entertainment than ever before and is expected to draw a large crowd to Quincy Center.

Highlighted by a Bridal Show Friday night at 6:30, and the actual wedding of Kim Gagel and Stephen McCann at 2:30 Saturday afternoon under a tent at the Bank of New England, the Sidewalk Sale Days will also feature over 75 selling and activity booths, special attractions, music and entertainment throughout the three day event.

Richard Carriger, Chairman of the Sidewalk Sale Committee of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, which sponsors the event, says this year's Sidewalk Sale will be "the busiest ever."

"We expect to have big crowds this year," he said. "We're expecting that with the wedding and the bridal show it's going to be very big. There's been a lot of publicity about the wedding, there's a lot of interest in it."

Along with annual favorites including the Ronald McDonald Show, puppets, clowns, kiddie rides, balloons, face painting and, of course, bargain buys from Quincy Center businesses and shops, added attractions will offer something for virtually everyone.

One of the biggest draws is sure to be an appearance by Hall of Fame hockey defenseman Bobby Orr tonight from 6:30 to 7:30 at Granite and Hancock St. Orr, who helped lead the Boston Bruins to two Stanley Cup championships in the early 1970's, will be working with the Quincy Coalition for the Prevention of Substance Abuse, and will be available to sign autographs.

Other highlights include the following:

- The Quincy Fire Department will offer a demonstration of a hazardous waste spill incident today at 2:30 p.m., and a demonstration of the Jaws of Life Friday at 2:30 p.m. at Clividen St.
- The U.S. Air Force will display a miniature F-16 jet plane.
- The Quincy Art Association will hold an art sale throughout the event at 1598 Hancock St.
- The Norfolk County D.A.'s office will be on hand with a demonstration by a drug sniffing dog today and Friday at 3 p.m.

- MCI will have a Calling Center each day across from child World and visitors will be able to make a 3 to 5 minute long distance phone call to anywhere in the world.

- Quincy fifth graders will present a DARE skit on drug abuse Friday at 1 p.m. at Granite and Hancock Sts.

In addition there will be entertainment for children and adults alike during all three days of the Sidewalk Sale.

Sale.

- The Ronald McDonald Show, always a favorite with children, will be held today and Friday at 1 p.m. in front of Woolworth's.

- The Baron Hugo Orchestra will perform in front of the Bank of New England Saturday from noon to 2 p.m., before the wedding.

- Masquerade -- The Performance Troupe of Riverside Theatre Works will perform Thursday and Friday afternoon in front of the Bank of New England.

- Henry the Juggler will perform under the Big Tent at Bank of New England today from 2 to 4:30 p.m.

- Russ Costa will play acoustic guitar today from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. at Hancock and Granite Sts.

- The band Not Yet will perform folk and acoustic music tonight from 6 to 7:30 p.m.

- Greek Dancers will entertain today and Friday afternoon in front of Taso's Pizza.

And there will be plenty of other attractions and activities to keep everyone entertained while they hunt for the bargains from Quincy Center shops.

Radio station WJDA will have a roaming reporter throughout the Sidewalk Sale conducting live interviews, and Continental Cablevision will be doing a live broadcast all day today.

Throughout the event Hancock St. between Granite and School Sts. will be closed to traffic to form a pedestrian mall.

Many, Many Gifts Donated For Wedding

Anyone who's ever been married or closely involved in planning a wedding can attest to the fact that there are a hundred little details and last minute pressures to contend with. But for Kim Gagel of Quincy and Stephen McCann of Hanover, most of that pressure is off their shoulders.

The couple, who will marry Saturday at 2:30 p.m. on Hancock St. as the highlight of the Quincy Center Sidewalk Sale Days, may have the normal pre-wedding jitters (perhaps more-so, considering the crowd of thousands anticipated to witness their marriage), but almost every detail of their wedding has been taken care of by Quincy and area merchants who have donated a wedding package valued at several thousand dollars.

Thanks to the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA) which planned the event along with Major Productions, Inc., Kim and Stephen didn't have to deal with bothersome little details like a wedding gown, a catered reception and gifts for their bridal party. They don't have to worry about the flowers, the wedding cake or the photographer -- all of it has been taken care of and donated by merchants.

The merchants and their donations toward the happy event are:

A Step Above Limousine, a wedding limo.

Aicardi's Bakery, the wedding cake.

Alphagraphics, thank you cards.

Balloons & Stuff, a balloon archway for the ceremony.

Bernie's Formal Shop, tuxedo for groom and groomsmen.

In addition, several other merchants have donated a prize package of wedding gifts for the happy couple. Gifts, including merchandise and gift certificates, have been donated by:

Barkers, Baskin Robbins Ice Cream, Bernie's Formal Shop, Colman's Sporting Goods, Dunkin' Donuts, Entertainment Cinemas, Frantic Framers;

Previous to the wedding, Friday at 6:30 p.m., there will be a Bridal Fashion Show in front of the Bank of New England on Hancock St. Fashions to be modeled were donated by Bernie's Formal Shop, Caryn's Corner, Colman's Sporting Goods, Cummings, Lillian's Fashions and Bridal and T.J. Maxx.

More Cuts Now! Override In Fall?

voters Tuesday, Sept. 24.

Essentially, the question would ask voters if they want to override Proposition 2 and a half to make up lost local aid. It is called "Super Tuesday" because other communities could call override questions for that date.

In Quincy, the override figure would be $5.3 million. According to Auditor Robert Foy, a $5.3 million override question approved by voters would result in homeowners paying an additional six percent of their real estate bill. For example, a homeowner with a $2,000 real estate bill for the year would pay another six percent or $120 if the override passed.

On Tuesday, Sheets said he was undecided on the override. "I want to meet with each city councillor individually before making a decision," he said, adding that the mayor and the city council would both have to approve it before the question could appear on the ballot.

The override would be a one-time exclusion, not included in the tax base for purposes of calculating future years' levy limits. In this respect, it would be similar to a debt exclusion or capital-outlay exclusion.

On Tuesday, Sheets said he would meet with each councillor "over the next three days."

If there is an override question in Quincy this year, it will have to be called next week at a special city council meeting. Friday, July 26 is the last day communities can call for an override question as part of Super Tuesday.

If mayor and city council call for the override, the city's preliminary election, which is scheduled for Sept. 17, would be held Sept. 24 in order to save the expense of two elections.

According to City Clerk John Gillis said the override question must be proposed by the mayor. A citizens' group cannot petition for the "Super Tuesday" override question as written in the state budget.

Two Downtowns

Stroll along Hancock St. these days and you get the feeling Quincy has not one but two downtowns. Downtown North - the pretty one - starts at Granite St. and extends north past Hancock Cemetery, First Parish Church, City Hall and the manicured McIntyre Mall to Adams St.

In between are a grass topped traffic island, beautiful flower beds and handsome historical style posts and street lights and spanking white pedestrian crosswalks. Downtown South -- the not so pretty one -- also starts at Granite St. and extends south to School and Elm Sts.

In between are a number of empty storefronts, a few deteriorating store signs and a nearly invisible pedestrian crosswalk at Cottage Ave. that looks like it hasn't seen any paint since Amelio Della Chiesa was mayor.

And there is little -- and more often no -- police presence in this retail-business district.

The other day I saw an elderly woman trying to cross from in front of the Hancock Tobacco store to Ryder's on the other side. She stood there frightened and confused as cars zoomed by as though it was the Indianapolis 500.

Maybe the drivers didn't see the crosswalk -- what's left of it. But regardless, Hancock St. has become a speedway. Police presence is needed. If we gave as much attention to moving cars as we do to those parked at meters, downtown would be a lot safer and more inviting to shoppers.

There have been recent incidents of shoplifting in the area and a plate glass store window smashed. Little things can soon graduate into big things -- like holdups and muggings -- and more vandalism -- without police presence.

Of course, these are different times as everyone knows. Money is tight and will be for some time to come.

Mayor James Sheets, who has turned Downtown North into a thing of beauty has plans to spruce up Downtown South. And the day will come when those empty stores are occupied and the district is viable as it once was. Maybe more so.

Meanwhile, maybe Police Chief Frank Mullen, who has had to juggle his available manpower could juggle a little more of it into this area to halt the speeding cars, and keep it from becoming a crime area, which it easily could.

A bucket of white paint would quickly restore that crosswalk at Cottage Ave. Little old ladies and everyone else wouldn't have to play Roger the Dodger to get across Hancock St.

Any maybe some of the store owners themselves could do something about some of those signs. And the landlords might do a little exterior face lifting.

Things are going to get better. And when they do, downtown Quincy is going to be one of the places where new businesses will want to locate.

Quincy has a good future.

But right now, the present could use a little attention.

It could be the beginning of one Downtown Quincy again -- and one good one.

THERE WAS A ribbon cutting on the Fourth of July at the Manet Ave., Houghs Neck home of former Mayor Frank and Sandra McCauley.

And Mayor James Sheets was on hand to do the official honors.

McCAULEY

The ribbon cutting was for Sandra's Sun Porch, as it is known in the McCauley family.

She spent five years trying to talk McCauley, who enjoys the reputation of penny pincher, into having the sun porch built.

SANDRA

"I worked on him like a dripping faucet," she says. "He finally gave in."

Although the ribbon cutting ceremony had its fun moments -- considering it was a sunporch and not a multi-million dollar building that was being officially opened -- Sheets turned serious to tell the McCauleys how much he and his wife "value your friendship."

SHEETS

And, by the way, who do you think is really enjoying the sun porch? Yep, the former His Honor.

Welcome Wagon

The letter from Mr. S. Giarratani published in The Quincy Sun on July 11 regarding the community meeting that I have scheduled on July 18 at the former Best Buy discount store was a classic example of naiveve on Mr. Giarratani's part.

Mr. Giarratani's allegations that I, or "folks at City Hall" support the proposed mini-mall of 6-12 specialty stores and an outdoor water purifying machine were just plain silly and inaccurate.

To explain: the proponents had held a hastily scheduled meeting with a limited number of nearby residents and then planned to go before the Zoning Board of Appeals just a few days later to obtain the special permits for the mini-mall and the vending machine.

I asked the proponents to withdraw from that scheduled ZBA meeting so that I could first schedule a community meeting of all concerned residents of this area preceded by my timely notice to the entire community.

It is my policy to provide community residents the opportunity to review such proposals at a community meeting before the proponent is allowed to appear before city boards to gain the necessary permits.

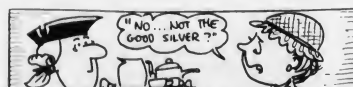

The Quincy Shore Drive-East Squantum Street intersection and its well-known traffic problems area of great concern to many who must pass through this intersection daily. We were recently granted $1.3 million by the MWRA to redesign and reconstruct this intersection. I believe that a more rigorous review of this mini-mall proposal must take place before the proponent appears before the Z.B.A.

In closing, let me point out that it is the owner of the property who wants the permits so that he might construct the mini-mall and the outdoor water purifying vending machine. Neither I, nor any other city official has expressed an opinion on this proposals as alleged by Mr. Giarratani. My only concern, at this time, is to provide my constituents the opportunity to hear this proposal and to fully review it before they, or I, form an opinion on it.

Oh well...this is an election year and perhaps Mr. Giarratani's comments have less to do with naiveve and more to do with politics. Hopefully, he will attend at 7 p.m., Thursday, July 18, and clarify his remarks.

SLEEPWALKING

Ghoulish expression, low halting gait, arms extended, a trance-like state - the stereotypical image of the sleepwalker, or somnambulist, is dramatic but not very accurate. Real-life somnambulists look and walk normally, perform fairly mundane activities, and are not dangerous, except to themselves. Sleepwalking is a sleep disorder in which the "half asleep, half awake" individual may move about in bed, walk, get dressed, etc. Because reactions and judgment are significantly impaired, the sleepwalker may injure him or herself by tripping over furniture or falling downstairs or out of windows. The adventures generally end quietly as the somnambulist falls asleep in a strange place or returns to bed. Episodes of sleepwalking begin in the first three hours of night and usually last less than 15-30 minutes. During an episode, the sleepwalker is not communicative and is very difficult to wake.

P.S. In the morning, somnambulists remember nothing about their activities, not even dreaming them.

At 78 She Skydives 10,000 Feet!

an instructor with you, and this tremendous chute makes the landing easier."

Comparing her jump to her other notable achievements, Oberg said, "It wasn't that startling or one bit scary. But it's something I've always wanted to do so it's very satisfying."

One aspect of her jump that stands out is the quietness she experienced. "You get no sound up there."

Although this was her first jump, Oberg is no stranger to the skies. Back in the late 1920s and early 1930s, she had a learner's permit to fly biplanes out of the former Dennison Airport at the corner of East Squantum St. and Quincy Shore Dr. "I never did a great deal with it but I did fly solo."

That's something that pioneer aviator Amelia Earhart apparently never did out of Dennison. Oberg said Earhart took flying lessons out of Dennison but never flew solo out of the former airport. "She went out of (Dennison) with others and took lessons but as far as I know, she never flew out of there solo."

Oberg decided to skydive a few months ago while visiting her niece who lives in Georgia. "Barbara" just had a new baby and I went down to see the baby and when I did I found that her sister-in-law had done this jump and I said 'that's for me.' So we made all these arrangements so that when I came down for the christening I would do this jump.

"I didn't tell anybody in case it didn't come off," she said, adding several factors, including weather, could have postponed her jump.

Before her skydive, Oberg had one hour of instruction, from viewing videotapes to acting out the bailout motions on a mock plane. There's also a lot of paperwork, for liability reasons. "Nobody is responsible for anything that happens to you," she pointed out.

After the instruction was completed, Oberg boarded the plane with her chute and her instructor, Robert Long. They went down together, in tandem, but it was Oberg who took that first step down.

"When the pilot says 'okay,' you let go and the guy is one your back. You're the one that does everything but he's on your back. You're laced together very tight."

In a way, Oberg's biplane days more than prepared her for her jump. "The sensation of going out on the wing and the rush of air was nothing to me because when I used to fly you had to wear goggles and stick your head out to see what you were doing."

"When you're up there looking it's just like being in an airplane. You just see the ground coming and then you land," she said matter of factly.

"I don't think they really thought I would do it," Oberg said, referring to Long and the plane's pilot, Will Mills. "(Long) was so tickled because when Barbara told him and I think when he got a good look at me he kind of wondered why she go through with it?"

Why did she jump in tandem?

"I've always thought I'd like to jump but I never could see spending the money or the time to learn how to do it by myself. You have to take quite a few extensive lessons and also when you did it by yourself years ago it was as hard a landing as jumping off a 10-foot wall."

"You had to learn how to land and how to roll

and all that business and what was the point for one jump," Oberg reasoned, noting her tandem skydive cost $175 for the instructions and equipment loan.

Asked whether she will skydive again, she replied, "No, I wouldn't do it again, there's no point to it and why should I spend the money for it."

"There would be no point to it. I wanted to do it once in my life, jump out of an airplane, and I've done it. Now I'm satisfied."

And what achievement is next for Oberg?

"I don't know, really. I'm sort of happy. I've sort of done what I've wanted to do." But, she adds, "Oh, I'll think of something."

voters Tuesday, Sept. 24.

Essentially, the question would ask voters if they want to override Proposition 2 and a half to make up lost local aid. It is called "Super Tuesday" because other communities could call override questions for that date.

In Quincy, the override figure would be $5.3 million. According to Auditor Robert Foy, a $5.3 million override question approved by voters would result in homeowners paying an additional six percent of their real estate bill. For example, a homeowner with a $2,000 real estate bill for the year would pay another six percent or $120 if the override passed.

On Tuesday, Sheets said he was undecided on the override. "I want to meet with each city councillor individually before making a decision," he said, adding that the mayor and the city council would both have to approve it before the question could appear on the ballot.

The override would be a one-time exclusion, not included in the tax base for purposes of calculating future years' levy limits. In this respect, it would be similar to a debt exclusion or capital-outlay exclusion.

On Tuesday, Sheets said he would meet with each councillor "over the next three days."

If there is an override question in Quincy this year, it will have to be called next week at a special city council meeting. Friday, July 26 is the last day communities can call for an override question as part of Super Tuesday.

If mayor and city council call for the override, the city's preliminary election, which is scheduled for Sept. 17, would be held Sept. 24 in order to save the expense of two elections.

According to City Clerk John Gillis said the override question must be proposed by the mayor. A citizens' group cannot petition for the "Super Tuesday" override question as written in the state budget.

Maybe the drivers didn't see the crosswalk -- what's left of it. But regardless, Hancock St. has become a speedway. Police presence is needed. If we gave as much attention to moving cars as we do to those parked at meters, downtown would be a lot safer and more inviting to shoppers.

There have been recent incidents of shoplifting in the area and a plate glass store window smashed. Little things can soon graduate into big things -- like holdups and muggings -- and more vandalism -- with out police presence.

Of course, these are different times as everyone knows. Money is tight and will be for some time to come.

Mayor James Sheets, who has turned Downtown North into a thing of beauty has plans to spruce up Downtown South. And the day will come when those empty stores are occupied and the district is viable as it once was. Maybe more so.

Meanwhile, maybe Police Chief Frank Mullen, who has had to juggle his available manpower could juggle a little more of it into this area to halt the speeding cars, and keep it from becoming a crime area, which it easily could.

A bucket of white paint would quickly restore that crosswalk at Cottage Ave. Little old ladies and every one else wouldn't have to play Roger the Dodger to get across Hancock St.

Any maybe some of the store owners themselves could do something about some of those signs. And the landlords might do a little exterior face lifting.

Things are going to get better. And when they do, downtown Quincy is going to be one of the places where new businesses will want to locate.

Quincy has a good future.

But right now, the present could use a little attention.

It could be the beginning of one Downtown Quincy again -- and one good one.

THERE WAS A ribbon cutting on the Fourth of July at the Manet Ave., Houghs Neck home of former Mayor Frank and Sandra McCauley.

And Mayor James Sheets was on hand to do the official honors.

McCAULEY

The ribbon cutting was for Sandra's Sun Porch, as it is known in the McCauley family.

She spent five years trying to talk McCauley, who enjoys the reputation of penny pincher, into having the sun porch built.

"I worked on him like a dripping faucet," she says. "He finally gave in."

Although the ribbon cutting ceremony had its fun moments -- considering it was a sunporch and not a multi-million dollar building that was being officially opened -- Sheets turned serious to tell the McCauleys how much he and his wife "value your friendship."

And, by the way, who do you think is really enjoying the sun porch? Yep, the former His Honor.

Welcome Wagon

The letter from Mr. S. Giarratani published in The Quincy Sun on July 11 regarding the community meeting that I have scheduled on July 18 at the former Best Buy discount store was a classic example of naivete on Mr. Giarratani's part.

Mr. Giarratani's allegations that I, or "folks at City Hall" support the proposed mini-mall of 6-12 specialty stores and an outdoor water purifying machine were just plain silly and inaccurate.

To explain: the proponents had held a hastily scheduled meeting with a limited number of nearby residents and then planned to go before the Zoning Board of Appeals just a few days later to obtain the special permits for the mini-mall and the vending machine.

I asked the proponents to withdraw from that scheduled ZBA meeting so that I could first schedule a community meeting of all concerned residents of this area preceded by my timely notice to the entire community.

It is my policy to provide community residents the opportunity to review such proposals at a community meeting before the proponent is allowed to appear before city boards to gain the necessary permits.

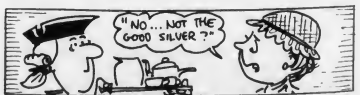

The Quincy Shore Drive-East Squantum Street intersection and its well-known traffic problems area of great concern to many who must pass through this intersection daily. We were recently granted $1.3 million by the MWRA to redesign and reconstruct this intersection. I believe that a more rigorous review of this mini-mall proposal must take place before the proponent appears before the Z.B.A.

In closing, let me point out that it is the owner of the property who wants the permits so that he might construct the mini-mall and the outdoor water purifying vending machine. Neither I, nor any other city official has expressed an opinion on this proposals as alleged by Mr. Giarratani. My only concern, at this time, is to provide my constituents the opportunity to hear this proposal and to fully review it before they, or I, form an opinion on it.

Oh well...this is an election year and perhaps Mr. Giarratani's comments have less to do with naivete and more to do with politics. Hopefully, he will attend at 7 p.m., Thursday, July 18, and clarify his remarks.

SLEEPWALKING

Ghoulish expression, a low halting gait, arms extended, a trance-like state - the stereotypical image of the sleepwalker, or somnambulist, is dramatic but not very accurate. Real-life somnambulists look and walk normally, perform fairly mundane activities, and are not dangerous, except to themselves. Sleepwalking is a sleep disorder in which the "half asleep, half awake" individual may move about in bed, walk, get dressed, etc. Because reactions and judgment are significantly impaired, the sleepwalker may injure him or herself by tripping over furniture or falling downstairs or out of windows. The adventures generally end quietly as the somnambulist falls asleep in a strange place or returns to bed. Episodes of sleepwalking begin in the first three hours of night and usually last less than 15-30 minutes. During an episode, the sleepwalker is not communicative and is very difficult to wake.

P.S. In the morning, somnambulists remember nothing about their activities, not even dreaming them.

At 78 She Skydives 10,000 Feet!

an instructor with you, and this tremendous chute makes the landing easier."

Comparing her jump to her other notable achievements, Oberg said, "It wasn't that startling or one bit scary. But it's something I've always wanted to do so it's very satisfying."

One aspect of her jump that stands out is the quietness she experienced. "You get no sound up there."

Although this was her first jump, Oberg is no stranger to the skies. Back in the late 1920s and early 1930s, she had a learner's permit to fly biplanes out of the former Dennison Airport at the corner of East Squantum St. and Quincy Shore Dr. "I never did a great deal with it but I did fly solo."

That's something that pioneer aviator Amelia Earhart apparently never did out of Dennison. Oberg said Earhart took flying lessons out of Dennison but never flew solo out of the former airport. "She went out of (Dennison) with others and took lessons but as far as I know, she never flew out of there solo."

Oberg decided to skydive a few months ago while visiting her niece who lives in Georgia. "Barbara just had a new baby and I went down to see the baby and when I did I found that her sister-in-law had done this jump and I said 'that's for me.' So we made all these arrangements so that when I came down for the christening I would do this jump."

"I didn't tell anybody in case it didn't come off," she said, adding several factors, including weather, could have postponed her jump.

Before her skydive, Oberg had one hour of instruction, from viewing videotapes to acting out the bailout motions on a mock plane. There's also a lot of paperwork, for liability reasons. "Nobody is responsible for anything that happens to you," she pointed out.

After the instruction was completed, Oberg boarded the plane with her chute and her instructor, Robert Long. They went down together, in tandem, but it was Oberg who took that first step down.

"When the pilot says 'okay,' you let go and the guy is one your back. You're the one that does everything but he's on your back. You're laced together very tight."

In a way, Oberg's biplane days more than prepared her for her jump. "The sensation of going out on the wing and the rush of air was nothing to me because when I used to fly you had to wear goggles and stick your head out to see what you were doing."

"When you're up there looking it's just like being in an airplane. You just see the ground coming and then you land," she said matter of factly.

"I don't think they really thought I would do it," Oberg said, referring to Long and the plane's pilot, Will Mills. "(Long) was so tickled because when Barbara told him and I think when he got a good look at me he kind of wondered will she go through with it?"

Why did she jump in tandem?

"I've always thought I'd like to jump but I never could see spending the money or the time to learn how to do it by myself. You have to take quite a few extensive lessons and also when you did it by yourself years ago it was as hard a landing as jumping off a 10-foot wall."

"You had to learn how to land and how to roll

FOR HER Quincy High School graduation photo in 1931, Doris (Shali) Oberg posed in her pilot garb: goggles, leather jacket and boots. Back in the late 1920s and early 1930s, she flew biplanes out of the former Dennison Airport in North Quincy.

and all that business and what was the point for one jump," Oberg reasoned, noting her tandem skydive cost $175 for the instructions and equipment loan.

Asked whether she will skydive again, she replied, "No, I wouldn't do it again, there's no point to it and why should I spend the money for it."

"There would be no point to it. I wanted to do it once in my life, jump out of an airplane, and I've done it. Now I'm satisfied."

And what achievement is next for Oberg?

"I don't know, really. I'm sort of happy. I've sort of done what I've wanted to do." But she adds, "Oh, I'll think of something."

Ross Names Herbert DPW Commissioner

Mayor Ross named Charles R. Herbert, son of former City Council President Dr. Charles J. Herbert of Squantum, as public works commissioner, succeeding the late James P. Donovan, who died at City Hospital at age 60.

Ross said he also plans to combine the jobs of commissioner and city engineer, the post Herbert held since January. He was then the youngest city engineer at the age of 35.

Herbert announced that Aug. 2 had been chosen as the day that parking meters would go into operation in downtown Quincy, starting with a two-week probationary period when police would issue warnings instead of tickets.

Three hundred and 63 meters arrived in Quincy from the Dual Parking Meter Co. of Canton, Ohio.

New Labor-Management Center At Quincy College

Quincy College has established a new center dedicated to labor and management issues.

The Edward T. Sullivan Center will offer conferences and seminars, certificates and degree programs and a library and research facility. The center is intended "to promote economic competitiveness by increasing cooperation between business, labor and government," according to college President Dr. O. Clayton Johnson.

A 13-member council will advise on topics of mutual interest to unions and industries in the Greater Boston area. Council members include Boston University President John Silber; Ron Kaufman, a Quincy College graduate and aide to President Bush; and Christine Morris, Massachusetts labor secretary.

The center is named for Edward T. Sullivan, business manager of Local 254 of the Service Employees International Union. This is the largest union local in New England with more than 17,000 members.

Quincy College is the only municipally sponsored community college in Massachusetts. Although publicly chartered, it is private funded and receives no tax money for support. Currently, it is the second fastest growing college in the commonwealth, enrolling more than 3,400 students in day, evening and off-campus programs.

For information on the Sullivan Center call (617) 984-1780.

Achilleus Hatzopoulos, 61

Worked In Food Service Industry

Mr. Hatzopoulos died July 10.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

The hustle and bustle of life is much like a billiard game. Just as billiard balls bump into one another, we are constantly making contact with persons.

There is a big difference, however, between our contacts and that of the hard billiard ball. One ball hits another and moves it, leaving no marks on either ball. With people it is different, for we leave some kind of mark on everyone we contact. This mark may be ugly if we are mean, selfish, and unthinking. If we are thoughtful and kind, the mark we leave may contribute to the other person's development and enrichment. As we travel our path, we need to be more aware of those around us - our family, friends, business associates, persons of other churches, nationalities, and races.

All of us, no matter what age, have some kind of influence. What kind of responses are we encouraging in others?

For those times when the darkness lingers

With the loss of a loved one through death, it is helpful to be able to share the feelings and emotions which we all experience.

For most of us, there are family members, clergy, and friends who are ready to listen in a caring way.

Yet, there are those who find it helpful to share their grief with someone outside their immediate circle of support.

Because of our continuing commitment to the families we serve, Keohane Funeral Service is pleased to announce that Dr. Sherry Johnson has joined our staff as a Grief Counselor. Her educational background, professional experience and understanding manner can be particularly helpful.

We are the first funeral home in New England to offer the service of a Grief Counselor.

A Few Words on FUNERAL SERVICE

What do you say to a grieving widow?

DON'T say "I know how you feel." You just can't know.

Better to hold her hand firmly with a simple "I'm sorry." No long eulogies. Listening and just being there shows you care.

Don't try to jolt her out of her grief, she must first accept the loss and this takes time.

Offer to help her as best you can and your shoulder to lean on.

Most important: make a point of visiting with her later when everyone's gone and she's alone and lonely.

Crane Library Has Audio Tapes To Help With Legal Questions

The Massachusetts Bar Association has presented Thomas Crane Public Library with a collection of audio tapes that will help library patrons with basic legal questions.

Each year, the MBA's Lawyer Referral Service receives 50,000 calls from citizens across the state who are seeking attorneys. What many of these callers require is basic legal information, not lawyers, according to the association.

The series of tapes is entitled "You and the Law." Each tape is between one and five minutes long, in easy-to-understand language, and explains one area of the law.

Topics include buying a home, separation and divorce, consumer complaints, employment discrimination, deportation, rights of the arrested, medical and legal malpractice and more. There are 16 tapes with a total of 32 messages.

The tapes are a public service of the MBA's lawyer referral program and were produced by Chart Productions in Boston.

Legion Baseball

Morrisette Clinches Playoff Berth

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Morrisette Legion baseball team clinched a playoff spot Monday night when it defeated Canton, 9-3, to improve to 12-2 with two games remaining. Randolph remained in second place with a 9-2 mark.

Meanwhile, Wollaston had a heartbreaking week, losing three straight one-run decisions to playoff teams Morrisette, Randolph and Braintree. Wollaston fell to 6-8 with two games left.

Morrisette finishes the regular season hosting winless Quincy last night (Wednesday) and Milton Friday, both games at Adams Field at 8:30. The playoffs start next Tuesday.

Hard-luck Wollaston hosts Canton tonight (Thursday) night at 8 at Adams Field.

Gary Rawdon improved his record to 5-1 for Morrisette against Canton with a three-hitter, striking out 12 and walking only one.

Canton took a 1-0 lead in the first but Morrisette, which had 10 hits, scored four runs in the third on three hits, two walks and a wild pitch. Pat Clifford had two RBI and Serge Belcastro one.

Morrisette batted around and scored five runs in the fifth on four hits.

Mike Baylis singled home two runs, Clifford one with a double, Rawdon one and Liam Higgins one. Baylis had three hits, including a double, Robbie Kane had a single.

Morrisette pounded Holbrook, 25-5, last Friday, the most runs scored by Morrisette in at least 20 years. The team batted around in the first, third and fourth innings.

Morrisette pounded three pitchers for 21 hits, coupled with eight walks and several errors. Clifford got his first pitching start and pitched five innings to pick up the win. Billy Warren pitched two hitless innings.

Kane had a triple and two singles and five RBI, Mark Kelliher a triple, double and single and four RBI, Pat Shea three singles and four RBI, Tom Balzano a double and two singles and an RBI, Higgins and Clifford two hits each, Clifford having a triple and three RBI, Mike Patch a double, Rawdon a single and RBI and Mike Malvesti, Mike Kenny and Noel DiBona a single each.

Earlier in the week Morrisette squeezed by Wollaston in nine innings, 2-1, in one of the finest pitching duels in some time between Morrisette's Baylis and Wollaston's Chad McMahon.

Both pitchers went the distance with a throwing error accounting for the winning run in the ninth. Baylis pitched his best game, giving up one unearned run on four hits, striking out a career-high 15 and walking only one. He improved to 4-0 and dropped his ERA under 1.00. McMahon matched Baylis pitch for pitch and both Morrisette runs were unearned. He allowed four hits, struck out six and walked three. Earlier, he had blanked Morrisette, 2-0, with a three-hitter.

Wollaston's Dave Gamsby opened the game with a triple to right center and scored on a wild pitch.

Morrisette tied it in the third when Balzano reached second on a throwing error, went to third on a ground out and scored on Kelliher's sacrifice fly. That was all the scoring until the ninth with both teams playing excellent defense. Twice Morrisette runners were thrown out at third base.

In the ninth Rawdon opened with a double, Balzano was walked intentionally and Rawdon scored easily when the catcher threw wildly trying to catch Balzano off first.

Belcastro had a double

Junior League

Keohane's Lands Playoff Spot, Eliminates Rotary

Keohane's qualified for the Quincy Junior Baseball League playoffs and eliminated Rotary with a 9-5 victory.

Ryan Herlihy was the winning pitcher and struck out 11.

Dave Keddy went 4-for-4, Chris Cummings had a double and two singles, Herlihy, Pat McGann, Pat Cummings and Shawn Manning two hits apiece and Ryan Deshler one. Pat Coughlin, Danny Stock, Ray Sartre, Ryan Barrett, Scott Howard and Chris Moody played well defensively.

Keohane's also walloped Kiwanis, 18-6, with Herlihy pitching four innings and striking out seven. McGann pitched the last two innings.

McGann had a big game with five hits including a double. Keddy had a double and three singles, Robbie Winter a double and Herlihy and Pat Cummings singles. Winter made a great throw from center field to nab a runner at the plate for the final out, Manning making a nice tag.

Foley Chrysler got ready for the playoffs by winning its last eight games and finishing the regular season with a 17-5 record.

Foley defeated Colonial

Federal, 14-5, and Rotary, 5-2, in its final two games.

Foley's top pitchers, Paul Marnikovic (8-3) and Bobby Walsh (8-2), pitched complete games.

Marnikovic received plenty of batting support against Colonial Federal as Foley's scored in every inning. He helped himself by going 3-for-4 with four RBI. Brian Beaton caught his first game and did a fine job. He also had two hits.

Against Rotary Walsh pitched a three-hitter and struck out 10. He also had three singles and an RBI. Tony Capigno went 3-for-3 with a triple, double and single.

Girls Under 10 Place Second In Tourney

The Quincy Youth Soccer League girls under 10 Division 2 team finished a successful season by placing second in the recent John Smith 6-on-6 tournament in Medfield.

Quincy lost the championship to Charino, R.I., 3-0.

The Quincy girls had steamrolled their opponents during the regular season in the South Shore League, going 9-0 and outscoring Holbrook, Easton, Stoughton, East Bridgewater and Whitman, 35-2. They lost a playoff game to Holbrook's Division I team, 3-0.

The season was all the more outstanding considering it was the first time any of the girls had completed on a travel team against this level of competition.

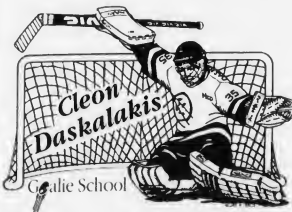

In the final season game the Quincy girls were overmatched in size and experience against Holbrook's Division I team. Seven Quincy girls were injured in the game including midfielder Jill Nicholson who suffered a broken arm.

The offense was sparked this year by Ashley Rowerdink, Caitlyn O'Donnell, Julie Keane, Alexis Miranda, Laura Kane and Lauren Awed.

Supporting the offense was the strong midfield play of Nicholson, Stephanie Queripel, Laura Chase, Jessica Kearney, Mary Kane and Courtney Madden.

The defense was led by Amy Satkevich, Alicia Bell, Lisa Patten, Stacy Sczesuil, Stephanie Allen and Kelly Raymer.

and single and Kane a single for Morrisette. Gamsby had two hits as did Fred Regan for Wollaston.

Wollaston's luck hit a new low Sunday night when it lost to Braintree, 4-3, in 10 innings.

The game ended in heartbreaking fashion for Wollaston as Braintree's Paul Scioscia hit a fly ball on which two Wollaston outfielders collided. Both were injured and had to leave the game. As coach Mike Gormley had used all his players, he had no one to put in and the game ended then with Wollaston unable to bat in the bottom of the inning. The ball went for a game-winning home run.

Scott Dunn pitched into the eighth inning and did well with the score 3-3 when Steve Loud relieved and was the hard-luck loser. Gamsby, Chris Cunio, Tom Benner and Marc Swirbalus led the Wollaston offense.

Earlier Wollaston lost to Randolph, 5-4, when Randolph pitcher Mark Mischley hit a three-run triple in the sixth inning. Pat Gallagher led the Wollaston attack.

Meanwhile, Quincy has had a nightmarish season with an 0-12 record and four games left in which to enter the win column.

"The problem is that our older players have fallen flat on their faces," said coach Ed Spring. "Last year we won eight games with the same kids. These are players who for the most part either started or saw considerable playing time for their high school teams. All have had off seasons. When we have had good pitching, we have not hit or have booted the ball around. It has been so bad we have had to start as many as five 16-year olds. This bodes well for the future, but meanwhile we are taking our lumps."

Spring and assistant coach Vic DiGravio have expressed their pride in the way the players have stuck in there, especially the younger players.

Catcher John Gladu, pitchers Eric Kruez and Dave Raftery, infielders Aidan O'Donoghue, Derik Thompson and Chris McCulley and outfielders Tom Nutley have performed beyond expectations. Rob O'Connor has filled in nicely catching and in the outfield.

"We lost three one-run games in the last inning and in two other losses we outthit the other team, only to lose on errors," Spring said.

"Good players like Jim Maloney, Ron Boudreau, Jim Gately, Dan Kearns, Joe Zona, Steve Waas and Garrett Butkuss have all had off-seasons at the plate.

"Boudreau is hitting .320 and it has dropped off from there. We have a team batting average of around .230 and you are not going to stay in many games with that kind of hitting."

Quincy has played well defensively in many games, then come back in the next game and commit six or more errors.

"This meet continues to provide youngsters with enjoyment, physical competition, and the opportunity to participate in a positive activity with boys and girls from all 50 states," Welch said.

He also praised the Quincy Track Club as being instrumental in the program's success.

"The Quincy Track Club philosophy of including all youngsters regardless of abilities is to be admired," Welch said. "This positive reinforcement encourages each youngster to realize their full potential. The success of our Hershey program is due primarily to the overwhelming support of the Quincy Track Club. This partnership in the event serves our citizens well."

 Oh Holy St. Jude, Apostle and Martyr, great in virtue and rich in miracles, near kinsman of Jesus Christ, faithful intercessor of all who invoke your special patronage in time of need, to you I have recourse from the depth of my heart and humbly beg to whom God have given such great power to come to my assistance. Help me in my present urgent petition in return I promise to make your name known and cause you to be invoked. Say three Our Fathers, three Hail Marys and Glorias for 9 consecutive days. Publication must be promised. St. Jude pray for us all who invoke your aid. Amen. This Novena has never been known to fail. I have had my requests granted. Publication promised.

Sheets To Launch $2 Million Fundraising Drive For Lexington

the cradle."

Sheets said the cradle method is used at other ship tourist sites. He also said the cost for a cradle is about the same as an 800-foot pier: about $1 million.

"It really is a wash in terms of building a cradle instead of a pier but it's quite a technology and I think in the long run it saves a lot of money because of maintenance on the carrier," he said.

After the commission is signed into law, Sheets said negotiations with Eleanor Cottle, who owns the Quincy Lumberyard site, will go "full throttle."

"We'll begin making new contacts in the very near future. After (the commission) becomes law, we'll go full-throttle with the negotiations."

The mayor said he prefers to purchase the property from Mrs. Cottle, who is 99 years old, rather than take the land by eminent domain. "I think that's doable," he said, referring to the purchase option. Money to purchase the site would come from the bonds. "As soon as the legislation is signed by the governor, then the funding is in place and I think it's more proper to deal with the issue of the Quincy Lumber site," the mayor said.

Besides the land negotiations, the mayor said he will launch a $2 million capital fund drive within two weeks. He hopes the money, which would go to bringing the Lexington home or be put in a reserve account, can be raised from the private sector.

"People who want to make a contribution upfront to get the Lexington here will be able to do that. People who are going to make a contribution beyond that would simply make a pledge. Once we get the decision on the Lexington then the pledge would come through."

The reserve account would "give us money to begin the tourist season. It would give us the cash flow needed for that," the mayor said.

According to Bernice Mader, the mayor's administrative assistant, 30,000 to 40,000 people will be solicited for donations. Mader said veterans, historians, shipbuilders and those who worked or served on the Lexington are among the groups being targeted.

Volunteers are also needed to help with the drive. To volunteer or contribute to the campaign, call 479-8165.

Sheets said fundraising activities will be held. "We're looking at a $1,000-a-plate dinner in Boston." He also said he will personally seek contributions from corporations which have been in the defense industry.

Besides Quincy, Pensacola, Fla., Corpus Christi, Texas, and Mobile, Ala., are vying for the ship. The Navy will decide which city will gain custody of the vessel in September, an undersecretary of the Navy has told Sheets.

The Lexington will be decommissioned in November. She must be removed from her berth in Pensacola in February in order to make room for the Destroyer U.S.S. Forrestal which will be docked there and used as a training vessel.

If the city receives custody of the Lexington, Sheets said the vessel will be docked at a pier in Boston owned by local contractor Jay Cashman until the Town River site is ready. The only cost would be for security which has already been budgeted, the mayor said.

"For us, it means we can take the carrier right away," he added.

Money Needed For Surgery

Family Appeals For Help So Youngster Can See

The family of 16-month-old Marko Vukovic are appealing to the community for donations to help defray the cost of operations needed to restore the youngster's vision.

Marko, who is the son of Zoran and Marica Vukovic of Quincy and formerly of Yugoslavia, is blind as a result of premature birth. The retina of both eyes was detached. As long as the retina is detached, vision is impossible.

To date, Marko has undergone two surgeries on each eye. One or two more operations by Dr. Tatsuo Hizose of the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary are needed to restore Marko's sight.

His parents have exhausted all financial resources, which amount to more than $60,000. Surgeries cost $10,000 to $15,000 each. The Vukovics cannot receive funding from the Yugoslavian government because of that country's civil war.

"We appeal to the generosity of American people to help us financially. Only through such help will little Marko be able to see," his parents said.

Anyone wishing to contribute can send donations to Zoran Vukovic, care of South Shore Bank, 1400 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02169. The family would appreciate donations of any size.

For more information, call Michael Jovanovic at 773-4923 or 472-7664.

No Override In Fall But... Layoffs May Be Needed To Make Up $1.3M Shortfall

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Taxpayers will not face an override question in the fall but some city employees may lose their jobs because of a $1,375,000 shortfall in FY 92.

After conferring with city councillors last week, Mayor James Sheets decided against proposing a Proposition 2 and a half override question as part of "Super Tuesday" Sept. 24. To offset the shortfall brought on by reduced local aid and low receivables, the mayor said job positions and expenses would be eliminated before laying off any employees.

On Tuesday, the Sheets said his objective is as few layoffs as possible with no reductions in the fire and police departments. He said the school committee, which he serves as chairman, will determine the nature of the cuts in the school department.

The mayor declined to give specific numbers as to how much money the three largest departments, fire, police and education, would be slashed until after he meets with department heads and union officials. Sheets, who began meeting with department heads and the unions earlier this week, said he wanted to spare the fire and police departments from any further reductions.

"Obviously, I have to spread the $1.3 million across the budget and the three major departments, school, fire and police, comprise 81 percent of the discretionary budget or what we can cut so there's going to be cuts in those areas.

"I think we're going to try to work out those cuts so it's not going to result in the reduction in manpower."

Sheets said an estimated 15 to 20 vacant municipal

Group Aims To Raise $70,000-$100,000 For New Stadium Seats

A group of concerned parents, coaches, city officials and friends of Quincy public schools hope to raise $70,000 to $100,000 this summer for new aluminum bleachers at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Frank Santoro, vice chairman of the School Committee, and Tom Koch, executive secretary for Mayor James Sheets, are setting up a committee which will conduct the fundraising drive. The committee, which will comprise coaches, athletic boosters, parents groups, high school hall of famers and other friends of the school system held an organizational meeting Tuesday night at City Hall.

"We're kind of setting up an agenda and game plan tonight," Koch said Tuesday morning.

The aluminum benches would replace the wooden benches at the stadium. Earlier this year, the bleachers were condemned and ruled unsafe by the building department.

Santoro said he hopes the necessary funding is raised this summer so that the new benches can be installed before the start of the schoolboy football season in late September.

"We're looking for approximately $70,000 to $100,000 to redo the stadium with aluminum seats. With the help of all the people, the parents clubs, the coaches, the mayor's office and the school department, we're hoping to come up with the money," Santoro said.

"We want to replace every seat with an aluminum bench style seat. We want everything done and accomplished before football season begins."

Koch said anyone can get involved in the new seating fundraiser. For more information, call Frank Santoro at 472-5285 or Tom Koch at 773-1380.

Kolson Kicks Off Re-election Campaign

Ward 1 City Councillor Peter Kolson recently announced his candidacy for re-election before 200 constituents and friends at the George F. Bryan FWV Post.

Campaign Manager Lawrence Butler noted many of Kolson's accomplishments during his first 18 months in office and pointed out the councillor has worked on improving the quality of life in Ward 1.

For example, Kolson organized the removal or rehabilitation of many unsafe or unsightly buildings throughout the ward. In addition, 26 acres of land in Ward 1 have been designated open space.

Kolson has helped implement many improvements to playgrounds, parks and traffic islands as well as numerous traffic safety betterments. He also acted to remove and manage dangerous marsh grass and restore marshes important to the environment.

Kolson told supporters there are many issues facing Ward 1 and the rest of the city. Together, he added, citizens and elected officials can make the right things happen.

For example, he cited the community effort which led to the defeat of a proposed hazardous waste incinerator by Clean Harbors in East Braintree. A leader of the anti-incinerator movement, Kolson spoke of the "great joy everyone felt upon winning this one, especially against the odds."

Kolson said a similar fight should be waged against the "overwhelming burden the MWRA is putting on taxpayers."

"When all the communities affected by these outlandish rates come together, an army will be formed and the battle will begin. The winners will be the rate payers and lower water and sewer bills for them and their communities," he said.

With the limited resources available to local government, "We all must realize that cooperation and volunteerism must be keynote in the next few years."

Kolson said he will continue to work on traffic issues and monitor their progress. He wants Ward 1, which is made up mostly of residential property, to adopt the motto "Drive Friendly."

"When anyone drives on our streets they are driving basically on citizens' front yards, and respect and kindness toward one another is expected."

If re-elected, Kolson said he would also continue supporting environmental issues such as recycling as well as advocating police and fire protection and quality education.

He noted Ward 1 has three excellent elementary schools, Atherton Hough, Snug Harbor and Merrymount. He also pointed out the national award-winning middle school, Broad Meadows, and outstanding Quincy High School. He said one of his "greatest joys" has been working with teachers, parents and students of these fine schools.

DeCristofaro Seeking Sixth Ward 2 Council Term

More than 250 constituents and friends of Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro gathered recently at the Fore River Clubhouse to hear the council president announce his intention to seek a sixth term on the council.

DeCristofaro, who is listed in the Who's Who in Government Services 1991, has been awarded commendations recently by three veterans' organizations: Quincy Veterans' Council, the Disabled American Veterans sponsored by the Quincy-Cavanagh Chapter 79; and the Jewish War Veterans Post #193 and the Beth Israel Brotherhood.

A lifelong Ward 2 resident, he has worked to save the environment and enhance the quality of life for all Ward 2 residents. DeCristofaro thanked his supporters, saying "Working together, we can meet all the challenges facing us, such as the fight we fought and won against Clean Harbors' plan to locate a toxic waste incinerator at the Fore River Basin."

DeCristofaro recently blasted MWRA officials for budgeting a 4.5 percent pay hike for some 500 employees. He called the action "an insult" to the already burdened ratepayers. He challenged Director Paul Levy to demonstrate some consideration for the ratepaying families by rescinding the recent pay raises granted to MWRA employees, many of whom already earn more than $40,000 a year.

DeCristofaro pledged to continue his efforts to improve safety conditions on the Fore River Bridge for increased lighting and structural changes to improve driving conditions particularly during inclement weather. He coordinated with the state ideas and suggestions which resulted in the repainting of the lines on the bridge surface, adding higher curbing to specific areas, and new, better signage.

A 1941 graduate of Quincy High School, he is married to the former Betty Petzoldt. The couple has three sons and a daughter.

DeCristofaro began being involved in community affairs before his election to public office. He was one of the founders of the Ward

2 Civic Association. While a councillor, he established the Ward 2 Community Center at the Fore River Clubhouse which provides information and services to all Ward 2 residents. He also helped acquire a new pump engine at the Quincy Point Fire Station.

DeCristofaro has worked to obtain the necessary funds to refurbish Faxon Park, Pollard, Fore River, Pond St. and Elm St. playgrounds. He was also successful in bringing about the new playground at the Daniel Webster School, and having the Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services located in Ward 2.

DeCristofaro continues to seek added police protection and patrols in all areas of Ward 2 for public safety. He has also filed an ordinance which imposes a substantial penalty for illegal dumping of infectious or hazardous waste material within city limits.

Ward 2 councillor since 1982, he has worked cooperatively with two mayoral administrations. He attends most meetings of the license board and zoning board of appeals.

If re-elected, DeCristofaro said he would continue to work to the best of his ability to improve whatever needs improving Ward 2. He encourages all to get involved and work together.

Permits Issued For $1.8M Construction

The Quincy Building Department issued 158 permits for an estimated cost of $1,830,173 in construction during June, according to a report released by the department.

In June 1990, the department issued 201 permits for an estimated $1,930,255 in construction. Last month, one dwelling unit was added through alteration. No units were added through new construction.

There were 103 residential alterations for an estimated $679,294; 13 other alterations for an estimated $730,900; nine removals for an estimated $13,535; five signs for an estimated $4,150; and 27 miscellaneous permits for an estimated $199,461.

Last month's receipts totaled $32,071. Public safety inspection fees totaled $254.

In addition, there were 109 plumbing permits issued for an estimated $1,552 and 46 gas permits issued for an estimated $412.

Primary Oct. 15; Final Nov. 12 Siciliano, Balzano McGlone Take Papers Out In Special Rep Race

By ROBERT
BOSWORTH

The date for the special state representative primary election in the Third Norfolk District is Tuesday, Oct. 15, and as Tuesday afternoon, three candidates had taken out nomination papers.

Getting a quick jump out of the starting gate are two Quincy residents and a resident of Weymouth.

Tony Siciliano, 34 Carlson St., general foreman for Traffic and Parking in Quincy and deputy director of the city's Emergency Management (formerly Civil Defense) took papers out at Quincy City Hall Monday afternoon. Cheryl Balzano, 70 Arnold St., took papers out from Weymouth Town Hall Tuesday morning. Balzano, 29, is a senior accountant at State Street Bank.

John (Jack) McGlone, who lives at 85 Coolidge Ave., Weymouth, took papers out of Quincy and Weymouth Tuesday. McGlone, 32, is a practicing attorney in a Boston law firm.

Primary winners will face off in the final election Tuesday, Nov. 12. Winners will be those candidates who top the Democratic, Republican and Independent Voters Party ballots.

Those who run as unenrolled candidates (those who do not belong to the Democrat, Republican or Independent Voters parties) will automatically appear on the final election ballot.

Siciliano and McGlone are running as Democrats. Balzano, who is an Independent but not a member of the Independent Voters Party, will automatically appear on the final election ballot as an unenrolled candidate.

Siciliano's entry into the race surprised some political observers. On Tuesday, Siciliano, who has worked for the city 20 years and has lived in Quincy since 1964, said he is serious about running and will stay in the race. "I'm serious. What do I got to lose," he said.

As general foreman, Siciliano earns $33,179 per year. His present salary is slightly more than the $30,000 earned by state representatives. Siciliano, who turned 49 years old Tuesday, said he is willing to take a pay cut if elected. "I can live on $30,000."

If he wins, Siciliano could apply his time as state representative to his city pension.

Now that the dates of the election have been set and candidates have begun taking papers out, the speculation about the race since Robert Cerasoli resigned last month will be dismissed or confirmed. Potential candidates will have to decide whether to enter the race or bow out soon.

Among the potential candidates from Quincy are Francis "Sandy" Eaton, 47, a nurse at Quincy Hospital; Quincy attorney Anthony Falco, 28; former Mayor Joseph LaRaia, 58; School Committeeman Ron Mariano, 44; Michael Marshall, 26, employed in the MBTA capital improvements program; and Bruce Tobin, 28, research analyst in the House Post Audit and Oversight Bureau.

Thomas Tanner, 53, former DPW commissioner for the town of Weymouth, is also considered a potential candidate.

The following times and dates apply to all candidates running in the special election:

Sept. 3, 5 p.m.: Last day and hour for submitting nomination papers to local Registrars of Voters and

PANCREATITIS

The pancreas is an organ which sits deep in the abdomen, behind the stomach. Its functions fall into two major categories:
digestive and endocrine.
The latter consists primarily of secreting insulin, glucagon and other hormones important to the blood sugar balance. The digestive functions concern the production of enzymes such as amylase important to the chemical digestion of fats and other nutrients. When the pancreas becomes inflamed, its own enzymes are released into the blood, as well as within the organ itself. Though the highly active enzymes are usually contained in protected ducts, the inflamed pancreas may actually start to attack itself. Almost all victims of acute pancreatitis suffer severe mid-and-upper abdominal pain, frequently radiating straight through to the back. Vomiting is common, often early signs of shock are seen. The intensely tender abdomen requires careful diagnosis.

P.S. Pancreatitis is most commonly seen as a side effect of alcoholism, although it can have several causes.

A Weymouth Threat

Quincy has held the Third Norfolk District State Representative seat for 22 years but now could be in danger of losing it to Weymouth.

Jack McGlone, a 32-year-old attorney, could be Weymouth's most serious challenger in many years.

McGlone, apparently not one to let grass grow under his feet, is off and running for the seat while several potential Quincy candidates are still thinking about it.

But there is a little movement this week on the Quincy front including a surprise.

McGLONE

Tony Siciliano, Quincy's general foreman for Traffic and Parking and Deputy Director of Emergency Management (formerly Civil Defense) took out nomination papers in what would be his first bid for public office.

Cheryl Balzano also took out papers and is making her first run.

Meanwhile, School Committee member Ron Mariano is getting ready to make his announcement within a week or two and is planning a fundraiser.

There are six other potential
Quincy candidates: Anthony Agnitti,
Francis "Sandy" Eaton, Anthony Falco, former Mayor
Joseph LaRaia, Michael Marshall, son of Sheriff Clifford Marshall who once held the seat and Bruce Tobin, son of former Mayor-Senator Arthur Tobin and brother of Rep. Steve Tobin.

One of LaRaia's closest friends says LaRaia is going to run and if he does, he would have to be reckoned with — especially in a crowded field.

Agnitti, who owns a South Quincy insurance agency, could make a bid for City Council at-large instead.

The special primary election to fill the seat vacated by Robert Cerasoli to become State Inspector General last week was set for Oct. 15.

A couple of days before it was even announced, McGlone was already reserving choice newspaper advertising space for his campaign.

He already has his Weymouth campaign coordinator — Selectman Jack Carey. And started knocking on doors last week — despite the blistering heat.

He will soon name his Quincy coordinator and precinct captains.

And he already has fundraisers in the works.

He seems pretty well organized for someone making his first bid for elective office. But he apparently learned the ropes while working for other candidates.
He obviously wasn't sitting around stuffing envelopes.

A crowded Quincy field would work to McGlone's advantage with Quincy candidates splitting the vote.

But McGlone may not be the only Weymouth runner. Thomas Tanner, who ran against Cerasoli in the early 1980's is thinking of getting in.

McGlone, incidentally, has a Ward 2 plus going for him.

He and Celeste Bradley, secretary to Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Delahunt will be married Sept. 7 at St. Joseph's Church. She grew up in Quincy Point and her family still lives there.

The Third Norfolk District composes Ward 2 and Precinct 1 of Ward 3 in Quincy and parts of Weymouth.
It once included Braintree.

Quincy has held the seat since 1969 when it was won by Clifford Marshall after Braintree's Barry Hannon gave it up to become Register of Deeds. When Marshall ran for sheriff in 1973, Cerasoli won it to continue Quincy's hold.

But could the grip slip?

ANOTHER SCHOOL COMMITTEE candidate.
Sean Barry of Marlboro St., Wollaston has taken out nomination papers.

He's the ninth to get into that race. The other eight:
Incumbents Steve Durkin and Mary Jane Powers, former member Frank Anselmo, Joanne Bragg, Toni Kabilian, Edward Lee, Margaret King and Linda Stice.

Only seven have to file their papers to set the stage for a preliminary runoff.

BOTH INCUMBENT Peter Kolson and challenger
Gail Glover have filed their papers for the Ward 1 City Council seat.

QUINCY'S Uncle Sam Rounseville hit a popularity home run at the Baseball Hall of Fame induction ceremonies at Cooperstown, N.Y., Sunday.

Rounseville, all dressed up in red, white and blue, carried a sign that read: "America's Favorite Uncle Salutes America's Favorite Past Time."

UNCLE SAM

He wound up signing autographs with inductees Rod Carew, Gaylord Perry and Ferguson Jenkins.

Survival, Council On Alcoholism, Mayflower To Form New Agency

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Two Quincy-based non-profit human service agencies and a third charitable service agency in Plymouth will consolidate next month, perhaps as early as Aug. 1.

Survival, Inc., the South Shore Council on Alcoholism, both based in Quincy, and Mayflower Mental Health Association in Plymouth will consolidate and become a new charitable organization called "Bay State Community Services, Inc.," said Kenneth Terrabelli, executive director of Survival, Inc.

By consolidating, the three agencies will be able to streamline and refine their services, Terrabelli said, noting no services will be eliminated. "We think we can offer better and more viable services by consolidating our agencies."

Terrabelli said cutbacks in state assistance was a factor in the decision to consolidate. Instead of competing for dwindling state revenue, the agencies will pool their resources and work together. As a result, the agencies will continue to provide vital human services to thousands of needy South Shore area residents.

Terrabelli said human service organizations are facing "severe cutbacks" in state funding. He pointed out funding for a $250,000 Survival case management program was cut just two weeks ago.

Although the move to consolidate was made before the cutbacks, Terrabelli said, "Those are the type of things that can happen now a days. We knew the times were changing."

The board of directors of each agency voted recently to consolidate after discussing the subject the last six to seven months. The move is a true consolidation, meaning each agency will be an equal partner. All assets and liabilities from each of the three will "flow" into the new consolidate agency.

A new board of directors will be formed comprising three members from Survival, SSCA and Mayflower Mental Health. At their first meeting which will probably be held in September, the board will elect a set of officers.

Incorporated in 1970, the South Shore Council on Alcoholism, Inc., offers a wide range of substance abuse treatment and counseling services including a youth residential program; a prevention resource center; driver alcohol education and outpatient counseling. The services are licensed and funded by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health.

Also founded in 1970, Survival, Inc., offers a wide range comprehensive services including short-term emergency residential services for adolescents; intensive residential treatment services to emotionally disturbed adolescents; outpatient counseling for families and children; outpatient substance abuse counseling to adolescents and substance abuse counseling to employers and their employees. Services are licensed and funded by various departments of the state Executive Office of Human Services.

Mayflower Mental Health Association, Inc.,

provides outpatient mental health services in the state. It is licensed by the state Department of Public Health and certified by the state Department of Public Welfare. It is funded primarily by DPW, DMH and fees for services from non-governmental sources, primarily private health insurance.

According to Terrabelli, Survival, Inc. has a budget of $1.8 million; SSCA $1.5 million; and Mayflower Mental Health Association $250,000 for FY 92.

In some respects, Terrabelli said the consolidation was a natural progression. He said many of the services offered by the three agencies, especially Survival, Inc. and the SSCA, overlap.

"Over the years, people began realizing they really belong together. We just felt as agencies it would make a lot of sense by bringing the two together. This is the final step," he said.

As for Mayflower Mental Health, Terrabelli said the agency was looking to join

Quincy's Yesterdays

First Annual Race Week Biggest In American Waters

Some 300 boats in 20 different classes were expected to take part in the first annual Quincy Bay Race week, sponsored by the Quincy, Quantum and Wollaston Yacht Clubs.

Commodore Edward P. Shaw of Wollaston, race week president, called it "the biggest yachting event ever staged in American waters, save for the Marblehead events of the past few years."

Gov. Charles F. Hurley was to fire the first starting gun to begin the five consecutive days of water festivities and award the prizes on the final evening at Quincy Yacht Club.

POLITICS CHARGED

Contractor Stephen E. O'Meara of 36 Eustis St., Wollaston, charged that he lost a $3,700 contract to plaster the new central fire station when he disclosed his support of Charles A. Ross for mayor.

"Once I got a signed sub-contract for the plastering in my pocket I felt sure I was safe," he said. "I told a city councillor one night just where I stood between Burgin and Ross."

"I found out I wasn't as safe as I supposed."

GROSSMAN BOWS OUT

Joseph B. Grossman of Quincy stunned political circles when he announced his "temporary" retirement from politics after six years as a governor's councillor and 25 years in elective office.

Grossman's retirement left the republican nomination for governor's council in the Second District up for grabs among David S. McIntosh and Christian A. Burkard, both of Quincy, and Clayton L. Havery of West Roxbury.

RECIPROCAL RESCUE

Ashton Cox of 229 Arlington St., Wollaston, pulled his partner, Harold Robbins of 235 Newport Ave., to safety when he was trapped in a flaming garage pit at the Robbins and Cox Garage, 66 Beale St., Wollaston.

In May, 1937, Robbins had rescued Cox from a similar predicament when he was caught beneath a burning racing car that had overturned at the Speedway in New Market, N.H.

Sees Weld As A One Term Governor

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

It is time to start thinking of William Weld as a one-term governor. His latest attack on family unity is his support of a bill to lower from 18 to 16 the age when a young girl must seek parental permission for an abortion.

He is pitting child against parent. He is telling parents that they are not capable of having any input in a crisis decision involving the child they brought into the world. In his moral blindness, William Weld is overlooking the fact that strong families make strong states and strong nations.

The proposed legislation raises many questions:

Will the legal age for everything now be 16?

Will this bill change health insurance laws as far as children's coverage under parent's policies?

Will the girl at 16 who, according to the governor, is mature enough to make the abortion decision for herself be expected to fund all costs? Or, will the governor insist that her parents, who have been stifled, must come forth with the money to pay for the destruction of their little grandchild?

If and when this bill ever gets to a vote in the Massachusetts Legislature, I hope our Senators and Representatives will be perceptive enough to see through the administration's insidious plan.

Yes, it is time to start thinking of William Weld and his accomplice Paul Cellucci as one-term office holders so that the Commonwealth of Massachusetts may be spared further moral chaos.

Praises Carmen Mariano For His Dedicated Service

handling personnel, plant and maintenance, all without an assistant these last several months.

The Quincy Public Schools certainly owes a huge vote of thanks to this excellent administrator. I have known Carmen as a wonderful teacher, an excellent research assistant, a super administrator, but most of all as a caring human being.

If he chooses to leave the system it will be a great loss to Quincy. Whatever happens, thank you Carmen for your many years of dedicated service in the positions you have held in Quincy.

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The Quincy School Committee on July 17 abolished the deputy superintendent position and established a position of director of personnel effective around Sept. 1, 1991. In the process, the current Deputy Superintendent, Carmen Mariano, will be demoted. No one has devoted himself in such a dedicated and caring way as Carmen Mariano. He has worked far beyond the call of duty

Kate McDonough, Lisa Pineo Graduate From Girl Scouting

Quincy residents and Girl Scouts Kate McDonough and Lisa Pineo were given a standing ovation for their work as Senior Girl Scouts at a recent meeting of Patriots' Trail Girl Scout Council.

McDonough, and Pineo, who have recently graduated from Girl Scouting, have each dedicated more than 11 years of their young lives as active, enthusiastic members of Girl Scouting.

When a girl graduates from scouting, she has excelled through all levels of the Girl Scout program, starting at age six as a Brownie and working her way up to become a Senior Girl Scout, graduating from both Girl Scouting and high school.

In their early days as Brownie and Junior Girl Scouts, McDonough and Pineo tested their wings by camping, selling cookies and earning "try-its" and badges. Having met those challenges, they moved on to troop camping, community service and leadership projects until they mastered them and reached the Silver and Gold Awards, the highest awards for Cadette and Senior Girl Scouts (equivalent to the Eagle Scout Award).

"It is rare that we have two girl scouts from one town who have dedicated more than 11 years of their lives to Girl Scouting, and have reached the highest level, that of a Graduating Senior Girl Scout," said Council President Nancy Pratt. "We are truly proud of the remarkable enthusiasm and perseverance shown by the two outstanding young women from Quincy."

Woodward Students Score High On California Achievement Tests

The Woodward Middle School results on the California Achievement Tests administered this spring indicate the median scores for all students in grades six, seven and eight were higher than 78 percent of the students in the national norm groups.

were science and social studies (90 percentile), English mechanics (87 percentile), and study skills (81 percentile). Vocabulary (75 percentile) and math computation (72 percentile), although good nationally, were the lowest median scores.

Headmaster Marshall Litchfield expressed pride in noting that the median for grade six students, the entry level at Woodward, was two years above the national standard. He said small classes, dedicated faculty, and convincing students in the American work ethic is still an admirable trait and it made a difference for this age group.

Newlyweds 'Cooling Off' In Jamaica After Wedding On Hot Hancock St.

By DAN JAEHNIG

Mr. and Mrs. Stephen McCann are honeymooning (and cooling off) in Jamaica after they were married on Hancock St. Saturday under near 100-degree temperature and in front of 150 guests, news media and an estimated 800 spectators.

The wedding trip, courtesy of Thomas Cook Travel and Jimmy Jay Productions was just one detail of a wedding package valued at between $15,000 and $20,000. Quincy and area merchants donated everything for the event.

One on-looker called it "The Wedding of The Year."

While temperatures climbed to 100 degrees in Quincy Center Saturday, Kim Gagel and Stephen McCann seemed oblivious to the heat as they exchanged their vows.

"She was a radiant bride," said Eileen Cohen, Executive Director of the Quincy Business and Professional Association (QCBPA) which sponsored the event in cooperation with Major Productions, Inc. "Despite the heat, she smiled the whole time."

"The whole wedding went off as scheduled," according to Richard Carriger, owner of Pilgrim Restaurant and QCBPA Promotions Chairman. "The procession down Hancock St. and the ceremony were beautiful. All those (spectators) stood there for the whole ceremony, 45 minutes to an hour, in 100-degree temperatures, that proves it was beautiful."

The ceremony was officiated by Bernie Reisberg, a Justice of the Peace, on a beautifully decorated platform in the heart of Quincy Center.

"I've done thousands of weddings in my time, but this was the highlight of my career," said Reisberg.

Sandra Livrago served as Maid of Honor to her sister, who along with Best Man John McCann, brother of the groom, led the wedding procession down Hancock St. to the delight of the crowd. Behind them followed a stretch limousine and an old fashioned horse and carriage with the bride.

"It looks like a royal wedding," said Barbara Stanton of Quincy.

Bridesmaids were Debra Curtin, sister of the bride, Georgette Stamoulis, and Dawn McCann, sister of the groom.

Ushers were Dennis Dion, Jim Sheenan, and Frank McCann, brother of the groom.

Lawrence Charles Livrago was Ring Bearer.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Carl Hosea.

The bride is the daughter of Dorothy Gagel. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank McCann.

McCann and Gagel, who have been engaged for one year but have been dating for six, were one of 12 couples considered for the "Wedding of The Year."

The bride said aside from the heat, she was happy with the way it all turned out.

"It was more than I ever thought it was going to be," she said. "It was beautiful, and a day I'll never forget."

For the groom, the day brought just as much happiness.

"Everything was just great," he said. "It was the best day of my life."

Except for the last minute details which are faced before every wedding, the couple said they were calm through out the day. "Well sort of," added Gagel.

After the couple exchanged vows and were officially named man and wife, they were met with a standing ovation and a roaring round of applause from the crowd. Master of Ceremonies, Jimmy Jay, of Jimmy Jay Productions, led the crowd in singing the traditional songs as the couple cut their wedding cake on stage.

The reception was held at the River Bay Club on Southern Artery, and was catered by Dominic's Catering of Quincy.

During the reception the couple got a chance to thank those involved in putting their wedding together.

"We'd like to thank all of the local merchants for their gifts, Major Productions, Jimmy Jay, Bernie Reisberg, Eileen Cohen and especially Richard Carriger." Carriger, as Sidewalk Chairman, played a major role in bringing the event together.

"I'm not here to get the credit," said Carriger. "I just wanted the kids to be happy. It was something new that we tried, and everything worked out perfectly. I think it went over big and it couldn't have happened to a nicer couple."

Gifts and contributions to the couple and for the wedding from Quincy and area merchants included:

A Step Above Limousine, a wedding limo.

Aicardi's Bakery, the wedding cake.

Alphagraphics, thank you cards.

Sidewalk Sale Days Success Despite Blistering Heat

By JANE ARENA

Even with temperatures soaring into the high 90's and passing the 100 mark at times, the Quincy Center Sidewalk Sale Days was, by most accounts, a success.

Some though, said the heat was a detriment to the event, which was held Thursday, Friday and Saturday, during the season's most oppressive heatwave. Crowds, to be sure, were smaller than in previous years.

Donald Russell of Woolworth's reported the store took a "big loss" during the sale. "It was too hot," he said. "We just didn't have enough traffic."

Other businesses though, said it was a success despite smaller-than usual crowds. Everyone who spoke to The Quincy Sun made it a point, however, to mention the heat.

"It went well," said Charlie Ryder, owner of Ryder's of Quincy and President of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA) which sponsored the event. "It could have gone better if it wasn't for the heat, but the reaction of the customers was very good. We had heavy traffic all three days, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, which is good because usually traffic slows down a little bit on Saturdays. I think the wedding helped."

Darcy Fernandes of Parade of Shoes agreed.

"It was pretty much a success," he said. "I'd say it was good for business. The weather was exhausting to all our employees, but overall we did pretty well."

Robert Colman of Colman's Sporting Goods said the weather was the only drawback.

"Outside of that it was fine," he said. "I don't think it was better than last year's, but I think the difference was the weather. It had nothing to do with business, it was the weather. Outside of that it was beautiful."

"I was very pleased," said Virginia Ridge of Musical Memories. "I did just as well as last year...I think the heat kept a lot of people away, I mean I had people coming in on Saturday just dripping. I felt sorry for them...but I think the sidewalk sale was bigger than it has been and I did very well, considering."

Overall the event itself was viewed as a success, and in more than just monetary terms.

"It was fabulous," said Eileen Cohen, Executive Director of the QCBPA,

"it was tremendous. We had more booths than we've had in recent years, the entertainment was enjoyed by everyone, the bridal show was done in good taste and was very professional...I've been involved with the sidewalk sale for ten years now...and it really was one of the best we've had."

Yes, she agreed, it could have been better if it hadn't been as hot. "If the weather hadn't been a factor we definitely would have had a tremendous crowd, but the crowd was good...the comments that I heard were good."

"Considering the extreme heat we still saw thousands of people," says Richard Carriger, owner of Pilgrim Restaurant and QCBPA Promotions Chairman. "If the temperature had been a little cooler it would have been the best Sidewalk Sale ever," he said. "But, as far as we're concerned it was the best we've had in many years. We had more booths, we had more entertainment...it was very good."

Carriger thanked all of the merchants who participated in the Sidewalk Sale Days and the Sidewalk Sale Committee for "an outstanding job."

Downtown Fire Blamed On Lighted Cigarette

A four alarm fire which caused about $200,000 damage to four Quincy Center businesses early Saturday morning has been blamed on a smoldering cigarette, according to fire officials.

Acting Fire Chief Tom Gorman said an investigator from the state fire marshal's office joined the local investigation and determined the cause to be a smoldering cigarette in the bathroom of Benny's Coiffures, 1538 Hancock

St. where the fire began at about 2 a.m. Saturday.

The fire had been under investigation for suspicious causes because an eyewitness told officials four individuals had been seen running from the rear of the building before the fire was reported.

Firefighter Ernest Arienti was overcome with heat and smoke and was treated and released from Quincy Hospital.

Other businesses damaged in the blaze were: Quincy Hearing Aid, 1536 Hancock St., Lincoln Shoe Repair, 1534 Hancock St., and Amity Insurance, 1546 Hancock St.

Fire apparatus from Boston, Milton, Weymouth and Braintree responded.

The fourth alarm was sounded at about 2:40 a.m. and the fire was declared under control at about 5 a.m.

Fire officials said there were no fire or heat detectors or sprinkler systems in the remodeled 1920's building.

Why Bobby Orr Didn't Appear

A lot of people were no doubt disappointed when hockey star Bobby Orr didn't turn out for the Quincy Center Sidewalk Sale as had been advertised, but, according to Bill Spinks, it wasn't Bobby Orr's fault.

Orr, he said, was likely never notified of the promised appearance.

Spinks, Chairman of the Coalition for the Prevention of Substance Abuse, the organization which had hoped to bring the hockey hero to Quincy, said the whole thing was basically nothing but a communications gap.

"One of the guys in our coalition had agreed to get in touch with (Bobby Orr)," Spinks said. "He kept on giving us the message that (Orr) was going to be here, that he had some contacts and that he was 90 percent sure...and then, on the night of the thing, Bobby Orr never showed up."

"We still haven't found out what happened," he said.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

SEEDS OF KINDNESS

If you have a friend worth loving,
Love him. Yes, and let him know
That you love him, ere life's evening
Tinge his brow with sunset glow.

Why should good words ne'er be said
Of a friend - till he be dead?

If you hear a song that thrills you.
Sung by any child of song,
Praise it. Do not let the singer
Wait deserved praises long.

Why should one who thrills your heart
Lack the joy you may impart?

If you hear a prayer that moves you
By its humble, pleading tones,
Join it. Do not let the seaker
Bow before his God alone.

Why should not your brother share
The strength of "two or three" in prayer?

If you see the hot tears falling
From a brother's weeping eyes
Share them. And by kindly sharing Own your kinship in the skies.

Why should anyone be glad
When another's heart is sad? ...

We all need love and acceptance. Too often we forget. A smile, a word of support and encouragement costs nothing. Yes, we can make life easier for one another with kindness ...

Legion Baseball

Morrisette, Braintree Tie For Zone 6 Title

By TOM SULLIVAN

For the second straight year, the Morrisette Legion baseball team and Braintree tied for the Zone 6 championship, each with a 13-3 record.

Randolph finished third at 11-5 and all three teams qualified for the state playoffs which got under way Tuesday. Morrisette is the Zone top seed by virtue of a coin toss.

Morrisette opened a three-game series with Bridgewater Tuesday night. The second game was played yesterday (Wednesday) at Bridgewater's Legion Field and the third game, if necessary, will be played tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 at Adams Field.

Braintree faced East Bridgewater and Randolph drew Walpole in the opening series.

A year ago Morrisette and Braintree finished at 18-4 and Morrisette swept by Milton and Spartan A.C. of Brockton before losing a thrilling three-game series to Fall River, the eventual state champion. Morrisette won, 4-1, and dropped two 2-1 decisions.

Morrisette had won its first zone title outright in a dozen years with a win in its final game but lost, 4-3, to spoiler Milton, which finished with wins over Morrisette and Randolph.

"This team has surpassed my expectations with 11 16-year-old players, including four and five 16-year old starters," said coach Dave Perdios. "We were flat at the end but hopefully we will bounce back in the playoffs and play like we did earlier in the season."

Meanwhile, Wollaston finished the season strong by defeating Canton and knocking Weymouth out of the playoffs in its final two games to finish at 8-8.

Morrisette goes into the playoffs with a .316 batting average, headed by Mike Baylis at .447, 16-year old catcher Serge Belcastro at .441 and Tom Balzano at .417 with 15 RBI and seven extra base hits.

The pitching has been strong with a team ERA of under 2.00. Baylis is 5-1 with an 0.80 ERA and Gary Rawdon is 5-1 with a 1.35 ERA and 50 strikeouts. Billy Warren, Pat Clifford and Sean Donovan also pitched well.

Morrisette's defense fell apart in the final loss to Milton as four errors accounted for all four Milton runs and Baylis suffered his only loss. He allowed four hits, all singles, struck out three and walked one.

Milton scored a run in the first on a single, passed ball, infield error and a ground out. Morrisette evened the score in the bottom half on three walks and Baylis' single.

Milton added two in the fourth on a single, a three-base outfield error and a squeeze bunt. It added its final run in the sixth on a single, hit batter and an infield error.

Morrisette rallied in the seventh but fell short by a run. Baylis and Balzano hit back-to-back triples, Balzano scored on an infield out but that was all.

Baylis had a triple and single, Balzano a triple and Clifford and Rawdon singles.

Morrisette barely avoided being the victim of the season's biggest upset as it got by Quincy (1-15), 6-5, in eight innings.

Quincy, playing one of its best games of the season, took a 5-4 lead in the eighth inning when it broke a 4-4 tie in the top half as Garrett Butkuss singled, stole second and took third on a ground out. Baylis relieved Clifford, who went 3 1/3 innings allowing one run.

After a walk and a strike out, Dan Kearns reached on a throwing error and Butkuss scored. Clifford prevented further damage with a fine stab of a hard liner at third base.

In the bottom of the inning, Liam Higgins reached on an infield hit but pinch runner Pat Kenney was thrown out by Quincy center fielder Tom Nutley on Baylis' single up the middle. Baylis took second on the throw and Clifford singled to score Baylis with the tying run. Kearns walked the next two batters to load the bases and, on a 3-2 pitch, Rawdon walked to force in the winning run. It was the fourth time Morrisette won in its last time at bat.

Quincy made several spectacular fielding plays and got clutch hitting from Ron Boudreau (a double and single and two RBI) and Wayne McCulley (two hits). Jim Maloney had a RBI single.

Baylis had three hits and an RBI, Balzano went 2-for-3 with a double and triple and a RBI and Robbie Kane had a single.

Both starters, Sean Donovan of Morrisette and Eric Kruez of Quincy, pitched well. Donovan went four innings, allowing two earned runs and Kruez went 4 2/3 innings, allowing three earned runs. Donovan struck out seven and walked one.

Wollaston finished up with a 5-2 victory over Weymouth Sunday night to knock Weymouth out of the playoffs.

Chad McMahon pitched another fine game, going 5 1/3 innings and Scott Dunn finished up. They scattered eight hits.

For Wollaston, Tony Bianco had two singles and a RBI, Jeff Craig a double and RBI, Steve Loud a double, Marc Swirbalus a single and RBI and Bob Fitzpatrick a single.

Wollaston also romped over Canton, 10-2, with Loud pitching a strong five innings and Mark Taylor going the final two. They combined for a five-hitter and struck out six.

Scott Kohler had two singles and two RBI, Pat Gallagher a double and single and two RBI, Fred Regan a double and single and three RBI, Craig two singles and a RBI, Fitzpatrick a double, Loud a double and Swirbalus a single.

In the win over Handshakes, the teams were tied, 9-9, after seven innings and Feenan pitcher Pete Skotniczny, who relieved Carlos Suchan, complained of an injury and was replaced by Danny Sheehan.

In the eighth inning Handshakes took a 12-9 lead but in the bottom of half Mike Palmer led off

Quincy Girls Soccer Season Starts Aug. 27

The Quincy High girls' soccer team will begin the season Aug. 27 under second-year coach Richard Silverman and junior varsity coach Karen Howard with a returning squad of eight seniors, nine juniors and eight sophomores plus a number of freshmen and newcomers.

"The accomplishments of last fall in continued improvement in the quality of play as the season progressed will continue further this fall and the team's record in the tough Old Colony League should improve," said Silverman.

Last season was noteworthy for a variety of other accomplishments. Many of the girls excelled and were honored in academics with special awards and in the Merit Scholar process.

Co-capt. Amy Baker received a number of league awards including the prestigious individual sportsmanship award, the only individual award made by the league.

Physicals and other sign-up procedures will precede the opening day of practice Saturday, Aug. 24 at 9 a.m. All girls interested in playing should call Silverman at 472-3055.

Silverman extends an invitation to girls who are newcomers to Quincy particularly girls from the city's Asian community.

"It is important for girls who are new to the program to start at the beginning of practice so that they can be exposed to and learn as much as possible. And it is likewise valuable to girls who are new to the school," said Silverman.

Both coaches Silverman and Howard have coached extensively in youth soccer and Silverman's 25 years of coaching also include high school and college soccer.

Koch Memorial MDA Doubleheader Aug. 8

Tickets are on sale for the fourth annual Dick Koch Memorial MDA Softball Doubleheader to be played Thursday, Aug. 8 at Adams Field, off Southern Artery, Quincy.

At 6:30 p.m., the Quincy Fire will face the Quincy Police. The Fire squad is looking to extinguish the Police six-game winning streak. Last year, the men in blue prevailed, 8-1, in a well-played game.

In the nightcap, the City Officials will slug it out against the News Media All-Stars at 8 p.m. Last year, the News Media rallied from behind in stunning fashion to defeat the City Officials, 13-12.

The series has seen-sawed throughout the 14 years of the event. In fact, each team has won seven games apiece.

Tickets for the twin-bill are $2 each and include admission to both games and entry into a prize drawing. Prizes include a pair of Red Sox tickets, a baseball glove donated by Colman's Sporting Goods of Quincy, gift certificates to area restaurants, tee shirts and other items.

The Red Sox tickets, donated by The Quincy Sun, are for the Tuesday, Oct. 1st game against the Detroit Tigers. (If there is a pennant race, this could be a big game.)

All proceeds will benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Tickets are on sale at the Mayor's Office at City Hall; WJDA, 29 Brackett St.; Quincy Community Television, 81 School St.; The Patriot Ledger, 400 Crown Colony Dr.; and The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Tickets will also be available at the Adams Field gate before the doubleheader.

Co-chairmen of the event are Tom Koch, executive secretary for Mayor James Sheets, and Robert Bosworth, editor of The Quincy Sun.

This year's doubleheader marks the 15th year of the event. Four years ago, the game was renamed and dedicated to the memory of the late Richard Koch Sr. who organized the special and successful benefit game.

Over the past 14 years, the doubleheader has raised $20,000, including $2,000 last year.

Mr. Koch served with Henry Bosworth as co-chairmen of the Quincy-South Shore Labor Day Telethon. To date, the committee has raised more than $1 million in the fight against muscular diseases.

For the fourth consecutive year, Quincy Community Television Channel 3 will set up a broadcast booth at Adams Field.

Representatives from the fire and police will do the play-by-play for the first game. Recreation Director Barry Welch and former Executive Secretary Peter Kenney will call the News Media-City Officials contest for the second straight year.

The game will be aired on Channel 3 Friday, Aug. 9 and Friday, Aug. 16. Times to be announced.

Rain date is Thursday, Aug. 15.

Advertising Firm Joins Bid For U.S.S. Lexington

One of the leading advertising firms in the country has joined the city's campaign to capture the soon-to-be-commissioned U.S.S. Lexington.

A senior vice president at Hill, Holiday, Connors and Cosmopoulos told Mayor James Sheets last week the firm will develop a marketing plan for the carrier to help boost the city's bid for the Quincy-built ship and to increase public awareness for the drive.

The marketing plan will include television advertisements featuring documentary footage of her naval battles, the mayor said.

"I think it adds a tremendous amount of credibility to our application," Sheets said. "I think it increases dramatically the prospects of us getting the Lexington. I think it's a major step forward."

Sheets said the firm believes the Lexington would become the largest tourist attraction in Massachusetts and perhaps the Northeast if the carrier were berthed in Quincy. "It's not just a carrier," he said, referring to the Lexington which was reported sunk four times by Tokyo Rose during World War II.

"The U.S.S. Coral Sea is in mothballs and is available but everyone wants the Lexington because the Lexington is special. I think Hill, Holiday, Connors and Cosmopoulos see this as a very special effort which will probably attract national attention over the next three weeks and they want to be on board with the effort.

"They believe in what we're doing and they believe it's possible. They want to be a part of that effort," the mayor said.

Jamie Mambro, a resident of Hanover, will serve as art director for the project.

Quincy Pride Patrol To Visit Neighborhoods

Property owners who have improved their territory may be cited by the Quincy Pride Patrol this weekend.

City councillors will travel throughout their wards Saturday and Sunday and reward residents who have improved their property with green and white "QUIP" tee shirts. The slogan stands for "Quincy Instills Pride."

The shirts are intended for residents who have taken exceptional pride in their yard and home by maintaining and beautifying their house, lawn and or gardens.

"We think it's a nice gesture to say thank you to people who are improving their property," Mayor James Sheets said. "When we find people doing these things we'll give them one of these tee shirts," the mayor said as he displayed one of them in his office Monday.

The 350 shirts were donated by Browning-Ferris Industries. The mayor said ward councillors as well as some councillors-at-large will hit the neighborhoods with the shirts this weekend.

No Left Turn From Parkingway To Granite Street Starts Today

Left turns from the Parkingway to Granite St. in Quincy Center are prohibited beginning today (Thursday) for a 60-day trial period, announces Traffic Engineer David Kinnecom.

The trial traffic change was authorized by the City Council in 1989. The implementation had been postponed until the completion of construction work in Quincy Center.

The change is intended to reduce traffic congestion and accidents near the intersection of Burgin Parkway and Granite St. Traffic exiting the Parkingway and turning left onto Granite St. often creates a gridlock situation by blocking eastbound traffic on Granite St. The left turn is also hazardous because of limited sight distance.

In order to allow traffic to reach westbound Granite St. from Ross Way or Parkingway, the "No Left Turn" restriction from Cliveden St. to Hancock St. will be suspended on a trial basis. Advance signing will also be installed to direct motorists to this route.

In addition, the traffic signals at Hancock St. and Granite St. have been modified to permit a protected left turn from northbound Hancock St. to Granite St.

Anyone with comments or questions regarding the trial traffic changes may call the Department of Traffic and Parking at 479-1212 ext. 348.

another agency. The consolidation will stabilize the Plymouth-based agency, he said.

Survival and SSCA, which have offices in Quincy Center, will likely move out of their present locations and look for bigger quarters to house both operations. Terrabelli said the agencies want to stay in Quincy Center.

"Neither place is big enough. We'll probably be looking for a new spot. We want to stay downtown."

Mayflower will remain in North Plymouth on Castle St.

departments, Chretien proposed several measures designed to minimize service cuts in education and public safety.

One recommendation focused on mothballing the JFK Health Center for an estimated $100,000 in savings. Chretien said employees from the health center could be moved to other city buildings, possibly City Hall or the high schools.

Sheets rejected the health center proposal, saying the facility's space is needed. "Right now, the requests are coming in...to find additional space for people. They want to move departments up to the Kennedy Health Center because of space that is available there and the reason I have not approved that is because there is no parking there."

"Can you imagine what would happen if we had the building inspector's office there and all the people going into there."

As for closing it down, the mayor said, "You can close the building down but that doesn't mean you don't maintain it, you still have to maintain that building."

Sheets said he will consider Chretien's recommendations again.

Chretien's other recommendations are:

- Eliminating the vacant positions in the auditor's office, the park department, the department of Public Works and the Sewer-Water-Drain department for an estimated savings of $200,000.

- Closing the three branch libraries and shifting the displaced employees to the main branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center. Chretien said such a move would save the city $100,000 in operating costs.

- Consolidating several city functions, such as transferring all business affairs or bookkeeping positions of various departments to City Hall.

- Consolidate the custodial and maintenance staffs for all city departments and place them under one department head who would report directly to the mayor.

- Consolidate all inspection services of city government, from building inspection to conservation enforcement.

- Make cuts through attrition of secretarial and clerical positions.

- Reduce street sweeping contract by eight percent or $30,000.

Layoffs May Be Needed To Make Up $1.3M Shortfall

Con'd From Page 1 Expense items will also be cut. He said he hopes to make up the shortfall without laying people off.

"We want to make the cuts as least disruptive as possible," he added.

At first, the shortfall was pegged at $3.25 million. However, a bookkeeping maneuver regarding teacher salaries and a reduction in health insurance premiums for retired city employees lowered the shortfall to $1.3 million.

According to City Auditor Robert Foy, the city is rolling over one-twelfth of the money budgeted to pay teacher salaries from this fiscal year to FY 93. A new law allows municipalities to fund salaries over an 11-month budget this year. The move will save Quincy $1.9 million this year.

Foy said the city will have to revert to a 12-month budget for teacher salaries next year. "You can only do it this one year as I understand it," he said.

The city saved another $300,000 in health insurance premiums after a number of retired city workers switched to health maintenance organizations or HMOs which have lower premiums.

The bookkeeping maneuver and lower health insurance premiums prevented a number of layoffs. Two of the employees who were rumored to have lost their jobs, Conservation Enforcement Officer Heather Sargent and Assistant Planner Roberta Fitzgerald will remain on the job, Sheets said.

Since taking office in January, 1990, Sheets' administration has been marked by fiscal uncertainty and budget woes. Over the past 18 months, the mayor estimates that 225 to 250 positions have been eliminated because of state cuts to local aid and the soft economy.

According to Foy, the city has lost approximately $9.7 million in state local aid over the past three fiscal years: $3 million in FY 90, $1.4 million in FY 91 and $5.3 million in FY 92.

In fact, the city's local aid package for this fiscal year is down to the 1984 local aid level.

As for the override, Sheets said placing the measure before voters would have been "pure foolishness" because he believes the support is not there.

"The people in the city of Quincy, many of them are hurting. They have jobs but they haven't had raises for a substantial period of time. Their water and sewer bills are going up and in my opinion the support is not there for the Sept. 24th override and it would be pure foolishness to get involved in that process."

Only Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien, who appeared before the School Committee last week, indicated support for an override question be placed on the ballot. Sheets said the other councillors did not support the override nor did they favor placing the measure before voters.

If approved by the mayor and city council, the question would have asked Quincy voters whether they support an override in an effort to regain some or all of the $5.3 million lost in local aid through an increase in property taxes.

Quincy College Opens Plymouth Campus Oct. 7

Quincy College announces it will open a new campus in Plymouth Monday, Oct. 7.

The college will open in the Plymouth Public Library facilities on North Street after the main library moves to new facilities on South St. The college will offer a complete associate's degree program in liberal studies which may be completed entirely at this campus in two years. The college plans to open both a day and evening program in liberal studies, with concentrations available in liberal arts and business.

Classes will meet two days per week in the day or one day per week in the evening. For the first semester only, day courses will occasionally meet on a third day weekly to make up for the late start.

This fall's course offerings include English composition I, general psychology, U.S. history I, environmental science I, accounting I and speech communication. Courses are offered in both day and evening. Students may enroll for them on a full or part-time basis in either day or evening.

Tuition for the Plymouth campus will be the same as Quincy campus: $850 per semester for full-time students or $170 per course for part-time students. Fees will average approximately $75 per semester for full-time students, or $15 per semester for part-time students.

Tuition and fees at Quincy College are among the most reasonable in Massachusetts. Financial aid is available to qualified students.

The college has an admissions/financial aid representative at the public library to answer questions, take registrations and provide academic and financial aid counseling as needed. The office will open on Tuesday and Thursday mornings from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. and Monday and Wednesday evenings from 5 to 8 p.m.

For more information about the Quincy College program in Plymouth, Plymouth residents can call 1-800-698-1700, or the college admissions office at 617-984-1700.

Quincy College, a fully accredited community college, is currently the second fastest growing college in the state. The Quincy campus enrolls more than 4,000 students annually. Many Quincy College graduates have gone on to study for their bachelor's degrees at four-year institutions, including those in Boston.

College President O. Clayton Johnson said the new Quincy College campus will provide Plymouth area residents with a strong higher educational facility. "We have been receiving increasing numbers of applications from the Plymouth area.

"It seems that this area needs a strong higher educational facility. We are

Project Needs Two-Thirds Vote Council Showdown On Home Depot Project Monday

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The long-awaited decision on a proposed home improvement center in West Quincy will be made Monday, Aug. 5 at 7 p.m. when the City Council meets as the special permit granting authority in the Council Chambers of City Hall.

The meeting of the full city council is not a public hearing. It is one of the items on the council's summer agenda.

The council will vote as the special permit granting authority, meaning a two-thirds vote, or six votes of the full council, will be needed to approve the project proposed by Home Depot.

Home Depot wants to construct a 102,250-square-foot home improvement retail store with an attached 20,125-square-foot enclosed garden center at 179-198 Willard St. The 11.8-acre parcel is on the site of the former Antonelli Ironworks.

Since the project was proposed last fall, the issue has dominated West Quincy's neighborhoods. Proponents say the retail center would provide 200 jobs and $300,000 a year in tax revenue for the city. Opponents believe the center will increase the area's traffic problems and destroy the character of the neighborhood. Signs declaring each side's sentiments on the issue are common throughout West Quincy.

The Quincy Planning Board, which held six meetings on the proposal, voted 4-1 in favor at a meeting in July. The board's vote paved the way for next Monday's City Council decision.

When the council meets next Monday, the man in the spotlight will be Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio. As the ward's elected representative, Fabrizio could dictate how some of the other councillor's vote with his own decision.

Traditionally, on development issues, councillors defer to the judgement of their colleague representing the affected neighborhood. However, some councillors have indicated they will listen to Fabrizio's comments and then make their own decision, regardless of where the freshman councillor stands.

To help councillors understand the issue, Fabrizio will present each of his colleagues with a copy of his report on the project Friday or Saturday. The report takes into account all concerns and ideas expressed by neighbors as well as the project's potential impact on the local economy and traffic. It also includes his comments on Home Depot's proposal and what has transpired "from start to end."

"I've never lobbied the council one way or the other on this project and I'll continue to do that," Fabrizio said in an interview Monday. "The reason I'm presenting a report to them is for them to look over an in-depth report and based on what is in there, obviously I feel they should listen to the information I've gathered because I'm the councillor who is the closest to the project."

"In the end I think they should do what their conscience tells them and I have no problem with that."

Since last November, Fabrizio has attended several dozen public hearings and neighborhood, planning board and city council meetings on Home Depot.

Copies of Fabrizio's report will also be given to City Solicitor Stephen McGrath and Planning

Chretien Calls For Crackdown On Speeders

Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien has called upon the police department to set up speed traps in an effort to crack down on speeding cars throughout the ward.

"I wish that I could say that the problem of speeding has been reduced in the four years I've been on the council, but it hasn't on most streets. Today, people are concerned not only about their quality of life, but their lives—period."

"Many streets in Ward 3 present a real danger to pedestrians and drivers alike—especially for children and the elderly," he said.

According to Chretien, streets in most need of a crackdown are West Squantum, Harvard, Beale, Newport Ave., Burgin Parkway, Granite St., Whitwell, Adams, Holbrook Rd., Brook St. and Furnace Brook Parkway.

"I understand the police department is under severe budget constraints and I have been consistently opposed to cutting their budget," Chretien said. "However, several communities have found that speed traps are effective for a number of reasons."

"Chronic violators of the speed limit would be pulled over much more frequently than the average driver, providing a deterrence."

"Police presence on heavily traveled streets is effective for deterring crime in general."

"In pulling speeders over, police are more likely to detect other violations of the law. Some towns have found people on arrest warrants, with stolen cars and weapons."

"Speeding tickets provide revenue in a way that does not impact the vast majority of law-abiding taxpayers. The tickets more than pay for the cost of providing a strong police presence."

"Speeding is one of the most common complaints I receive from Ward 3 residents. I think that is time for us to respond."

Mariano Announces Bid For State Representative

RONALD MARIANO

Ronald Mariano, an elected member of the Quincy School Committee and appointed member of the Norfolk County Advisory Board, announces his candidacy for state representative in the Third Norfolk District.

Mariano, a Democrat, is a lifelong resident of the district which includes Quincy Point, Weymouth Landing and South Weymouth. A special primary election has been called for Tuesday, Oct. 15. The final election will be held Nov. 12.

The winner will replace Robert Cerasoli who was appointed state inspector general in June.

"As a local public official, both on the municipal and county level, I am acutely aware of the importance of local government in our lives," said the 44-year-old Mariano who lives at 57 Presidential Dr., Quincy. "Police and fire protection, the education of our young people, and the programs for our seniors depend upon a stable flow of local aid revenue from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

"State government is reneging on its commitment. I shall be a powerful and aggressive voice on Beacon Hill to protect these services," Mariano said. "I want to bring the message to the State House that the state budget will not be balanced at the expense of local government."

Mariano is a past president of the Ward 2 Civic Association and currently serves on its board of directors. For the past 10 years, he has chaired the Ward 2 Democratic Committee. He is one of the founding members of the Quincy Schools Athletic Contribution Committee, a group that raises money to supplement the athletic budget of the Quincy public school system, as well as an assistant coordinator of the President's Youth Basketball program.

"As a person who has always been available in the issues of my community, I know how important it is to have the state representative on your side," Mariano said. "It seems as if our district is constantly under attack by MWRA, Proctor and Gamble, sewerage treatment plants, toxic waste incinerators, flooding and traffic problems, and now, the Boston Edison power plant.

"As your state representative, I shall be a strong, accessible leader who will fight for the integrity of our neighborhoods. The people of this district deserve an active, hard-working and concerned state representative," he said.

A former Quincy school teacher, Mariano cited his extensive work experience in state government. "As a former welfare fraud investigator for the Bureau of Special Investigation, as a former budget analyst and program evaluator for the House of Representative's Post Audit and Oversight Bureau, and as a current member of the Public Protection Bureau of the Attorney General's Office of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, I am professionally qualified and prepared for this office.

"People in this district are deeply concerned about abuses in state spending. My professional employment history provides me with the needed skills and credibility to immediately review the state budget and effect reform," he said.

Mariano attended Quincy public schools and earned a bachelor of science degree from Northeastern University and a masters degree from the University of Massachusetts. He is married to Eve Powell.

"My elected and public service, community involvement, education and training, and professional work experiences enable me to be an effective legislator," Mariano said. "The issues facing the Third Norfolk District mandate immediate attention.

"I have made a difference in my community. Now help me make a difference in state government."

Council Showdown On Home Depot Project Monday

Director Richard Meade.

Fabrizio said he has basically made up his mind but he will wait until Monday's meeting to announce his final decision. "I will wait to make my final decision until I receive feedback from the city solicitor as well as the planning department. I want to make sure whatever the decision is that we're on firm ground."

Fabrizio said the project has been the single most dominating issue he has faced in his ward since he was elected to the council in 1989. He said both sides have compelling cases.

"Basically, it comes down to an issue on whether or not this project can work without infringing upon the character of the neighborhood there. Both sides have excellent arguments."

"I'm in the process now of weighing both sides of that and have gone back from the beginning and reviewed this whole process from day one, all public hearings that took place, all meetings in front of the planning board, all neighborhood meetings and that's why I'll reserve comment until I'm finished with that process which would be this weekend."

Fabrizio did not fault Mayor James A. Sheets for remaining silent on the issue. Before being elected mayor in 1989, Sheets represented Ward 4 for 16 years.

"I can understand the mayor's position. This is all part of the process and he's allowing the process to take place, he's allowing the process that I set up to go through the way I set it up, to hear from both sides, to hear different opinions, to let the whole process go through and if he decides to make a comment at the end of the process that's his prerogative but I think how he's handled himself up to now has been the appropriate thing to do."

As proposed, Home Depot would make signal and traffic improvements are various intersections in the area. The company would also demolish three buildings on Robertson Terrace to allow better access for large trucks making deliveries to the site.

Some 25 to 30 trucks would visit the center per day. Families which lost their homes would be compensated by the company.

The Robertson Terrace truck entrance would also provide a point of egress for customers utilizing the 632-space parking lot. Officials have estimated between 266 to 534 vehicles would visit the center in one hour during peak times on a Saturday.

As part of the road and traffic changes, Willard St. would be widened to 44 feet along the front of the center, a distance of approximately 600 feet. The wider road would allow four travel lanes, two northbound and two southbound.

One northbound lane would be used to provide left-hand turns into the center.

In addition, the company would pay for new traffic signals and restriping at the intersections at Robertson and Willard Sts and Robertson and Quarry Sts.

The retail center would have two points of egress: at Robertson Terrace near the Robertson St. bridge and at Willard St. a few 100 feet north of California Ave.

Besides the traffic changes, Home Depot would completely regrade the site to create gentler slopes to accommodate vehicular and pedestrian traffic. Home Depot would create buffer zones along Willard St. frontage and abutting property with landscaping.

MASS CASH WINNERS--Steve Keohane of Quincy, with his wife Esther, was one of three players who won a $100,000 in a recent Mass Cash drawing. The winning ticket, a "Quic Pic," was purchased at Dairy Mart M21, Quincy. The store received a $1,000 bonus for selling the winning ticket. Mass Cash, the state lottery's latest game, has a $100,000 prize released in one lump sum.

City Receives $35,500 EPA Grant For New Tidegate

The city has received a $35,500 grant from the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency for the installation of a new tidegate at the Milton Rd. and Colby St. in North Quincy to control tidal influx into the stormwater system.

Tide influx results in sanitary sewer leakage into the stormwater sewer system, which leads to untreated sewage discharges into Quincy Bay. The project is part of the Quincy Bay program, a systematic management action and public education program which uses state-of-the-art techniques and management practices to control stormwater discharges to an urban estuary.

In conjunction with the MWRA, the city will periodically monitor the stormdrain system for bacterial discharges. Along with the MDC, the state Division of Marine Fisheries, the city will also monitor the Quincy Bay receiving waters' bacterial levels. The project will produce annual reports to demonstrate the effectiveness of the comprehensive program.

The Quincy project was among four coast-wide monitoring projects selected in a national competition among 17 National Estuary programs which received EPA funding.

Hazardous Waste Clean Up Campaign Comes To Quincy

Over the next few weeks, representatives from the Massachusetts Campaign to Clean Up Hazardous Waste will be campaigning in Quincy to gather support for timely and effective cleanup of the more than 1,800 confirmed toxic waste sites in the state.

The campaign works with more than 60 neighborhood groups across the state who are campaigning to get the government and industry moving on site cleanup in local communities.

In Quincy, there are nine confirmed sites, including the former General Dynamics site, which is on the state priority list. There are also 43 other sites on the suspected list.

"With more and more toxic sites being found each year across Massachusetts, the need for community groups to fight for clean and safe neighborhoods has never been more important," said Matthew Wilson, director of the Massachusetts Campaign to Clean Up Hazardous Waste.

Campaigners will be out canvassing in neighborhoods between 4 and 9 p.m. signing up residents as members of the group.

Contributors will also be asked to sign a "Bill of Wrongs" which the campaign will present to the chemical and petroleum industry. The "bill" documents the damages that toxic chemicals have caused Massachusetts residents and demands that industry pays for all costs of toxic waste site cleanups.

Medically Speaking

by Michael M. Bakerman, M.D., F.A.C.C.

SOUNDING IT OUT

Approximately ten percent of Americans are treated for kidney stones sometime in their lifetime. Most respond to changes in diet and fluid intake, and most stones pass harmlessly if painfully. Medical help is required when the stone does not pass spontaneously, the flow of urine is obstructed, or there are signs of urinary infection or kidney damage. Extracorporeal Shock Wave Lithotripsy (ESWL) is an alternative to surgery in which the stone is pulverized, in about 30 to 60 minutes, by high energy shock waves generated by a lithotripter - literally, a stone breaker. With little discomfort, the stone is broken into tiny fragments resembling sand or gravel and passed in the urine. Following lithotripsy, the patient is observed for a few days in the hospital, although recently ESWL has been successfully completed as an outpatient procedure. P.S. Most patients pass stone fragments in the urine for three to four weeks. If you experience symptoms that lead you to suspect kidney stones, you should contact the appropriate physician for a consultation. Or you may call our office... I would be happy to discuss any medical problem with you at any time. This column is presented in the interest of better health by the offices of COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24, in Quincy. Phone 472-2550.

Bad Times For Candidates, Too

In the good old days standing in front of City Hall when nomination papers were available could be dangerous.

You might get run down by a speeding candidate.

There used to be a lot of candidates in city elections and usually enough for a preliminary runoff for mayor, six ward council seats, three council at-large seats, and three school committee seats.

But these days candidates are pretty hard to come by. This year, especially.

"You can't blame people for not wanting to run," says City Clerk John Gillis who has been keeping track of candidates and elections for 35 years.

"These are bad times for just about everyone. And we are seeing it reflected in elections.

"People don't want to run for office because they don't want to have to deal with layoffs or cutting services or raising taxes and all the other problems we have today because of the money squeeze.

"It's not just here in Quincy but in Boston and in other communities. There isn't much fun being in public office today. It's pretty sad.

The candidates so far are:

Mayor: incumbent, no challenger.

City Council at-large: three incumbents, one challenger

Ward 1: incumbent, one challenger

Ward 2: incumbent, one challenger

Ward 3: incumbent, no challenger

Ward 4: incumbent, one challenger

Ward 5: incumbent, no challenger

Ward 6: incumbent, two challengers

School Committee: two incumbents, seven challengers.

The deadline for filing nomination papers is just around the corner — Aug. 13.

Gillis doesn't expect more than one more candidate or two to take our papers. And he wouldn't be surprised if one or two who now have them out don't bring them back.

THE LIST OF potential candidates for the Third Norfolk District state representative seat, may be shrinking. Tony Falco, brother-in-law of City Councilor Tim Cahill reportedly has decided not to make a bid.

GILLIS

Tony Agnitti may not be far from bowing out, too.

OBSERVATION: All that construction noise at the Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company's expansion project is like music to the ears.

It's nice to see something going up besides the cost of living.

The project is providing union construction jobs for an estimated 100 workers. The new facility when finished, in turn will provide more jobs. And the city will benefit from new tax revenue.

Quincy Mutual has been in downtown Quincy for 140 years and plans to stay here.

"We have a lot of faith in downtown Quincy and this is where we are going to stay," says company President Harold Gerbis.

And the company is backing those words with an outlay of $7 million for the construction.

HERE'S ONE: There were a lot of new attractions at Quincy's Sidewalk Sale Days this year and Bill Morrill is still smiling about an unscheduled one of them.

Morrill owns Creative Fairs that furnished the tents and some of the amusements including the Moonwalk.

But there was another impromptu moonwalk and that's the reason he's still smiling.

Morrill stayed in a small motor home on Hancock St. near Woolworth's throughout the nights to guard his amusements and tents.

At about 3 a.m. Friday morning, he looked up deserted Hancock St. and saw some movement. He grabbed his binoculars to check and saw a woman walking down Hancock St. from the Granite St. area coming toward him.

The woman, brown haired and in her 20's, stopped outside the Hancock Tobacco store and then looked up and down the street for a few seconds, apparently checking to make sure no one was in sight.

And the next thing Morrill knew, she was peeling off her clothes — all of them. And with the clothes tucked under her arm, she walked nude up Hancock St. to the Quincy Fair. There she put her clothes back on, continued on her way, and disappeared into the night, never realizing that she had an audience.

"And, I had left my video camera home," Morrill laughs.

Well, why did she do it?

Speculation: She did it on a dare. She did it on a bet. She always wanted to walk nude down Hancock St. and now she could say she did.

And, if no one believes her she has a witness to verify it.

$4,000 Needed For Trip Quincy Couple Hopes To Visit Cambodian Family Members They Had Long Thought Dead

By BARBARA SULLIVAN

I would like to share a story that began for us on April 26, 1982. Charlie, myself and Charles and Debra went to Logan Airport to pick up the Phann family, Cambodian refugees we had agreed to sponsor. They had obviously been through a great deal before arriving in this country. The father, Phoeurk, weighed 105 pounds. The mother, Vanney, weighed 76 pounds, and their children Kim Leang and Vanda had red streaks in their hair, a sign of malnutrition. As we watched this very frail family approach with one small shopping bag, we could not imagine the tremendous bond that would soon grow between our two families.

for Phoeurk and Vanney their story began in the early 70's before they had met each other. Pol Pot had seized power in 1975 and was quickly establishing a brutal and terrifying new order. Cambodians will never forget the day he assumed control. Shouting orders over loud speakers, soldiers drove families from their homes and into the dangerous Cambodian jungle. Despite initial promises that the evacuation would only last three days, the seriousness of the situation became increasingly evident as days grew into weeks and months. Those attempting to return to their homes risked execution. Talking was prohibited. Anyone known to have received a formal education was executed. Families lost their possessions, their jobs, their money, and in many cases their lives. The entire complexion of Cambodia was changing forever.

Phoeurk and Vanney have told us many stories of the horrible nightmare they lived through. Phoeurk remembers one man with whom he became close friends simply being led away one day to be interrogated. He never returned.

Another time, a group of people Phoeurk was working with were

Benefit Cocktail Party Aug. 10 To Help Raise $4,000 For Trip

By JANE ARENA

Charles Sullivan, a former Deacon at St. John's Parish, and his wife Barbara, are hosting a very special cocktail party in their Scituate home Saturday, Aug. 10. But they're serving up more than cocktails and hors d'oeuvres.

Guests will have the opportunity to help a local Cambodian family realize what was once an impossible dream -- to reunite with relatives they long thought to have died.

The story of Phoeurk and Vanney Phann is a sad one, but one with a potential for a happy ending they never thought possible. Ten years ago the couple and a young daughter braved a terrifying and dangerous escape from the terrorist regime in Cambodia. Vanney was pregnant at the time.

Finally ending up in America, where they were sponsored and befriended by the Sullivans, the Phann family has grown in number and have established their home in Quincy, but their happiness has always been clouded by the sad conviction that family members left behind in Cambodia had died.

Recently they learned that is not so.

Phoeurk received word that his mother, four brothers and two sisters survived the Cambodian massacres.

Vanney has learned that her father, sister and a nephew are still living in Cambodia.

After mourning the relatives they thought to have lost for many years, Phoeurk and Vanney want to go back for the reunion they never thought could be.

The only thing standing in the way is the $4,000 for the plane ride there, and that's where the Sullivan's and their cocktail party come in.

Read the full account of the story as told by Barbara Sullivan, and then decide if you want to help.

Tickets to the cocktail party are $50 per person and all proceeds will help defray the airfare.

For tickets or further information, call Charles Sullivan at 545-5431, Marion or Paul Ricci at 472-2174, or Bea Linderwall at St. John's Rectory at 472-6221.

However, donations of any amount will also be accepted. Send checks payable to St. John's Cambodia Fund, St. John's Rectory, 21 Gay St., Quincy.

summoned for questioning. Although his name was not on the list of names, Phoeurk was also forced to go. One of the soldiers grabbed Phoeurk and dragged him into the jungle. Phoeurk knew they were going to kill him. The only thing he could think to do was pray to his

Quincy's Yesterdays Crackdown On Quarry Parties

Police Chief William Ferrazzi announced that 10 members of the Auxiliary Police will be assigned to weekend duty in the vicinity of Faulkner's and Cashman's quarries for the rest of the summer.

The area in West Quincy has been the scene of noisy parties, nude swimming and brush fires in recent weeks.

The fire menace was such that Fire Chief Thomas F. Gorman Jr., urged residents to form a "vigilante committee" to help apprehend those who start fires that threaten the 50 homes in the neighborhood.

CARNIVAL PLANNED

Swimmers at Heron Beach, Adams Shore, were making costumes in preparation for the water ballet and comedy skit at their water carnival, to be directed by Miss Ellen Flaherty.

CARNEY CHALLENGED

Willis A. Neal of Canton, formerly of Quincy demanded that the State Ballot Law Commission rule George P. Carney of Quincy off the ballot for clerk of courts.

Volunteer Drivers Needed For Cancer Patients

Volunteer drivers are needed to take cancer patients in Quincy and Milton to hospitals for treatment or check-ups.

Frances Ryan, coordinator of the transportation service of the American Cancer Society in these communities said, "We have had an increase in requests and a cutback in funds available to pay for transportation, so we've been hard pressed to respond. We hate to turn anyone down because many of the patients are required to go to hospitals daily over a period of five to seven weeks and have no one to call on."

The South Shore Unit of the Cancer Society operates a "hot line" 698-2536, at the Milton Council on Aging, 44 Edgehill Road, Tuesday-Friday, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., handling requests and making assignments to the volunteers. Recently the service has averaged three requests a day and only a small pool of volunteer drivers.

Volunteers are asked to pledge one trip per month to area or Boston hospitals at a time convenient to them.

For information call 698-0100 ext. 247; 698-2536; or the South Shore Unit office, 341-4210.

"Our volunteers find these simple missions of mercy very rewarding," Ryan said. "Many of these patients live alone, have no way to get to their appointments, and shower the drivers with thanks for the rides. We desperately need more volunteers."

Spotlight On HEALTH AND FITNESS

How To Deal With Rheumatism

By DANIEL S. KARP, Lic. Ac.

Of all the painful complaints which afflict humanity, rheumatism must be classified as the best known.

This disease has proved so intractable and widespread, largely because standard therapies are often ineffective.

Much of the pain in rheumatoid arthritis arises not only from the affected joints but also from secondary fibrositis areas. Pain areas causing the rheumatic syndrome in the upper limb are in the muscles of the shoulder girdle; and those responsible for rheumatic symptoms in the knees, ankles and feet are found in the buttock muscles.

Some 100 diseases, including rheumatism, can be treated with acupuncture. These results have been documented in more than 8,000 scientific papers published on the theory and practice of acupuncture.

Some say that acupuncture is psychosomatic, or that the effect is "all in the mind." But if the therapeutic function of acupuncture lies only "in the mind" how can one explain that it works equally well in small children, comatose patients and animals?

Acupuncture is more effective in treating disorders of tissue function, such as a disorder of nervous electrical activity which causes chronic pain, than it is in dealing with organic change in some tissue incapable of repairing itself.

Once rheumatic arthritis, for example, has established itself by causing muscle wasting and bony resorption leading to deformities of the joints, this process cannot be reversed by acupuncture; nor by any other medical treatment. However, acupuncture can relieve pain and stiffness and swollen joints in even severe chronic arthritis.

Separate from the effects which acupuncture has on symptoms, it can also cause odd sensations: some patients report a feeling of exhilaration "like walking on air" after their initial treatment. Others feel "woozy" or sleepy, but these effects soon disappear and healing sets in. Isn't it time you too discovered what acupuncture can do for you?

'Cardiac Arrest' Raises $5,600 For Heart Association

Thirteen otherwise law-abiding citizens were arrested and jailed as part of "Cardiac Arrest," a fundraising event recently held at Quincy Hospital to benefit the American Heart Association.

Each prisoner was held "in jail" until they were able to raise bail by convincing friends and co-workers to pledge to the Heart Association. In total, the group raised more than $5,600 in pledges which will be used to fund research, education and community service programs.

"Jailbirds" included:

Michael Bakerman, M.D., comprehensive cardiac care; Neil Berman, M.D., Heart Care Medical Associates; Doris Sinkevich, R.N., nursing administrator; Susan O'Brien, assistant dietary director; Marie Lawlor, Darlene Rich, ICU clinical aide; Margaret Crehan, director of volunteer services; Melissa Rose, radiology; Susan Deegan-

Medication Misuse And The Elderly

By DAVID MARK
WEBBER

How many times have you returned home from the doctor's office, with a new prescription in hand, and you cannot remember the instructions for taking your medication? Do you take it once a day, or twice a day, on a full or empty stomach, in the morning or at bedtime? You try and read the label, but the print is so small you cannot see it. If you are an older adult, you may be facing these obstacles to taking your medications safely.

Although older people account for only about 11 percent of the population, elders take 31 percent of all prescribed drugs, which is due, in part, to chronic illness, such as arthritis, diabetes and heart disease that affect many people.

For a variety of reasons, elders are at greater risk of experiencing side effects from medications. As people age, drugs stay in the bodies of older people longer since the liver and kidneys, which break down and eliminate drugs in the body, do not perform as efficiently. Certain organs, such as the brain and heart, are more sensitive to the effects of drugs as we age. Also, many elders see a number of doctors, who may be unaware of what the other physicians are prescribing. Finally, elders are more likely to be taking several medications each day, which can result in a greater number of side effects or an increase in the likelihood of making mistakes in taking drugs properly.

To make matters worse, when side effects from medications, such as confusion, depression, or incontinence, do occur, they may go unnoticed. This is due, in part, to attitudes that these conditions are a part of "normal aging," and are not a result of drug interactions or misuse.

There are a variety of ways you can reduce the chances of making medication errors. Make periodic reviews of all your medications. Throw out expired drugs. Make every physician you visit aware of all the drugs you are taking, including nonprescription medications, such as laxatives and sleeping aids. Nonprescription drugs can lead to serious problems if used too often, or in combination with certain other drugs.

Follow your drug instructions carefully and ask your doctor or pharmacist for written instructions. If you forget to take a dose, call your doctor--never take an extra dose if you miss one. If you experience side effects from a drug, again, let your physician know--don't stop taking it. The doctor might be able to adjust the dose, or change the medication.

If you have poor eyesight, ask your pharmacist for large type labels and oversized containers. If you have difficulty opening childproof caps, ask for containers without them. Just remember though, for those of you with grandchildren, to keep all medications out of the reach of children. Many childhood poisonings occur while grandchildren are visiting at a grandparents' house.

The Massachusetts Department of Public Health has put together a medicine calendar and passport that can help you take your medications safely. The calendar, which can be posted on a refrigerator, lists, day by day, each medication to be taken, and can be easily updated. The medicine passport is a compact booklet which can be easily carried in a purse or pocket. Again this lists all the medications being taken, and can be brought with you to each physician you see. These materials are available free of charge, and your doctor or nurse can help you fill them out.

For a free medicine calendar and passport, write Eldermed, c/o The Massachusetts Elderly Injury Prevention Project, Massachusetts Department of Public Health, 150 Tremont St., 7th Floor, Boston, MA 02111.

WHIPLASH

The term "Whiplash" is most often used to describe a type of neck injury that occurs when a person is involved in a "rear-end" automobile accident. The sudden jolt from behind causes the unsuspecting driver's neck to snap backwards quickly, and then whip forward violently. This rapid bending backwards and forward, or hyperextension-hyperflexion, of the neck injures the neck muscles and ligaments which support the neck and oftentimes displace of the neck bones.

Some whiplash injuries cause immediate problems, but it is not unusual for hours, days or even weeks to pass before the neck, back, or head pain becomes evident. Every day people walk away from accidents believing that they are not seriously hurt because they did not lose any blood or because they were told at the emergency room that there were no broken bones. The misalignment of the neck bones caused by the whiplash injury may lead to neck pain or stiffness, headaches, dizziness, blurred vision, nausea and swelling, tingling or numbness in the shoulders, arms, hands and fingers.

After any incident in which your neck may have been injured, even if the symptoms are not immediately apparent, it is essential that you have an examination by someone who is trained to examine the spine and related structures. Chiropractors understand the dynamics of the whiplash injury and are especially skilled in treating such conditions.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment, please call Dr. Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 440 Hancock Street, North Quincy - 773-4400 mother. While praying, he promised that if he were not killed, he would shave his head as a symbol of thanks. At the last minute another soldier asked Phoeurk his name, releasing him after not seeing him on the list. A shaken and grateful Phoeurk left and immediately shaved his head.

Vanney spoke of a day in 1977, long after she was separated from her parents when she was preparing a meal for her first husband. Without any warning, soldiers arrived, took him outside and shot him. Vanney continued cooking, acting as if nothing had happened, or she too would have been killed. A short time later her four year old son, Kim Lay died of malnutrition and dysentery. And yet, she continued on, struggling to keep her two daughters and herself alive.

Early in 1979, in the midst of this insanity, Phoeurk and Vanney met, fell in love, and were married. In December of that year Phoeurk and Vanney, who was now pregnant, decided to escape.

They made plans to lead about 200 people out of Cambodia to Thailand. Vanney's oldest daughter, Kim Ly, would not be one of them, however. Vanney's in-laws from her first marriage refused to allow Kim Ly to go because of the danger involved. With heavy hearts, Phoeurk, Vanney and Kim Leang began their journey.

The escape would take three nights and two days of nerve-racking and demanding hiking. Traveling at night and hiding during the day, the group was constantly on guard to avoid military patrols. They had nearly reached safety when tragedy struck. On the night of December 29, Phoeurk stepped on a land mine, blowing off the lower half of his leg. No one could imagine that the incident would lead the Phannas to a man who would change their lives.

With a young man named Derith carrying Phoeurk, the group pushed on to the Thai border. Phoeurk and his family were put in the refugee camp Koaw I Dang, their home for the next two years and the birthplace of their daughter, Vanda.

It was here that Phoeurk met an American physical therapist named Tom Hobin. With Tom's assistance, Phoeurk began a long and arduous rehabilitation process. Using anything he could find -- a rubber tire for a foot, a table leg for a leg, bamboo and leather for a knee -- Phoeurk taught himself to walk again. He also began to learn to speak English. When Tom Hobin left the camp to return home to America, he promised Phoeurk he would send for him. And he did. Tom entered the seminary and through a mutual friend who was a Maryknoll priest, we were called and asked to sponsor the Phannas.

That was nearly ten years ago. Much has happened to this extraordinary family since then. In 1989, they bought a single dwelling in Houghs Neck where they live with their four children. Kim Leang is now 18 and graduated from high school this year. Vanda is 11 and will enter the sixth grade. Both Lisa, five, and Christopher, four, were born in the U.S. and are just about to start their education. Phoeurk works for Bonden Gear and machine Shop as a supervisor on the day shift. Through these past nine years, Phoeurk and Vanney have shared much of their lives with us. We have cried together and laughed together, and celebrated together. Many of the stories were difficult to share and heartbreaking to hear.

The Phannas learn about their family and their country from other Cambodians who have come to the states or who have traveled back to reunite with relatives.

Their loss in human terms is staggering. Vanney's mother, sister and brother were executed in 1976. Phoeurk's father and two older brothers are all dead.

Remarkably, an occasional piece of good news will filter through to them. Phoeurk has learned that his mother, four brothers and two sisters survived the massacres. IN 19486 the Phannas received word that Kim Ly was still alive. Her grandparents had died, but she had been raised by an aunt and was safe.

After 21 painful years of coming to terms with her family's death, Vanney has just heard that her father, older sister and one nephew are still alive in Cambodia. In a video tape brought by a traveller, Vanney's father made an emotional plea to see his daughter once again.

The hope of seeing their family and their country again has been as much a part of Phoeurk and Vanney's lives as the pain they endured for so many years. Phoeurk is in the process of obtaining his citizenship and applying for his visa to enable him and his wife to return to their homeland.

Although Cambodia is now under Communist rule, life has improved and a safe visit is possible. Travel restrictions both inside and outside are commonplace, but if Phoeurk and Vanney fly into the capital city Phnom Penh, family members will be allowed to see them.

The only remaining obstacle preventing this reunion from taking place is the tremendous cost of the trip itself. The flight for both Phoeurk and Vanney would amount to approximately $4,000.

Our goal is to raise as much of this money as possible. Please help us fulfill this courageous couple's dream to see their family once again. They have all survived a horrible and traumatic past. We now have a wonderful opportunity to be a small part of a brighter future.

Thank you so much for listening. We look forward to seeing you on August 10.

Quincy Youth Council Meets With Cellucci

By STEVE KAVANAGH

During its first month of existence the Quincy Youth Council has met with Lt. Governor Paul Cellucci, adopted a traffic island to maintain, and is making plans to meet with the city's teens once school opens in September.

The first-ever Quincy Youth Council was sworn in during a recent City Council meeting at City Hall.

More than 100 people attended the swearing in of the nine-member council.

The group will serve as a liaison between teenagers and the City Council and will allow the youth of the city to have a voice in city government.

The youth council is the idea of high school students Michael D'Amico and Darren Kerfien. The pair will serve as Councilors-at-Large.

D'Amico, of 602 Willard St., and Kerfien, of 26 Payne St., will be joined by Councillor-at-Large Margaret McLean, 236 Rock Island Road; Ward 1 Councillor Thomas McCormack, 926 Sea St.; Ward 2 Councillor John DiGiacomo, 110 Lancaster St.; Ward 3 Councillor David Flaherty, 138 Granger St.; Ward 4 Councillor Nicole Sheffer, 42 Hayden St.; Ward 5 Councillor Greg MacKay, 19 Ardell St.; and Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Geary, 15 Knollwood Road.

Some of the Youth Councilors have already attended regular City Council meetings. Kerfien and D'Amico have worked closely with City Council president Ted DeCristofaro.

This past Friday the council met with Cellucci at the State House.

"We offered our support for any youth programs," McLean said.

"We told him more about our program," DiGiacomo said. "And that we want to inspire other cities and towns to start youth councils."

"He (Cellucci) said the youth council is a good idea and he supports us and appreciates our enthusiasm," McCormack said.

During the meeting Gov. William Weld stopped by to say hello to the Quincy Youth Council.

The group has joined the city's Adopt-An-Island program and will be maintaining a large parcel of land at the intersection of Newport Avenue and Furnace Brook Parkway.

Teens in the city are already taking advantage of their new liaisons to city hall. A group presented a petition to Ward 6 Youth Councilor Geary asking that the baseball field in Squantum be repaired and maintained.

McCormack said he noticed some brush obscuring a traffic light in his Ward and contacted Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson who had the problem resolved quickly.

A NEW RESIDENCE for handicapped adults was officially opened recently at 75-77 South St., Quincy. Among the state officials who were instrumental in the acquisition are, from left, Ted Kirovski, state Department of Mental Health; Harry Shulman, South Shore Mental Health Center; John (Jake) Comer, Quincy Housing Authority Director; James McDonald, QHA commissioner; Charles White, state Department of Mental Health; and Peter Kolson, QHA foreman and Ward 1 councillor.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

It has been said that one man's work can be another one's play. There have been many changes in concepts of work and play through the years.

These changes have been brought about by the evolution in styles of living. In primitive societies and pioneer societies, families depend largely on hunting and fishing for their food supply. Men leave their homes before dawn for a day of wearying work at tracking down animals in order to very and extend the meals they placed before their families.

Today in the United States, most families find the majority of their food supplies on the shelves of supermarkets. Yet on holidays, many men and women are happy for a day of leisure for hunting and fishing. Some spend their leisure time in gardening which has become a popular hobby.

The weekly or semi-weekly trek to the supermarket is often a chore for some people. Yet newcomers to this country from deeded lands say that they are so delighted with the abundance displayed on grocery store shelves that they sometimes visit the market for pleasurable sight-seeing during their leisure hours.

One man's work can be, indeed, another one's play ...

For those times when the darkness lingers

With the loss of a loved one through death, it is helpful to be able to share the feelings and emotions which we all experience.

For most of us, there are family members, clergy, and friends who are ready to listen in a caring way.

Yet, there are those who find it helpful to share their grief with someone outside their immediate circle of support.

Because of our continuing commitment to the families we serve, Keohane Funeral Service is pleased to announce that Dr. Sherry Johnson has joined our staff as a Grief Counselor. Her educational background, professional experience and understanding manner can be particularly helpful.

We are the first funeral home in New England to offer the service of a Grief Counselor.

Each period is punctuated by a particular historic character who was relevant to the struggles and triumphs of the day: Characters depicted include Abraham Lincoln, Harriet Tubman, Mark Twain, Amelia Earhart, Martin Luther King, Marilyn Monroe and John F. Kennedy.

Legion Baseball

Morrisette Eliminated By Brockton 3-1, 6-5

By TOM SULLIVAN

Another outstanding season for the Morrisette Legion baseball team came to an end Monday when it dropped its second straight decision to Brockton and was eliminated from the state playoffs.

After defeating Bridgewater in two straight games, 8-7 and 8-5 Morrisette, which finished tied for the Zone 6 title with Braintree for the second year in a row, lost to Brockton, 3-1 and 6-5.

Morrisette finished with an overall record of 15-5 after going 13-3 during the regular season. Braintree, which surprised Fall River, winning two straight, and Brockton will join host Lowell, Walpole and four other teams in the state championship tourney at Lowell starting this weekend.

The Northeast Regionals, which will be hosted by Morrisette next year, will take place this year in Orono, Me.

Morrisette coach Dave Perdios has much to look forward to next season with only three players, pitchers Gary Rawdon and Mike Baylis and first baseman Tom Balzano graduating. He will have 11 16-year olds and four 17-year olds returning.

Morrisette's final loss to Brockton Monday was a heartbreaker as it took a 5-2 lead into the eighth inning. But Baylis (6-2) tired and Brockton scored twice in the eighth and three in the ninth as Pat Clifford relieved Baylis.

Baylis had held Brockton to two runs and six hits through seven innings before tiring. Brockton collected three hits and two runs in the eighth and two runs and three hits in the ninth.

Morrisette broke a 2-2 tie with three runs in the top of the eighth. Baylis led off with a double, went to third on a passed ball, Clifford walked, Baylis scored on a balk, Rawdon drove in Clifford, went to second and scored on a throwing error.

Baylis had an outstanding playoff series, going 11 for 16 at the plate, including four doubles and four RBIs and pitched 18 1/3 innings, going 1-1 and played flawlessly at shortstop.

Balzano had an RBI single in the finale, Rawdon a single and double and RBI, Mark Kelliher a single and Baylis went 3-for-5 with a double and RBI.

In the opening game against Brockton Sunday night at Adams Field, Morrisette lost despite fine pitching by Rawdon, who gave up five hits and three runs, struck out five and walked one as he finished with a 5-2 record.

Brockton took a 1-0 lead in the fourth without a hit on a walk, a hit batsman, a sacrifice and a sacrifice fly. It added two in the fifth on back-to-back doubles and a single.

Morrisette scored its lone run in the sixth when Balzano walked, went to second on a ground out and scored on Kelliher's single.

Morrisette had scoring chances in the first, fifth, eighth and ninth innings but left men in scoring position with less than two outs in each inning.

Morrisette was held to five hits, doubles by Pat Shea and Baylis and singles by Noel DiBona, Robbie Kane and Kelliher.

Morrisette had to go 10 innings to oust Bridgewater in the second game of their opening round series.

Baylis pitched the entire 10 innings despite some soreness in his arm in the middle inning and picked up his sixth win. He allowed eight hits, four coming in the sixth inning when Bridgewater scored three runs to tie the score at 4-4. He then settled down, retiring the next 10 batters in a row. He had eight strikeouts.

In the top of the tenth at Bridgewater, Morrisette scored four runs on two singles, a walk, a hit batter, an error, and a wild pitch. Kane and Baylis had singles. Rawdon was hit by a pitch. Kane scored on a wild pitch. Balzano walked. Clifford reached on an error as Baylis scored and Balzano scored the final run on a fielder's choice. Bridgewater scored one run in the bottom of the tenth.

Baylis went two-for-four including an RBI double. Kane had two hits, two stolen bases and scored three times. Balzano drove in two runs with a single and a long sacrifice fly that just missed clearing the fence in center field. Shea had two hits including a double and scored twice and Rawdon, Clifford and Kelliher had singles.

Despite pounding out 16 hits, Morrisette had to wait until the bottom of the ninth before it pulled out an 8-7 win in the opener against Bridgewater. It was the fifth time Morrisette had won in its last time at bat.

Kelliher led off the ninth with a double to left, was sacrificed along by Serge Belcastro and pinch hitter Liam Higgins singled with two outs to drive in the winning run. It was the third time Higgins had driven in the winning run in the final inning.

Baylis had a fantastic game, going 5-for-5, including a double, driving in two runs and scoring two. He also had a fine game at shortstop. Kane, a 16-year-old second baseman, had a double, single and a walk. Kelliher had two doubles and scored twice. Balzano had two hits and an RBI and Clifford had an RBI double.

Rawdon was the starting pitcher and went 7 1/3 innings before developing a blister on his throwing hand. He gave up three earned runs, walked five, gave up six hits and struck out 10. He was relieved by southpaw Billy Warren, who went 2/3 of an inning. Matt O'Toole relieved with two men and no outs in the ninth. He wild pitched the runners to second and third and both scored on a single to tie the score. O'Toole settled down and retired the next three batters. He earned his first Legion victory.

"I was very pleased with our season, considering this was the youngest Morrisette team I can remember," said Perdios. "Naturally, I was disappointed we didn't make the state championship round, but these kids did a great job. It was a real pleasure coaching them and I'm eagerly looking forward to next year with 15 players coming back. The experience the younger players received should stand us in good stead next year when we host the Northeastern Regionals."

4 From Quincy Qualify For Hershey Nationals

Four qualifiers from the Quincy competition in the Hershey National Track and Field Youth Program, Juliann Battaglia, Kimberly DiBona, Yvette Molina and Leah Rooney have advanced to the National Championship in Hershey, Pa.

The four girls recently won the Massachusetts State Championship in the 9-10 year old 4x100 meter relay. Their winning time was compared with the best times from the other New England states and they were selected to represent the New England Region at the nationals.

The meet will be held Aug. 16-18 and will feature boys and girls from all 50 states. All expenses are paid by the Hershey Chocolate Company.

Battaglia, DiBona and Molina are all Quincy residents and Rooney lives in Braintree. All are active members of the Quincy Track Club and practice under the guidance of Geoff Hennessey, club director.

Originally, the girls qualified for the state championship at a local meet sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Dept. There were more than 60 local meets in Massachusetts. A total of 229 boys and girls competed in Quincy.

Battaglia is a fifth grade student at Atherton Hough; DiBona is a fifth grader at Point Webster; Molina is a fifth grade student at Bernazzani School and Rooney is entering fifth grade at Lakeside Elementary in Braintree.

The boys 9-10 4x100 relay team of Youssef Abouzaki, Chris Licciardi, Patrick Grogan and Mikel Dujour also won the state championship but did not qualify for the national meet.

Other qualifiers that did well were:

Boys 9-10: Radek Wierzbowski, standing long jump, third; Mikel Dujour, 100 meters, seventh; Patrick Grogan, 200 meters, sixth; Youssef Abouzaki, 400 meters, fourth.

Girls 9-10: Genevieve O'Brien, 400 meters, fourth; Kim DiBona, 50 meters, sixth; Yvette Molina, 100 meters, sixth; Juliann Battaglia, 200 meters, sixth.

Boys 11-12: Mike Stockdale, 4x100 relay, sixth; Richard Garcia, 4x100 relay, sixth; Fernando Vieira, 4x100, sixth; Felipe Ornelas, 4x100 relay, sixth.

Girls 11-12: Dianne McGunigle, 400 meters, sixth; 4x100 relay, fifth; Erin Barry, 800 meters, third; 4x100 relay, fifth; Kristy Deptula, softball throw, sixth; Elizabeth Ceurvels, 4x100 relay, fifth; Hillary O'Donoghue, 4x100 relay, fifth.

Boys 13-14: Mark Ngutter, 100 meters, seventh; standing long jump, third.

Girls 13-14: Meghan Rooney, 800 meters, third; 4x100 relay, seventh; Phyllis Poon, 4x100 relay seventh; Barbara Sclaro, 4x100 relay, seventh; Leah Campanale, 4x100 relay, seventh.

"The importance of the Hershey Program is to stimulate the participation of all eligible boys and girls," said Recreation Director Barry Welch. "The participation, enjoyment and physical exercise are positive benefits to all competitors. Having four of our 229 competitors advance to the nationals is the 'frothing on the cake' for our local meet."

The National Chairman of the Hershey Youth Program is Rafer Johnson. It is affiliated with the National Recreation and Park Association and Presidents Council on Physical Fitness and Sports.

Stice Proposes Volunteer Program For Public Schools

At a recent coffee held at 1000 Southern Artery apartment complex, School Committee candidate Linda Stice proposed a volunteer program utilizing senior citizens for the Quincy public school system.

"Our public schools need your help," Stice told senior citizens at the housing facility. Calling senior citizens "one of Quincy's most valuable resources," she called for volunteers to help the public schools.

Stice says parents, teachers, principals and students from each of Quincy's school should be asked to identify their school's strengths, difficulties and most immediate needs. Some of those needs could be addressed by volunteers, she said.

"There is no substitute for a teacher, but volunteers can read to young children, act as mentors to teens, run fundraisers and bridge the gap between business and classrooms. Volunteers will be carefully trained, given real work to do, and recognized with certificates of achievements, tee-shirts and award ceremonies," Stice said.

If elected, she said she would work with the school department, the Mayor's Office and the school-community partnership to create a "volunteer program to top all volunteer programs."

Stice said there is a spirit in Quincy that makes her proud to live here. "Our police officers devote their off-hours to setting up an athletic program for Quincy kids. Our mayor asks us to create a 'cleaner, greener' Quincy, and we respond."

"When we are asked to recycle, to help the environment, we respond with a participation rate so high, the experts are left shaking their heads."

"We must harness this spirit to help our public schools," she said.

"Teachers alone cannot educate children. The world has become too complex, the stakes are too high, and the children are too valuable. To paraphrase a proverb, it takes an entire community to educate children."

Stice pointed to hospitals as a model of successful volunteer programs. "Senior citizens put in thousands of hours of volunteer time in hospitals and hospice programs. I know that if we ask for help with our public schools, there are seniors who will answer the call."

She said several residents interested in volunteering approached her after her talk.

"If I'm elected, I'd like to set up a really exciting, effective volunteer program. Children need the kind of patience and experience that senior citizens have to offer, and our school system needs no-cost initiatives in our quest for excellence."

Shipyard Electrical Accident Probed

By JANE ARENA

Federal investigators are reportedly conducting an investigation into an explosion which critically injured a Quincy man Monday at the Fore River Shipyard, but it was uncertain Tuesday whether the investigation would cause delays to scheduled work at the yard.

According to Paul DiNatale, Press Secretary for the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA), which owns the shipyard, investigations were underway Tuesday, but work was also continuing for preparing the long-idle shipyard for scheduled ship repair work this week.

"It is my understanding that preparations (for the repair work) are continuing today," DiNatale told The Quincy Sun Tuesday.

Robert Pelletier, 27, of Sea St., was injured in an electrical accident at the Fore River Shipyard Monday afternoon and was listed in critical condition in the burn unit of Massachusetts General Hospital Tuesday.

He suffered serious burns when he accidentally hit a high voltage switch gear while working on electrical equipment in the former General Dynamics Shipyard.

Pelletier, an electrician with MacArthur Electric, a subcontractor for a company that has leased space in the shipyard, was testing switch breakers in an underground vault when the accident occurred at about 2:30 p.m. He was testing equipment to open and close a dry dock in anticipation for repair work which had been scheduled to begin this week.

The shipyard had been scheduled to open this week after getting a $1 million contract to repair and refurbish the SS Wright, a ship returning from the Persian Gulf and Operation Desert Storm. The repair work is scheduled to last about a month and there has been talk of a possibility of more contracts to build ships.

DiNatale said that a subsidiary of General Dynamics may be hiring a private engineering firm to investigate the safety of the shipyard and issue a report to American Overseas Marine Corp., managers of the ship, as to whether the facility is "in good enough shape to take in the ship." He said he had no confirmation on this investigation.

Sen. Paul Harold, who has been involved in re-opening the shipyard, said safety is a key issue to getting the getting the current contract underway.

"Safety is one of the main factors and that will determine when the ship comes in, this week or next week," he said. "The Federal Government has to be assured that the shipyard is safe before the ship can come in."

Council Approves Home Depot 7-1 With 32 Conditions

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The City Council granted a special permit for an $8 million home improvement retail center in West Quincy Monday night, but the issue, which sharply divided neighbors, is still not a done deal.

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, who wrestled with the Home Depot proposal for nine months, attached 32 conditions to the special permit before the council voted 7-1 in favor of the project. Only Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson voted against the development which calls for a 102,250-square foot home improvement retail store with an attached 20,125-square foot enclosed garden center at 179-189 Willard St., the site of the former Antonelli Ironworks.

Councillor Patricia Toland did not attend Monday's meeting.

Fabrizio called the set of conditions a "blueprint" forged by concerned neighbors and businesses in West Quincy. Throughout the day and up until the start of the meeting, Fabrizio met with city officials and representatives from Home Depot to "strengthen the tone and legality of the permit."

The freshman councillor said the conditions, called the most stringent on any special permit in the city's history, are intended to keep Home Depot accountable for its development, monitor vehicular traffic in the area and preserve the integrity of the neighborhood.

Fabrizio's conditions and "special conditions" address concerns raised by neighbors and area businesses since the project was first proposed last fall. Home Depot has 20 days to appeal the permit before it becomes final.

An official from Home Depot and the attorney representing the company said the firm will "carefully review" the conditions before making its decision.

After the 7-1 vote, John Roberts, New England real estate manager for Home Depot, said the conditions are "as extensive as I've seen anywhere and we have to review very thoroughly what they do say and what impact they have on Home Depot operationally and economically and it's so complicated I can't say much without reviewing it carefully."

Atty. Carl Johnson agreed. "There are several very stringent conditions to the special permit which I think Home Depot is going to have to review very carefully to see if they can live with them.

"We are extremely happy with the process and extremely happy with the confidence the councillors have shown in Home Depot, well knowing that they are holding our feet to the fire to perform all of the things represented in the project," Johnson added.

As written in the permit, Home Depot would be required to submit traffic counts and movement data to the city traffic engineer two months, six months, 12 months, 18 months, 24 months and 36 months after the center opens. The analysis would include future traffic and roadway mitigation improvements including land takings.

In addition, Home Depot would have to post a $1 million bond to fund any additional traffic improvements and mitigation within one year.

Nutley Requests Hearing On Sagamore Inn

Responding to a request from Ward 6 City Councillor Thomas Nutley, the Quincy License Board voted Tuesday to schedule a hearing Sept. 3 at 10 a.m. regarding the possible revocation of license of the Sagamore Inn Bar & Grill, 78 Sagamore St.

Nutley's letter was prompted by a recent shooting outside the bar. Neighbors have complained of frequent drug dealing outside the Sagamore Inn.

In a letter to License Board Chairman John Gillis, Nutley wrote:

"This bar's past history, its proximity to the ball field, its affect on young people who live and play ball nearby, its location in a residential area and now a shooting, all point up the need to remove the bar from its present location."

Contributions Sought To Pay Back City

Council Appropriates $88,500 For Aluminum Seating At Stadium

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The City Council approved an appropriation of $88,500 to install new aluminum bleachers at Veterans Memorial Stadium Monday night.

Mayor James Sheets and School Committee Vice Chairman Frank Santoro have formed a committee of various city department heads, community leaders and organizations that support athletics in Quincy schools.

The group, called the Veterans Memorial Stadium Seating Committee, is hoping to raise the necessary funds from private donations to cover the cost of the new seating for both the home and visitors' sides.

The Quincy Schools Athletic Contribution Committee, a non-profit organization, will be the vehicle to raise the funds. Any contributions made to this committee are tax-deductible.

The stadium seating committee is requesting donations of $25 per seat or $300 per row. Nameplates will be affixed to the ends of the rows designating the donors.

As funds are received, the committee will then transfer the money back to the city's sale of real estate account.

Santoro told the council Monday night the aluminum benches cost $20,000 more than wooden seats. But, he added, the city will save money in the long run while the aluminum is maintenance free.

The committee hopes the new seats are installed before the start of the schoolboy football season next month.

The stadium, which was built in 1936-1937, has deteriorated over the years. The seats were condemned by the city's building department earlier this year.

The old wooden bleachers were removed recently by a 10-inmate crew from the Braintree Alternative Center which is part of the Norfolk County Sheriff's Association. The crew, which was supervised by two officers, removed the bleachers over a two-week period, saving the city an estimated $15,000 to $20,000 in removal costs.

Tax-deductible donations can be sent to the Quincy Schools Athletic Contribution Committee, care of Frank Santoro, 80 Haviland St., Quincy, MA 02170.

Bogart's Cafe Planned For Quincy Fair Mall

A new restaurant, catering to movie goers, will open next month at the Quincy Fair Mall.

Bogart's Cafe will do business where Centerstage was located on the upper level of the mall.

William Hanney, owner of the adjacent movie theatre, plans to open the restaurant with a movie motif.

A License Board hearing regarding a request for a common victualer-all alcohol beverage license was continued to Sept. 3 but is expected to be approved.

Hanney told the License Board that he plans to focus on food at Bogart's Cafe. The menu will be different than Centerstage's. Bogart's Cafe will feature an American-style menu.

Francis 'Sandy' Eaton State Rep Candidate

Francis "Sandy" Eaton of Quincy announces his candidacy for the vacant Third Norfolk District state representative seat.

Eaton, 47, is a staff nurse at Quincy Hospital. An unsuccessful state representative candidate last year, Eaton said he is running again as an Independent.

A sharp critic of the bipartisan leadership on Beacon Hill, Eaton maintain that his top priority is to support the needs and hopes of working families throughout the district, from Quincy Center to South Weymouth. In addition to jobs, a healthful environment, equality and fair play, Eaton said "tax justice," public education and health care are issues of central concern in this year's race.

Regarding "tax justice," he said the state's tax structure should be reworked, so that the tax burden will be shifted off the shoulders of working families and the small business community and onto the large corporations. "If the rich and their corporations paid their fair share, we wouldn't have experienced such a budget crisis," he said.

FRANCIS EATON

As for public education, Eaton said the state should pay for public education, relieving cities and towns of the financial burden, thus reducing the regressive property tax and stabilizing rents. However, he said the city's elected boards should continue to run Quincy schools.

Eaton also said the health care system is "in crisis, costing more than most of us can afford." The price of insurance premiums is soaring, while access is becoming more restricted in vain attempts to cap costs, he said.

"A single-payer health care system, such as that enjoyed by our Canadian neighbors, would combine universal access with dramatic savings, through the elimination of insurance company paperwork and profits," Eaton added.

He and wife, Merrie, live at 53 Quarry St., Quincy, with their two daughters, Karin and Kirsten. A graduate of Boston College High School and Massasoit Community College, Eaton is a studying toward a bachelor of arts degree in philosophy from Boston College.

Eaton, a founder of the South Shore Coalition for Human Rights in 1977, remains active on its executive board as newsletter editor. He is director for public sector of the Cabinet on Professional, Economic and General Welfare of the Massachusetts Nurses Association, helping to oversee the association's state-wide collective bargaining program. He is also a member of the Citizens for Participation in Political Action, Health Care For All, and the Tax Equity Alliance for Massachusetts.

The Committee to elect Francis "Sandy" Eaton may be reached through P.O. box 741, Quincy, MA 02269, or by calling 472-4935. Abraham Cohen of Quincy is chairman and Diane Erwin of Weymouth is treasurer.

Proposed Quincy Ave. Liquor Store Turned Down

By STEVE KAVANAGH

Berry Street residents proved that you can fight City Hall after all.

The License Board went along with the wishes of neighbors to oppose a liquor store at 58 Quincy Ave.—site of the former bicycle shop—despite the objection of board chairman John Gillis.

The Trifone family, which operates Trifone Liquors at 230 Washington

St., wanted to transfer its package store license to the Quincy Avenue site and apply for a new license for the Washington Street store.

However, Berry Street residents opposed the plan mainly because of concerns about increased traffic and safety problems.

Nicholas Trifone recently met with many of the neighbors and said he agreed to make some changes to accommodate residents including, limiting truck deliveries from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. (while children are in school), replacing a chain link fence with a stockade fence and landscaping, placing a dumpster indoors instead of outdoors, and adding a police detail to handle traffic.

Ward 2 City Councillor Ted DeCristofaro sided with the neighbors and added that there are two other package stores within a half-mile of the site.

Gillis said that the Trifone's run a good operation and that neighbors would at least maintain a measure of control over the package store through the License Board. Neighbors were reminded that a retail store such as a 24-hour convenience store, would not have to go before the License Board, because of the way the site is zoned.

However, residents remained adamant in their opposition.

"I said to the Trifone's at the last meeting that they would have to have the support of neighbors in order for me to go along with this," said board member Matt Mulvey.

Mulvey, Thomas Gorman and Jane Galluahue voted against the package store while Gillis voted for it and Frederick Laracy abstained.

Rash Of Automobile Breaks, Vandalism Faxon Commons Residents Demand Security Measures

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

A rash of automobile break-ins, stolen cars and vehicle vandalism at the Faxon Commons apartment complex in Quincy has a group of concerned residents threatening to file a civil complaint if management does not implement security improvements.

According to Quincy police, there have been 50 reported incidents at the complex since the first of this year. Over the past seven months, there have been 26 automobile break-ins, six attempted break-ins, 11 vandalized motor vehicles and seven stolen cars, police said.

Residents and police agree the actual number of incidents is probably higher since some incidents go unreported.

Concerned residents are organizing a tenants' association which they hope will force management into adopting several security improvements. One of the residents calls the break-ins an "epidemic" while Officer Robert Hanna of the Quincy Crime Prevention Unit says Faxon Commons has a "serious" security problem.

Charles Moran, vice president, director of operations for Corcoran Management which owns the apartment facility, sees the situation differently. "I don't think of this as a trend. I see this as an isolated incident but one that bears investigation," Moran said Monday.

After a high number of break-ins were reported two weeks ago, Moran said Corcoran Management hired an extra person to patrol the apartment area at night. Previously, one security officer had patrolled Faxon Commons as well as some other Corcoran-owned properties in Weymouth.

Moran said he will not respond to any additional security proposals made by the residents until after a meeting on the situation is held tonight (Thursday). Hanna will be on hand to speak to residents about precautions they can take as well as other security measures.

The meeting will be chaired by Kevin Berkowsky, a resident at Faxon Commons who is concerned about the security situation at the complex. On Tuesday, Berkowsky discussed his and other residents' concerns with Property Manager Kevin Young.

Young told Berkowsky he and other company officials "with decision making power" will attend tonight's meeting. On Tuesday, Berkowsky told Young some of the security measures he and other residents want implemented, including better outside lighting, increased response time from security and a gate system at the entrance to the complex.

Tenants also want better building security. Berkowsky said he and other residents have become aware that some of the doors, including doors to apartments, have the same locks. As a result, one person's apartment key or front door key may open other apartments.

To rectify the lock problem, Berkowsky wants management to allow residents to install dead bolts. He said residents are willing to install them at their own expense.

If the dead bolts can't be installed, Berkowsky said the residents want all new locks put in place.

Asked whether there is one demand he would like to see implemented more than the others by management, Berkowsky said, "I'm a realist. I'd like all of them to be taken care of."

"I don't want to settle for one thing. This isn't a Chinese menu where you pick and choose."

A leader of the tenants' group, Berkowsky said the complex is no longer safe. He first learned about the security problem after his wife's car was broken into July 22. Some loose change and an emergency road kit were stolen, they reported to police.

According to Hanna, four other cars were reportedly broken into and vandalized late July 22 or early July 23. Berkowsky believes the number is closer to 15 since he has been in contact with other residents who say they have had their cars vandalized, broken into, keyed or stolen.

Over a 36-hour period last week, he said he received calls from 22 residents who said they had their cars vandalized.

Moreover, Berkowsky said he was told by a resident on Sunday that six more cars were broken into Saturday (Aug. 3). Those

License Board Wants Movie Banned

The Quincy License Board voted Tuesday to ask the Entertainment Cinemas in Quincy Center and the Wollaston Theatre not show the movie "Boyz n' The Hood."

Quincy Police Capt. Frederick Laracy, who initiated the request, said, "It is my opinion that this movie incites violence. We want to avoid attracting gangs to Quincy."

The movie is about three black, boyhood friends and the different directions their lives take. The movie contains violent scenes featuring gangs.

VIRAL HEPATITIS

Often called infectious hepatitis, this disease is caused by a virus. After a period of fatigue, nausea, vomiting and darkened urine, the patient notes fever, vague abdominal pain, and muscle aches.
Before too long, jaundice appears, with the patient often beginning to feel better as he or she looks more and more yellow. In most cases, the illness resolves within a few weeks of onset of jaundice without specific treatment.
Diagnosis can be confirmed by blood test results if the clinical history and exam suggest the possibility. Patients are contagious from three weeks before to three weeks after jaundice appears. The virus is present in all digestive excretions, and spread is generally by contaminated food or utensils.
Epidemics happen regularly. Immunity occurs after the disease. The incubation period is from two to seven weeks, typically three to five weeks. Long term side effects are rare.

P.S. Injections of gamma globulin can frequently protect the exposed individual from catching the disease.

Raymondi: School Committee Bid

Dan Raymondi has made up his mind: he's running for School Committee.

Raymondi took out nomination papers Tuesday to become the 10th candidate in the School Committee field.

He had been leaning toward a run for the School Committee since last winter but had been urged by many to make a bid for City Council at-large instead.

His entrance should make the School Committee race one of the better ones in recent years.

Maybe the best in 20 years when 23 candidates — no kidding — ran for three open seats.

That was 1971 and Raymondi figured prominently in that one. He was only 23 and captured one of the three seats.

Harold Davis topped the field with Raymondi second and a feller by the name of Frank McCauley taking the third seat.

McCAULEY

opponents who thought he was finished as a political candidate.

Incidentally that was a sort of comeback turning point for McCauley.

McCauley who had been Ward 1 councillor lost a bid for councillor at-large in 1967 and was written off by some observers and opponents who thought he was finished as a political candidate.

A MAJOR NAME potential candidate has decided not to enter the Third Norfolk District state representative race.

And that should make those already in or planning to get in, breathe a little easier.

Bruce Tobin, whose family is a long-time Quincy political dynasty, says he has thought it over and:

"Because of personal and family considerations, I feel this just is not the right time for me to run."

Tobin says he wants to spend more time with his wife, Christine and their six months old son, Bruce, Jr.

"This was a tempting opportunity," he says. "But the family comes first. There will be other political opportunities somewhere down the road. But right now, I want to put my time into my family rather than politics."

Tobin, a research analyst for the House Post and

TOBIN

Audit Committee, comes from a family long prominent in Quincy politics.

His father, Arthur Tobin, former mayor, senator, state representative and city councillor is now clerk magistrate of Quincy District Court.

His brother, Steve, holds Quincy's Second Norfolk District seat.

If Bruce Tobin had run and won, it would have given Quincy a rare brother act on Beacon Hill — the first time in the city's history that two brothers served together in the House of Representatives.

And what opportunity may Tobin be thinking of down the road?

Possibly a City Council at-large bid — not this year
— but in the near future.

TOBIN'S DEPARTURE will come as good news to other Quincy Democrats seeking — or thinking of seeking — the Third Norfolk District seat.

And, bad news for Weymouth Democrats.

Ron Mariano and Tony Siciliano, the two declared Quincy Democrats, will benefit by the reduced vote splitting. Jack McGlone and Tom Tanner, the two Weymouth Democrats, won't.

Tony Falco and Tony Agnitti apparently will also help keep the Quincy vote from being further watered down by not running.

Still to be heard from: former Mayor Joseph LaRaia and Michael Marshall, son of Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall.

Francis "Sandy" Eaton and Cheryl Balzano are running as Quincy Independents and will sit out the Oct. 15 primary. They'll be on the final ballot only.

MEANWHILE, the first Republican candidate has appeared on the scene. William Izbecki of Thicket St., Weymouth has taken out nomination papers.

YOU MIGHT SAY Bruce Ayers is out to display some early strength in his bid for the Ward 6 City Council seat.

Ayers filed his nomination papers with more than 1,000 names on them. Only 50 valid voter signatures are needed to get a spot on the ballot.

THE CITY COUNCIL at-large field apparently is now only two candidates shy of a preliminary election runoff.

George Miller of 120 Summer St. Quincy Point, has nomination papers out. City Hall records list him as 27 years old and a student.

The three incumbents, Tim Cahill, Mike Cheney and Patricia Toland are definite candidates. Louis Zagami of Furnace Brook Parkway has had papers in circulation for several weeks but as of this writing has not filed them.

Seven candidates are needed to set the stage for a preliminary election.

RON MARIANO kicks off his campaign for a Third Norfolk District state representative seat with a cocktail reception Thursday, Aug. 15, 6 to 9 p.m. at the River Bay Club, 99
Bracket St. Tickets are $100 each.

MARIANO

PETER KOLSON has a former political rival in his camp this year as he seeks a second term as Ward 1 City Councillor.

Marcia Olinto, who ran against him two years ago, not only has a Kolson bumper sticker on her car but is working for his re-election.

AND, IF THERE'S anyone out there interested in running for city office this year, better move it.

Tuesday, Aug. 13, 5 p.m. is the deadline for filing nomination papers. You can't file them unless you take them out.

Council Approves Home Depot

a special condition which would establish a Ward 4 neighborhood committee to oversee the implementation of all conditions and special conditions. The committee, which would be known as the Home Depot Monitoring Committee, would consist of a representative of the developer, the city's traffic engineer, planning director, Ward 4 councillor, one business person and three Ward 4 residents selected by the ward councillor.

If the committee "determines that the developer deviates from the final development plans or the conditions or special conditions of this special permit, it shall recommend modifications and revisions of this special permit," the condition reads.

Another special condition requires Home Depot to pay the city a minimum of $300,000 per year in taxes, regardless of the property's assessment. If the project is built, Quincy assessors have estimated the development on the 11.8-acre parcel would be valued at $175,000 to $200,000.

Because Home Depot said the assessment would be closer to $300,000, Fabrizio said he wants to hold the company to that figure. "Since they had always represented that they would bring in revenue to the city of $300,000, I felt it was important to ensure that that's exactly what they did."

"So in lieu of what their assessment will be, they will additionally give to the city the difference to make up what their real assessment will be to bring it up to a total of $300,000."

If the assessment climbs above $300,000, Home Depot would be required to pay more in taxes.

Under other conditions and special conditions, Home Depot would be required to:

- Adopt a local preference hiring policy of qualified candidates from Quincy, consistent with state and local and federal employment regulations and guidelines. The project is expected to generate 272 jobs.

- Provide $25,000 to fund a Willard St. corridor study to access current allowed and potential uses under the city's zoning ordinances and to recommend future development and prevent detrimental future business expansion along the Willard St. corridor.

- Reimburse the city for "all reasonable expenses" for inspection of improvements required by the traffic improvement plans to public ways. The final bond for potential required improvements would not be released until five years from the date of the issuance of the certificate of occupancy has elapsed.

- Upgrade existing traffic signalization at the intersection of Quarry St. and Robertson St. as determined by the city's traffic engineer.

- Upgrade flashing traffic control signals and/or restriping of pavement at the intersection of Bates Ave. and Willard St.

- Pay the city the necessary funds to employ two crossing guards at locations determined to be appropriate by Quincy police for the safety of neighborhood children at area elementary schools.

- Limit delivery truck access to the Home Depot store to the hours of 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. Any changes in the hours for truck deliveries shall be approved by the City Council.

- Agree initial hours of operation of the store shall be Monday through Saturday from 7:30 a.m. to 9 p.m., Sundays noon to 5 p.m. Any changes in hours of operation would have to be approved by the City Council.

- Construct project lighting to confine illumination of the parking facilities and building improvements but not abutting properties.

- Submit a traffic circulation plan for internal and external truck delivery routes. All trucks not using the Bryant Ave.-Robertson St. entrance shall use the Furnace Brook Parkway exit and enter Willard St. at Willard and Copeland Sts., and are prohibited from using Willard St. from the Braintree town line to Furnace Brook Parkway.

- Pay for additional traffic improvements to include protective bituminous berms, signage and pavement markings to correct existing traffic problems which may be aggravated by the development of this project, on the following ways: Robertson St., Crescent St., Hall Pl., California Ave., Bates Ave., Rogers St., County Rd., Governor's Rd., Plymouth Ave., Bryant Ave. and Willard St.

In addition, the owner of the property, L. Antonelli Realty, would be required to establish a charitable corporation called "The L. Antonelli/Quincy Partnership, Inc." which would contribute $100,000 earmarked for improvements on Willard St. and adjacent Ward 4 area. The improvements would include but not be limited to "support of civic and/or neighborhood organizations devoted to the lessening of tensions between the business community and the residential community, combating community deterioration and the providing of neighborhood civic, educational, recreational and athletic activities, and the erection or maintenance of public buildings, monuments or works."

The five-member board would be comprised of three descendants of Larry Antonelli, Ward 4 councillor and an individual appointed by the mayor.

After the vote, Fabrizio said it is now up to Home Depot to respond to the concerns and conditions addressed in the special permit. "What we did tonight is pass the responsibility to where it belongs."

"This is what through the community input, the City Council, through the special permit that we devised tonight, this is what it takes to operate and develop that land and therefore it's their responsibility and their decision as to what they intend to do."

Fabrizio said Home Depot must adhere to all conditions or the development will not take place. "If they don't abide by the permit as written they would not be allowed to even begin any building process whatsoever as they could not be issued a building permit."

"It's all or none."

William Golden, who has been working with shipyard workers to reopen the yard, told The Quincy Sun Monday night that the investigation is necessary.

Edward Ross Peace Corps Volunteer In Dominican Republic

Edward Ross of Quincy will travel to the Dominican Republic Sunday, Aug. 11 to become a small business department volunteer in the Peace Corps.

At age 60, Ross is an interesting example of the more than 130,000 Americans who have served with Peace Corps. "I have had the desire to join the Peace Corps from the first time I read about it almost 30 years ago. I respect and admire the people who have gone before me and I want to become a part of that select group," Ross said.

This year, Peace Corps celebrates its 30th anniversary. The South Shore has a history of supporting the Peace Corps and through volunteers.

In an effort to interest more residents, Recruiter Paul McCaffrey will conduct an information seminar at New City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center, Wednesday, Aug. 14

After School Day Care Children Visit Sheets

Children from Quincy After School Day Care sites in Montclair, Squantum and Snug Harbor recent visited Mayor James Sheets in his office for a frank discussion about such topics as the mayor's hobbies and interests, his family and what he likes about his job.

Greg Jaskinia asked when the city will build a playground at Snug Harbor. The mayor offered many insights into what being mayor is all about, and urged the children to become involved in community service.

He told the children being mayor is fun, but it has its sad times and hard decisions. Sheets said he enjoyed the visit from the children. "You are tomorrow, and the world is open to you," he said. "You can do anything you want if you prepare yourself well. Some of you might be mayor, service on the city council or the school committee."

The children were interested in the mayor's salary, which is public information, and the family closeness the mayor enjoys. The children appreciated the fact that the Sheets children attended Quincy public schools.

cars included a Toyota Cressida that had its windows broken and tires stolen and a Corvette that had its window smashed. Berkowsky also noted the door locks to his car had been tampered with.

"It's an epidemic. It's running rampant. It's scary now," Berkowsky said. "It's a lot worse than we expected. I think there are more residents who have had their cars vandalized than those who have not had their cars vandalized."

"It's unreal. We're living in an area that we all thought was safe," he said, noting that one former Faxon Commons resident, who is a Braintree police officer, moved last week because of poor security.

According to Hanna, police arrested one individual last week in connection with the break-ins. Several others are being investigated.

Moran said Corcoran Management is concerned about the security problem and is taking steps to improve the situation. He also said management has talked to an outside security consultant which may review the property and make recommendations to improve security.

Berkowsky said he will continue to organize the tenants and catalog vandalism incidents at Faxon Commons to prove to management the security problem is more than an isolated incident. As for filing a civil complaint, he said, "We want to wait until we see how management responds."

CITIZENS OF QUINCY:

Let the truth come out. I, Frank Anselmo, was a very sick man, four months ago. I had pains all over my body, I was bedridden so much so that I could not get out of bed without help.

In my sense of honesty, I felt that I could no longer render service to the Quincy School Committee, as I had done in the last 29 years.

I called the Mayor on the phone and told him that because of the apparent permanent disability, I was resigning.

Yes, I was sick and I was not thinking straight. I should have remained on sick leave.

But, glory be to God! I prayed and prayed, day after day for help; and believe me, slowly but steadily, I began to get better. Now I no longer need help. Instead I am again able to help others, in more than one way.

Tuesday, May 23rd I was checked at the Harvard Community Health Plan in Quincy Square. The doctor personally took my blood pressure. He told me it was 134 over 60 - Normal!

As most of you know, I am a veteran of World War I and II.

I have never shirked my duty, to God, Country and the needs and education of my own children and grandchildren.

As a member of the School Committee, for 29 years, I have served with the same dedication.

Now, I want to get back on the School Committee and I need your help and vote.

There is much work to be done. Past actions to be corrected. With 29 years experience, I do not need on-the-job training.

Also I am inspired to do so by the disgust I felt when the members of the Committee voted to ban the Word of God at the last High School Graduation.

The vote to ban the mention of God was cast by:

Collins, Durkin, Nigro and Powers.

The vote not to ban God was cast by:

Sheets, Mariano and Santoro.

My vote would have changed the outcome in favor of God.

Citizens, think about this episode. Did we ever start a School Committee meeting without first saying the Pledge of Allegiance to the United States of America, One Nation under God - with Liberty and Justice for all.

Liberty (not license to do as you please); Liberty to think and learn that you cannot live by bread alone. That there is a Divine Spiritual spark of life in all of us different from that of the animal and botanical Kingdom.

Thanks for reading this. More will follow.

Think and prepare to Vote To Return FRANK ANSELMO to the School Committee

Thank You,

later some more daring authors would convey their meaning by a discreet d-n or h-l.

Sadly it seems that in today's society eloquent profanity in literature and language is widely accepted ... Nothing seems to be sacred to our ears and eyes ...

Remember the great literary figures of the past. They didn't seem to be handicapped in being unable to print the then unprintable words. Dostoyevski, in such profoundly realistic works as "Crime and Punishment," "The Idiot," and "Brother Karamazov," reached down into the depths of despair and depravity without the need for obscenity. Tolstoy's "War and Peace" is not perceptibly flawed by absence of dirty words. Even Rabelais and Balzac who were often called "dirty" writers were primarily satirists of mankind and scoffers.

Isn't it true that the quality of a work of art is determined by how successfully it elicits the imagination of the reader, not by the way it reproduces the flat and dreary profanity that has no meaning and no strength? Isn't it a shame that many of our authors today seem to have forgotten this?

400 Sign Bragg's Nomination Papers

School Committee candidate JoAnn (Grazio) Bragg has turned in her nomination papers with 400 signatures, far more than the minimum of 50.

A large percentage of those came from seniors at the many complexes she has spoken at, plus several parents (many of whom she has worked with in city schools since 1985) and a mixture of other concerned citizens.

Bragg said she has received a positive response from citizens as she tours the city knocking on doors and at neighborhood gatherings. "I feel an elected official needs to be responsive to the community it represents, the best way to do that is to know how the community feels by talking to them and being available to listen.

"That's exactly what I am doing and even though I have blisters on my feet I will continue to go day and night," Bragg said. "I really enjoy meeting the people of Quincy and listening to their concerns about education."

Highlights of her campaign platform include:

- Money management, whereby each and every expense is measured against the priority and effectiveness in preparing the learners of today for the challenges of tomorrow.

- A new school budget format that is responsive to the community so "we all know how our tax dollars are being spent."

- Establish educational goals and priorities, ones that can be measured and changes made "if we are not reaching those goals."

- Expand recycling to our schools not only in education but in physically recycling paper and other items.

- Broaden of the concept of business partnerships.

"We need a school committee who will give our schools direction, establish educational goals and assure us that the schools are managed in such a way that those goals are achieved," Bragg said.

Bragg is the only school committee candidate who has children in each level of the city's public school system. She has been active in each of her children's schools and in all schools as a past officer of the Citywide Parents' Council and chairperson of several of Citywide's subcommittees. She also has professional financial background as an accountant.

Benefit Auction, Party Raise $4,800 For MDA

A recent party and auction sponsored at Continental Cablevision and G. J. Coddington's restaurant in the Atrium at Presidents Place raised $4,800 for the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

For the second annual benefit MDA fundraiser, former Boston Celtics star Tommy Heinsohn took the bids as more than 100 items donated by area merchants and businesses were auctioned to benefit the Greater Boston Chapter of MDA.

"This annual MDA auction is becoming an entertaining and fundraising fixture of the South Shore, and we couldn't be more pleased, because fighting muscular dystrophy and 40 other neuromuscular diseases is such a worthy cause," said Kathy Taraschi, Continental's Quincy-area marketing manager.

Taraschi's cable system, which serves three Quincy, Milton and Randolph, joined with Continental's six-town, Norwell-based system to put together the event.

"The real thanks go to the many employees of Continental and G.J. Coddington's, and our friends and business colleagues on the South Shore, who once again donated their time, hard work, goods and services to make the auction a success," she said.

Music at the event was provided by local disc jockey Michael Tucker, and entertainment by comedian Tony V., courtesy of Showtime/The Movie Channel.

Also as part of its annual summer muscular dystrophy fundraising drive, Continental is donating half of its cable installation revenue to MDA for new customers in Quincy, Milton, Randolph, Hingham, Hull, Cohasset, Norwell, Hanover and Scituate.

Two New Trophies To Be Awarded

Bigger Boat Turnout Expected For QBRW

By TOM SULLIVAN

The 54th edition of Quincy Bay Race Week got under way yesterday (Wednesday) and Race Week Association President George Jackson expects the number of boats to exceed last year's fine turnout.

"The reason I'm optimistic that we will attract more boats was the overwhelming turnout for the recent Lipton Cup Regatta at Squantum," Jackson said. "I believe the interest shown in those races will carry over and give us an excellent turnout."

Last year morning racing was held for the first time, but interest was lacking and Jackson says morning racing will be offered to anyone wanting it, but he doesn't expect any great interest in it.

Among the highlights of this year's racing will be competition for two trophies given for the first time last year.

One is the Jack White Trophy named in honor of the QBRWA's longtime treasurer and the Frank Hendry Trophy given by Sen. Paul Harold in honor of the second president of the association in 1939.

Last year, despite torrential rains which canceled racing on Saturday, things went along well and QBRWA president Dick Hendry was pleased with the results.

Adding excitement to the racing last year was the appearance of a shark opposite Quincy Yacht Club. A skipper in Boston Whaler saw the shark and notified Quincy assistant harbormasters Sal Gallinaro and Al Pette, who were patrolling the bay in the City of Quincy-owned boat.

Among last year's highlights was John Mullane winning all four Orange Fleet races.

The Squantum Y.C. observed its 100th anniversary and Squantum skippers won three of six Outside Line classes.

Bob Reis of Hingham won the 210 Class title for the fourth year in a row, winning three races.

The Quincy Bay Race Week Association was formed in 1937 with the Quincy, Wollaston and Squantum yacht clubs the original members.

The first Race Week was held in 1938 with 20 classes of boats competing in the racing program.

The regatta was so successful that plans were immediately made for a bigger Race Week the following year.

Later, the Town River, Wessagusset, Braintree, South Shore and Metropolitan clubs joined and those eight clubs currently make up the QBRWA.

The regatta is open to all clubs and many other clubs around the state annually to send boats to compete.

Marblehead Race Week had been the main attraction in interclub sailboat racing for years and Quincy Bay Race Week has grown steadily until it now is challenging Marblehead as the most popular race week in the area.

Juniors are the backbone of Race Week. There were no junior sailing programs in the early years of Race Week. Now all clubs have outstanding junior programs.

All clubs in the association donate and participate in the racing. Any money raised during the year is spent in one year, mainly on trophies.

To keep Race Week in the forefront every year, the association enters a float in the annual Christmas Parade and five years ago he association won the Mayor's Trophy.

Milestones

The Quincy Yacht Club is the grand-daddy of the clubs involved in Race Week and is still going strong while observing its 117th birthday. Squantum celebrates its 101st anniversary and Wessagusset Y.C. is 88 years old this year.

Trophies Spark Competition For QBRW Sailors

Several handsome trophies were up for competition among hundreds of sailors—men, women, boys and girls—when the 54th edition of Quincy Bay Race Week got under way Wednesday.

These trophies include:

Capt. James Berwick Finlay Memorial Trophy: Presented to the Quincy Yacht Club in 1948 by Albert W. Finlay, his father, for competition during Race Week. Presented in loving memory of a son who, during his lifetime, did much to advance the sport of yachting on Massachusetts Bay. The trophy is presented annually to the yachtsmen considered to have made the most outstanding record or to have performed some single act of sportsmanship during Race Week.

Fred Hunt Memorial Trophy: a perpetual trophy presented annually since 1946 by the Patriot Ledger in memory of the man who served the newspaper for more than three decades as yachting writer and editor.

A deep-water sailor and a racing enthusiast, Hunt played a major role in the success and growth of Quincy Bay Race Week and the sport itself.

The trophy is awarded annually to a person who has demonstrated a high degree of sportsmanship and a willingness to help others in the advancement of the yacht racing sport and who has contributed to the success of Race Week. The trophy is held until the succeeding Race Week by the home club of the winner, who is awarded a keeper trophy for his permanent possession.

President's Trophy: Presented by the Pepsi Cola Company to stimulate interest in overall competition.

1300 Trophy: Presented each year since 1960 to the QBRWA by radio station WJDA to demonstrate its interest in Race Week and to aid in the stimulation of racing interest among the junior class.

This trophy is awarded annually to the winning skipper in the Turnabout Class and becomes his permanent possession.

Commodore Isadore Bromfield Trophy: Presented in 1976 to the QBRWA by the Metropolitan Yacht Club. The trophy is awarded annually to the Race Week winner according to the deed of gift. The winner is presented an engraved keeper trophy for his permanent possession.

Commodore Charles Wing Memorial Trophy: presented to the QBRWA in 1981 by his friends and family as a perpetual trophy to be awarded annually to the winner of the Red Fleet on Town River Yacht Club's day of Race Week.

City of Boston Bermuda Cup: This beautiful and historic punch bowl has been in the custody of the Quincy Yacht Club for over 50 years. It was presented by the City of Boston around 1905 for a race from Boston to Bermuda.

This race was never held and in 1911 the city again put the cup up for an ocean race to be held Labor Day of 1911 to become the permanent possession of the winner. The race was won by Hollis Burgess, Quincy Y.C. member, in his sloop "Marie I."

Burgess generously made the Q.Y.C. trustee of the cup which was to be placed in annual competition as a perpetual trophy. In 1968 the Q.Y.C. presented the trophy to the QBRWA for Race Week competition. This valuable trophy is to be presented to the annual winner and to be held until the succeeding Race Week.

The winner is presented a suitably engraved keeper trophy for his permanent possession.

Co-Op Trophy: presented two years ago for the first time by the Co-Operative Bank for the winner in the Thunderbird Class. Three perpetual trophies will be presented for the first three finishers, with the skippers receiving keeper trophies for their permanent possession.

Harry Warner Memorial Trophy: presented to the QBRWA in 1968 by the Warner family and the Town River Yacht Club as a perpetual trophy to be raced for by the Ocean Race cruising fleet.

A suitably engraved keeper trophy is to be presented the winner for his permanent possession.

Reynolds Memorial Trophy: a perpetual trophy presented to the QBRWA in 1966 by the family of John Reynolds, an ardent supporter and skipper in the Day Sailor Class until his untimely death in 1965.

This beautiful trophy is awarded to the Race Week winner in the Hustler Class.

Fire Vs. Police, Officials Vs. Media

Koch MDA Softball Doubleheader Tonight

The fourth annual Dick Koch Memorial MDA Softball Doubleheader will be played tonight (Thursday) at Adams Field, off Southern Artery, Quincy.

The Quincy Police will compete against their public safety rivals, the Quincy Fire Department, at 6:30 p.m. The fire squad will try to extinguish the police six-game winning streak. Last year, the men in blue prevailed, 8-1, in a well-played game.

In the nightcap, the Quincy City Officials club will slug it out against the local News Media All-Stars at 8 p.m. Last year, the news media rallied from behind in the ninth inning to defeat the city officials, 13-12.

The win snapped the city officials' two-game win streak. The media will try to post their second straight victory in as many years with a victory tonight.

The series has seen-sawed throughout the 14 years of the fundraising event. In fact, each team has won seven games apiece.

Tickets for the twin-bill are $2 each and include admission to both games and entry into a prize drawing.

Prizes include two baseballs autographed by Red Sox ace Roger Clemens, a pair of Red Sox tickets, a baseball glove donated by Colman's Sporting Goods of Quincy, tee-shirts and free pay-per-view movies from Continental Cablevision of Quincy.

The drawing will also feature gift certificates from local restaurants, including Walsh's, the Common Market, Pilgrim Restaurant and Handshakes Cafe.

All proceeds will benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Tickets are on sale at the Mayor's Office at City Hall and The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Center. Tickets will also be sold at the Adams Field gate before the game tonight.

The Clemens' baseballs are donated by "Uncle Sam" Rounseville of Quincy. "Uncle Sam" will be on hand to throw out the first ball.

The city officials' roster includes Ray Cattaneo, who will pitch; Mike Shaheen, catcher; Richard Meade, shortstop; Joseph Shea, outfield; Frank Santoro, right field; Ron Mariano, outfield; Tim Cahill, left field; Chuck Phelan, second base; Larry Christen, center field; Tom Koch, third-base and manager; Steve Tobin, first base; and Peter Kolson, Dana Childs, Tom Fabrizio, Jane Powers, Kathy Yaeger and John Osgood; all outfield.

Robert Foy will coach third base and Ted DeCristofaro will coach first base.

News media lineup includes Eric Ramstrom, Mike Benjamin, John Nicholson, Kate McCarthy and Nancy Cunningham, all of WJDA; Ed Fiddler, Jack Low, Mike Robinson, Dana Rapold and Mike Tucker, all of Quincy Community Television; Brendan Daly, Peter Halesworth and Steve Shepherd, The Patriot Ledger; and Steve Kavanagh, John Rounseville, Rick Radzik, Dan Jaehning and Bob Bosworth, The Quincy Sun.

The news media will be managed by Henry Bosworth.

Rosters for the fire and police teams were unavailable.

This year's doubleheader marks the 15th year of the event which has become a summer tradition in Quincy. Four years ago, the game was renamed and dedicated to the memory of the late Richard Koch Sr. who organized the special and successful benefit game.

Over the past 14 years, the doubleheader has raised $20,000 including $2,000 last year.

Mr. Koch served with Henry Bosworth as co-chairman of the Quincy-South Shore Labor Day Telephone Committee. To date, the committee has raised more than $1 million in the fight against muscular diseases.

For the fourth consecutive year, Quincy Community Television Channel 3 will set up a broadcast booth at Adams Field.

Representatives from the fire and police departments will do the play-by-play for the first game. Recreation Director Barry Welch and former Executive Secretary Peter Renner will call the city officials-news media contest for the second straight year.

City Clerk John Gillis will be the public address announcer.

The game will be aired on Channel 3 Friday, Aug. 9 and Friday, Aug. 16. Times to be announced.

Rain date is Aug. 15.

Golden Sweeps Playoffs To Capture Crown

Golden Print, which won the American League pennant with a 16-7 record, swept through the playoffs undefeated to capture the Quincy babe Ruth League championship.

Quincy police won the National League pennant with a 17-5 record and the final regular season records of the other playoff teams were Elks, 15-9; Granite City, 15-7; Sons of Italy, 14-8, and Firefighters, 11-11.

Golden Print squeezed by the Sons of Italy, 2-1, in its playoff opener behind the pitching of Dave Reinhart. Tom Malvesti was the hard luck loser and had eight strikeouts.

Tom Bianco, Steve Miller and Jamie Schatzl had the only hits for Golden off Malvesti.

Golden then rallied from a 4-0 deficit to top Granite City, 12-6. Miller was the winning pitcher, going all the way, and surviving some early defensive lapses by his teammates.

The offense was led by Schatzl (three hits and three RBI), Reinhart (two hits and two RBI), and Dave Flaherty (two hits and two runs scored). Kevin Ross, Jimmy Smith, Craig Pinkham, John Riley and Miller had a hit each.

Golden topped the Quincy Police, 14-5, behind the fine pitching of Jeff Russell. Russell went the distance against the hard-hitting National League champs, giving up 10 hits.

Leadoff batter Flaherty reached base six straight times, scoring three runs as did Russell. Miller and Schatzl had three hits apiece. Reinhart and Smith had two hits each and Bianco one. Rookie Mike O'Brien scored a run.

In the championship game last Saturday Golden (3-0) faced Granite City (3-1) and Golden won, 5-0, to clinch the city championship.

Reinhart pitched his second playoff win, scattering four hits, striking out seven and walking three.

The defense was outstanding with third baseman Flaherty having three putouts and two assists, including starting a big 5-6-3 double play. Catcher Schatzl, shortstop Miller, second baseman Pinkham, first baseman Ross and Riley also made outstanding plays.

Miller had three hits and an RBI, Reinhart two hits and two RBI, Flaherty an RBI and Pinkham an RBI.

Rob Guanari, Justin Ackerman, and Andy Joyce stood out for Granite City and Guanari caught an outstanding game, throwing out three runners trying to steal.

Golden Print won three of its last four regular season games to force a one-game playoff with the Elks to decide the American League crown.

Golden won, 5-1, after previously defeating Bryan VFW Post, 7-4, and Barry's Deli, 10-5, and losing to Local 1139, 4-1.

Ted Miller and Jack Riley coached Golden Print and Brian Flaherty was the manager.

City Gets $35,500 For Bay Cleanup

Mayor James Sheets and DPW Commissioner David Colton accepted a $35,500 grant Tuesday for tidewater repairs for Quincy Bay.

The city received the money from the Environmental Protection Agency through the Mass Bay Programs.

"I hope this will lead to a cleanup of all of our beaches, particularly Wollaston Beach," said Sheets.

Malfunctioning tidegates can lead to untreated sewage escaping into Quincy Bay.

Matt Leibman of the EPA and Dr. Diane Gould of the Mass Bay Programs presented the grant check to Sheets and told the mayor their organizations are committed to preventing contamination and protecting shellfish beds.

"Our administration is fully committed to protection of our environment," Sheets said.

First Vessel At Fore River In 5 Years Hopes Buoyed For More Ship Work

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

As a large American flag fluttered and several workers watched from the stern of the USNS Wright, a delegation of state and local officials hailed what they hope will be the start of the revitalization of the Fore River shipyard at a "welcome rally" Tuesday afternoon at the yard.

Dignitaries from regional business and government sectors joined the Massachusetts Shipbuilders Corporation and AK Engineering in formally announcing the arrival of the commercial freighter ship USNS Wright. The event marked the end of a five-year dormant period at the yard and the beginning of what officials called a new chapter in shipbuilding.

Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci extended a helping hand to union workers and other officials who want to see shipbuilding return to Quincy.

"This shipyard has always been a linchpin and driving engine of the South Shore economy. Gov. Weld and I are committed to doing everything we can to restore a thriving maritime industry at Fore River and to put people back to work," Cellucci said.

Mayor James Sheets said, "This shipyard, through the decades, has provided jobs for men and women, from countries all around this world. People in Quincy have put food on the table, they bought homes, they sent their children off to college, all with money earned while working at the Fore River shipyard. In doing so, they have realized their American dream."

"As we begin this new chapter today, I'm fully convinced that there are others who will come to work at this shipyard to repair, to reconstruct and build new ships and who also as a result of working here be able to realize their American dream," Sheets said.

The $1 million maintenance work contract between MSC and AK Engineering secures jobs for 100 workers, many of whom have not worked since General Dynamics laid off thousands of workers and closed the yard in 1986. Founded in 1987, the partnership hopes to reinstate jobs for as many as 1000 shipyard workers by 1992.

Officials responsible for bringing the partnership and contract together said the USNS Wright represents more than jobs for local residents. They said the ship could lead to other ship

From Task Force:

Over 40 Recommendations To Combat Crime, Litter

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

A task force appointed by Mayor James A. Sheets has made more than 40 recommendations to help crack down on crime, vandalism and litter as well as improve the quality of life in Quincy.

On Monday, Sheets released the recommendations and the action he will take for each one. Some of the recommendations will begin being implemented next month.

The task force, chaired by Police Chief Francis Mullen and co-chaired by Councillor Michael Cheney, met frequently since January. The group forwarded its recommendations to the mayor July 12.

Sheets said he is "extremely pleased" with the committee's work. "I think the recommendations are much more far reaching than I had originally expected. I think they dealt in a very thorough manner with every single area that effects quality of life in the city of Quincy."

The task force was divided into four subcommittees. They are: Schools, Parks, Playgrounds, Cemeteries, Open Space chaired by Asst. City Solicitor Kevin Madden; Bars, Restaurants, Fast Food and Convenience Stores chaired by Administrative Asst.

Bernice Mader; MBTA chaired by DPW Commissioner David Colton; and Commercial and Business Districts, chaired by Planning Director Richard Meade.

Among the recommendations made and action the mayor is planning to take are:

Schools, Parks, Recreation-Open Space
• Increase illegal dumping penalty in Quincy to $300. Sheets sent order to City Solicitor Stephen McGrath for drafting; it will then be forwarded to City Council.

• Continue police patrol and enforcement to crackdown on young people congregating and drinking in parks and other open spaces.

• Police department receive in-service training regarding problems of managing parks and open spaces. Officers will be updated annually on rules, regulations and ordinances directly impacting those areas.

• Park and Recreation Board will devise program encouraging groups to use parks for events such as family-club-neighborhood picnics.

• Develop a comprehensive resource pamphlet detailing all activities available within the city, both city and private sponsored. Pamphlet will be updated annually.

repair contracts and possibly to the return of shipbuilding.

Arthur Faherty, vice president of AK Engineering, said, "We recognize the tremendous expectations that everybody has here for the revitalization of the shipyard. We are not going to promise the world."

"We are going to promise that we're going to continue to give our very, very best effort to bring more jobs here and with everybody's continued help we will make that possible."

Former State Sen. Bill Golden, who is the legal counsel for MSC, said the dream of a bustling shipyard can come true with a long-term lease signed by the MWRA, which owns the site, and the partnership.

"What we're looking for is a long-term lease with sufficient facilities not just for ship repair but shipbuilding. That's the goal," Golden said.

Joseph "Jay" MacRitchie, Quincy's representative on the MWRA Board of Directors, said a long-term lease is one of his top priorities. "I hope it will be one of the priorities of the MWRA. If not, my efforts will be to try to direct them to that point."

According to Bill Shapiro of the MWRA, the Authority's Board of Directors was scheduled to meet Wednesday to discuss a long-term lease for the shipbuilders. "The MWRA is fully prepared to expand the area that the shipbuilding efforts are housed in, the use of the equipment, the time of the lease to give AK Engineering and MSC as a joint venture the time, the materials, the equipment and the space it needs to grow to provide more jobs to this community."

Sen. Paul Harold said he was pleased with the show support by state officials but added the "united front" must be retained to ensure the shipworkers receive favorable lease from the MWRA. For now, the workers have a five-month lease.

"We're certainly pleased with all this state attention because we're going to need this same united front to ensure that we get a favorable lease from the MWRA. This is the crux of the whole survival of this operation."

Harold also said the Weld administration should "nudge" federal officials to make sure other ships are worked on in Quincy.

Local officials agreed the sight of a ship at the Fore River shipyard is good news for the city's local economy and the workers who have waited five years for ship work to return to Quincy.

Council President Ted DeCristofaro, who represents Ward 2 and worked at the shipyard briefly during World War II, said, "I think it's something that a lot of us hoped would happen but I think there were a lot of negative thoughts."

"Hopefully it's only the beginning and there will be another ship in back of this one and another one in back of that one."

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson, who worked on submarines during the 1960s, said, "I just couldn't be happier. It's nice to see a ship here. This is what the yard was made for."

Jim Russell of Quincy, a shipbuilder at Fore River 28 years, said, "I feel great. I've always wanted to come back. I enjoy what I'm doing, I've always enjoyed shipbuilding. That's all I want to do."

"I just hope it keeps going. We got to keep it going. We'll get it on its feet and then we'll let the other people see who said we couldn't do it."

"We're doing it."

Mariano Resigns From Public Protection Bureau

Ron Mariano, a candidate for state representative in the Third Norfolk District, announces he has resigned his position in the Public Protection Bureau of the Attorney General's office to campaign full-time.

His resignation took effect Wednesday.

"I made my decision to run for state representative after much deliberation," Mariano said. "I knew that in doing so, I would have to resign my present position, as the attorney general's policy prohibits me from accepting campaign contributions."

"The residents of Weymouth and Quincy want someone who is willing to sacrifice and make a total commitment to representing them. I am willing to make that sacrifice and commitment and will dedicate my time and energy to winning this seat and working with the people in my district."

Mariano said he plans to canvass the entire district over the next two months to speak with the voters.

"I want to meet the voters and get their opinions on the issues facing our community. I will listen carefully to their concerns and demands. I want them to know that I am accessible and welcome their input."

27 File Papers For City Election

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Twenty-seven residents have filed nomination papers in this fall's city election, setting up a preliminary election for school committee and Ward 6 councillor Tuesday, Sept. 17.

A preliminary was almost called for councillor-at-large. Seven residents, including the three incumbents, returned nomination papers before the 5 p.m. deadline Tuesday. However, one candidate failed to have his papers notarized. As a result, the papers are invalid.

According to Asst. City Clerk Joseph Shea, Louis Zagami 690 Furnace Brook Parkway, dropped his papers off at City Hall in an envelope addressed to City Clerk John Gillis. After opening the envelope, Gillis realized the papers were not notarized.

Shea reached Zagami who was in New Hampshire and informed him that the papers needed to be notarized and then signed by him. "He said he would get the papers notarized and sign them before 5 p.m. but he never showed up," Shea said shortly after the deadline passed.

As a result, there will not be a preliminary election for councillor-at-large since seven candidates were needed. The six councillor-at-large candidates includes one well-known local political figure who will be trying to make a comeback.

Former councillor and mayor Joseph LaRaia filed papers for councillor-at-large. LaRaia, who lives at 38 Russell Pk., and two political newcomers, George Miller, 120 Sumner St. and William Ryan, 373 Adams St., will challenge incumbents Tim Cahill, 51 Grenwood St., Michael Cheney, 94 Rock Island Rd., and Patricia Toland, 82 Cedar St. in the final election.

Two years ago, LaRaia finished fourth in the mayoral preliminary. In 1987, he came with several hundred votes of upsetting former Mayor Francis McCauley.

The race attracting the most interest this year is school committee. Eleven residents returned papers for three seats on the school board. The top six vote getters in the preliminary election will face one another in the final Tuesday, Nov. 5.

Those filing papers for school committee include two incumbents, Steve Durkin, 125 Colonial Dr., and Mary "Jane" Powers, 16 Roberta Ln. Other school committee candidates, in alphabetical order, are:

Frank Anselmo, 100 Southern Artery; Sean Barry, 184 Marlboro St.; JoAnn Bragg, 74 East Elm Ave.; Michael Jovanovic, 62 Town Hill St.; Toni Kabilian, 33 Hyde St.; Margaret King, 44 Avalon Ave.; Edward Lee, 299

Highland Ave.; Daniel Raymond, 88 Elm St.; and Linda Stice, 26 Phillips St.

The other preliminary election will be for Ward 6 councillor. Incumbent Thomas Nutley, 235 Billings St. is being challenged by political newcomer Bruce Ayers, 65 Williams St., and Joanne Condon Walsh, 80 Harbourside Rd., a former Ward 6 councillor.

The top two finishers in the Ward 6 preliminary election will face each other in the final election Nov. 5.

The only other contested race in the final election will be for Ward 1 councillor. Incumbent Councillor Peter Kolson, 215 Palmer St., is being opposed by Gail Glover, 64 Captains Walk.

Races for mayor, councillor in Wards 2, 3, 4 and 5 will go uncontested. Returning nomination papers for those seats were Mayor James Sheets, 926 Furnace Brook Parkway; Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, 17 Murdock Ave.; Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien, 51 North Central Ave.; Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, 36 Reardon St.; and Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan, 26 Kemper St.

Candidates have until 5 p.m. Friday to withdraw their nomination papers.

QUINCY PUBLIC WORKS Commissioner David Colton shadows Kathy Flynn, R.N., as she cares for patients on one of Quincy Hospital's medical-surgical floors. Colton recently participated in the hospital's Community Rounds program, a half-day program that allows participants to directly experience the daily routines of hospital medical personnel.

Traffic Violation Revenue Has Declined Past Two Years

There has been a sharp drop-off in the amount of revenue collected by Quincy for traffic violations the past two years, according to figures compiled by the city auditor's office and released by Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien.

In fiscal 1989, the city collected $254,624. In FY 90, that figure dropped to $208,097, a decrease of $46,527. In FY 91 which ended June 30, the amount fell even further to $171,587, a decrease of $36,510 over FY 90.

"The amount for this past year is less than that collected by some communities that are much smaller than Quincy," Chretien said.

Last week, Chretien called for Quincy Police to crack down on speeding motorists in Ward 3. He said he has received a number of complaints from residents about speeding.

"These figures clearly demonstrate that the city's efforts to control speeding have diminished over the last three years. As a consequence, the city is less safe and about $80,000 poorer," Chretien said.

"The police department may well be undermanned. If so, then I repeat my opposition to the most recent cuts in that department. However, even with existing manpower, I think that it makes sense for the police department to be more aggressive."

"Furthermore, I wouldn't mind sharing some of this revenue with the department if that would provided them with an incentive," he added.

EARACHE

The medical term for pain in the ear is "otalgia." It is the most frequent health complaint that family physicians and pediatricians are asked to evaluate. Most often ear pain is attributable to infection, injury or pressure in the ear. Infection of the middle ear (behind the eardrum) is the most common cause in young children. Fever, hearing loss and irritability may be present, too. Antibiotics are needed. "Swimmer's ear" infections of the ear canal are frequent in the summer months. Ear drainage is common. Cellulitis, a serious infection of the entire outer ear, may ensue. Blows to the ear may lacerate the skin, cause fractures and bleeding, and injure the hearing mechanism and eardrum. Sudden changes in pressure, such as those induced by scuba diving and air flight, may precipitate ear pain due to pressure on the eardrum. Persons with colds and sinus congestion are at increased risk.

P.S. Many ear problems can be serious. Always call the doctor when an earache is severe or lasts more than a few hours.

Don't take chances if you have an earache. Contact a medical professional right away, and have the problem looked into before it gets any worse. Please feel free to call our office if you have any questions. ## Another LaRaia Comeback Bid

You might say that Joe LaRaia's decision to make another political comeback this year is both good and bad news.

Good news for the candidates seeking the Third Norfolk District state representative seat.

Bad news for the three City Council at-large incumbents who now have him as a major contender and threat.

LaRaia had looked at both fields and reportedly was considering a run for state representative. But he passed that up in favor of a council at-large run.

Quincy Democrats Ron Mariano and Tony Siciliano who seek the Democratic nomination for the state representative seat vacated by Robert Cerasoli to become State Inspector General can breathe easier now that LaRaia is not in contention in that race. He would have caused heavy vote splitting—maybe enough to allow Jack McGlone or Tom Tanner to win the nomination.

LaRaia is dangerous in a crowded field. But while Mariano and Siciliano can breathe easier, City Council at-large incumbents Tim Cahill, Mike Cheney and Patricia Toland certainly can't. Or shouldn't. You just don't take Joe LaRaia lightly. Not with his track record.

His political career spans three decades and has had ups and downs like an elevator. And, he has had more comebacks than Sylvester Stallone as Rocky Balboa. He was elected Ward 2 councillor in 1959 and held that seat until 1965 when he was crushed by James McIntyre in the 1965 mayoral race. McIntyre piled up a 22,034 to 7,713 margin.

Well, that was the end of LaRaia, the experts said. And it looked like they were right when in 1969 he made a bid for City Council at-large but finished fourth and out of the money behind George McDonald, Arthur Tobin and John Quinn.

He was surely finished, the experts said. But, two years later, he was back and this time was elected councillor at-large, taking third place behind Tobin and Quinn. He was re-elected in 1973.

In 1975 he challenged Mayor Walter Hannon and went to bed Election Night the loser. But a recount turned it around and made him the winner by a scant 483 votes.

But two years later—after a stormy single term—LaRaia lost the mayor's office to Arthur Tobin by 5,050 votes in a political brawl.

The experts again pronounced him politically dead. He was really finished this time, they said. Finished! Period!

But in 1979—just two years later—LaRaia was back again. And this time, he was elected City Councillor at-large by only 187 votes over political newcomer Richard Koch, Jr. But it was good enough to give him new political life. Two years later, he was really on a roll, topping the City Council at-large field. It looked like he was getting ready for another run for mayor. And, he was.

In 1987 he took on mayoral incumbent Frank McCauley and came within a whisker—474 votes—of what would have been one of the biggest political upsets in the city's history.

On the strength of that showing, he made another bid for the mayor's office in 1989.

But he wound up as an also-ran, finishing fourth in a four-man preliminary derby won by James Sheets and Peter O'Connell with Steve McGrath third.

So, now another comeback attempt. LaRaia used to be conceded an estimated 5,000 loyal votes whenever he ran. But they weren't out there in his 1989 run for mayor when he got only 3,121.

However, a City Council at-large race is a different ball game. You have a shot at one of every three votes.

And LaRaia is more effective running against incumbents than he is against non-incumbents.

LaRaia is sure to live up to this year's political front—if he campaigns actively and just doesn't sit on his name.

One question: is he making a comeback bid via the City Council in hopes of using the seat as a springboard back to the mayor's office?

Those who know LaRaia—or think they do—believe he someday would like to return to the mayor's office to make up for those two turbulent years he spent there in 1976-77.

Criticizes Conditions Imposed On Home Depot

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
Although I am now a Brintree resident, I still pay taxes to the City of Quincy.

I would like to comment on the wisdom of the freshman councillor, Thomas Fabrizio, and the concurrence of the "tag-along" city council concerning the Home Depot project in Quincy. The list of conditions for building a retail facility is so restrictive that it borders on extortion.

I can remember Quincy's losing the Edison Plant to Weymouth, the Citgo storage yard to Brintree (both within one hundred yards of Quincy), and the Jordan Marsh-Grossman West-of-the-tracks development to Brintree. The latter turned out to be the anchor store of the South Shore Plaza.

I hope that Home Depot says NO to Quincy and they look for a suitable location in Brintree where I am sure the town will be more receptive to tax dollars.

What Is The Best Buy For The Vacant Best Buy?

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
What is North Quincy to do with the vacant Best Buy warehouse store?

What is the best buy for this prime piece of commercial real estate?

Can the concept of a mini-mall work where there is limited foot traffic?

Or should our energy be directed toward more viable alternatives for the site?

In a recent issue of The Quincy Sun, I suggested three possible alternatives: supermarket, restaurant and playground. After further consideration, I feel the supermarket idea might be right up there with the mini-mall concept.

Who can forget the horrendous traffic problems a year or so ago connected with a nearby donut shop?

How more horrendous would the East Squantum/Quincy Shore Drive intersection become if a supermarket opened there?

Whatever is to replace Best Buy must not adversely affect the surrounding neighborhood streets or create a traffic nightmare. A supermarket might do both.

I made some suggestions. I still think a family-style restaurant could make it at the site and there are never enough safe playgrounds for small tots. New suggestions from some North Quincy neighbors include an Asian cultural center, a bowling alley, an appliance store and a drug store.

However, the bottom line will remain the Powers-That-Be at City Hall. Are city officials actively looking for a replacement business when stores fail?

Big question: who attracts new business into Quincy, or better still, what is Quincy doing to sell itself outside its borders?

Would that Quincy City Hall be as interested in attracting new business ventures as they, apparently, are in getting the U.S. Lexington back!

John Lyons Wins National Hometown Video First Prize

Longtime Continental Cablevision programming volunteer John Lyons has won a first place award in the national Hometown USA Video Festival for "Holiday Greetings from Quincy Churches," a Christmas 1990 cable TV "greeting card" co-produced with Continental's Darlene Mendoza.

Lyons' Quincy cable TV special captured first place in the religious programming category of the Hometown USA Festival sponsored annually by the National Federation of Local Cable Programmers. There were more than 2,000 entries in the competition from 437 communities in 38 states, according to Ed Fidler, Continental's Quincy programming director.

It was the second Hometown USA award for Lyons, who also won top honors in 1983. He has been nominated four times. Continental's Quincy cable system also was nominated this year for "A Tapestry of Names," an October 1990 AIDS special produced by Continental's Marie Diaz with the support of the Quincy Community Television Council.

"The Hometown USA competition was created to honor those who produce cable TV programming specifically for and about the community, and we are very proud of John Lyons, because that's what he has been doing in Quincy every night without fail for nearly a decade," Fidler said.

"Holiday Greetings from Quincy Churches" was a 30-minute program which explores the religious traditions of Quincy's churches during the Christmas season. The program featured personal greetings from the clergy at nine of the city's churches to everyone in the community.

Lyons also produces "Rhymes of the Times," a series that has led off the community programming on Continental's Channel 3 every night since 1982. In those nine years, Lyons, a former Weymouth teacher and director of the Quincy Conservatory of Music, was written, produced and recited more than 1,400 two to three-minute video programs for Quincy cable TV based on current events.

Continental's Mendoza traveled to Portland, Ore., July 25 to accept the Hometown USA award on behalf of Lyons, who could not attend due to sickness in his family.

Post Island Marsh Restoration Project Set

By STEVE KAVANAGH
The Post Island Marsh restoration project will get underway in September after the city opens bids Sept. 6.

DPW Commissioner David Colton announced Tuesday that the project will involve installation of a tidegate to allow salt water to flow into the marsh area and prevent flooding.

The nine-acre marsh is bordered by homes on Post Island, Gannett, Poplar, Elcot and Mallard roads, Noanet, Sea, Pequot and Oneida streets.

The city has received a $100,000 grant to complete the project through the Mass Bays Environmental Trust which was established as part of the settlement as a result of the city's Boston Harbor cleanup lawsuit.

"The Post Island Marsh has virtually turned into a meadow," Colton said. "We will install a self-regulating tidegate to allow salt water to flow into the marsh allowing environmental improvement and preventing flooding."

Ward 1 City Councillor

Peter Kolson and State Rep. Steve Tobin met with residents who expressed concerns about possible flooding and the fire hazard currently posed by the high grass.

Kolson said the flow of salt water into the marsh should eradicate the tall grass within three years and restore it as a breeding area for wildlife which will eventually help local fishermen and lobstermen. Kolson said the marsh should be restored to the way it was 30 to 40 years ago.

"I am particularly

Citizens Of Quincy

It is me again, Frank Anselmo

This time instead of writing a letter to you, I am giving you an item that was published locally, but may have been missed by you. I am hereby showing you an article printed in a national magazine called INSIGHT, issue of August 5, 1991, page 8.

The page is devoted to items that qualify to be inserted in what they call THE HALL OF SHAME. You be the judge of its merit:

Hall of Shame

Just a Formality. School officials in Quincy, Mass., have been attending high school proms in tuxedos paid for by the taxpayers for 40 years now. A bill for $914 from Bernie's Modern Formal Shop last month for 12 tuxedos touched off a local storm of protest. "This was totally out of line, especially now that the system is literally out of money," says Judy Brams, a mother who is active in a citizen's group raising money for school programs. "That $1,000 was not going to solve any problems, but we could have bought some books with it."

The policy in Quincy has been to allow principals, assistant principals, deans, student advisers, school committee members and their spouses to rent tuxedos for the senior proms at Quincy High School and North Quincy High School. Chaperones to the junior proms wear suits. "It's a minor expense," says Frank Santoro, a school committee member who ordered an $85 tuxedo. "It's nice. It adds a formality to the evening for the kids."

Mary Collins, a member of the school committee, defended the tuxedo rentals, saying that they are worn in the line of duty. "It's like the police and fire, they have to wear special clothes and they're provided for." Her husband ordered two tuxedos for $85 each this spring, but attended only one prom.

A Quincy High School science teacher, David Smith, got to the root of the matter: "If there's no money in the budget for supplies, if there's no money in the budget for textbooks, if there's no money for raise then there should be no money in the budget for tuxedos."

In my 29 years on the School Committee I don't recall this question of hiring tuxedos ever coming on the agenda for discussion or approval. As for me, on the occasions that I attended these functions, I always used my own tuxedo.

As you note the bill for the tuxedos for the past year was for $914. Multiplied by 40 years that would add up to $36,560 for tuxedos!

Think, how many needed books that this money did not buy.

Now the School Department continues to cut teachers, is considering closing schools and in desperation, cutting transportation.

You be the judge. What is more important? The interest of our school children or the vanity of the tuxedos.

Can you use the proven experience, honesty, integrity and courage to do the job that has to be done?
If so reelect Frank Anselmo.

P.S. I have written medical evidence that I am in good health -- blood, bone, tissue and brain, to place at your service.

More will follow.

Prepare to vote for:

Chretien said city officials hope to recycle metal, cardboard and household hazardous wastes. "We also hope to offer recycling to businesses and people living in large apartment buildings and

"This year we hope to recycle about 5,000 tons of paper, thereby saving 85,000 trees, 35 million gallons of water and enough electricity to heat 5,000 homes. ## Eaton Calls MBTA Fare Hike 'Hidden Tax'

Francis "Sandy" Eaton, an independent candidate for state representative in the Third Norfolk District, said he is strongly opposed to the proposed MBTA fare hikes which would generate $21 million in added revenue earmarked for debt service.

Eaton called the fair hike proposal a "hidden tax" which would limit the access of workers to the job market and consumers to the shops that need their business. He said many elderly cannot afford increase, and would be hampered in traveling to doctors and clinics.

Some supporters of the hike said an estimated 43,000 riders would be lost to the system because of rising fares. Additional pressure would be put on clogged roads, with increased air pollution. According to Eaton, up to $2 billion is set aside for advertising to attract more riders to public transportation.

"The question naturally arises whether the MBTA exists to provide a vital service to our working families or to sustain the downtown banks and ad agencies," Eaton said. "If the huge advertising budget were applied to improving the running of the mass transit system, more riders would in fact come into the system, reducing traffic and pollution."

"The final word is not yet in," he said. "The MBTA Advisory Board still has to give final approval.

Public pressure at this time can not only stop the hike but bring about the long-awaited revue of management structure and practice.

"It's time to restructure state government, starting with the various authorities and commissions."

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Many times through the years we have been asked how to handle small children at the death of a loved one. When someone loved and respected by a small child dies, you should be truthful about it and give the child a chance to grieve. It is only natural for emotions to give way to grief ... and to cry. True, most of us do not need extra encouragement since it is so natural to weep in sorrow. And this is good.

We all know that tears are therapeutic. By not hiding our grief as adults, we can show our children that we are human. We laugh when we are happy and cry when we are sad. By recognizing and expressing our emotional feelings, we are teaching our children to react humanely and honestly themselves ...

More Boats Than Last Year

QBRW Success Despite Weather, Barge Scare

By TOM SULLIVAN

The 54th edition of Quincy Bay Race Week got off to a slow start but things improved as the week progressed and QBRWA President George Jackson was pleased with the overall results.

"Things went off really well despite early weather problems," said Jackson. "We had a slight increase in the number of boats over last year and the race committee did a terrific job."

The first day's racing was marred by an unfortunate incident when two "unscheduled" barges raised havoc with the Tumabout races.

Nearly 80 boats that made up the inside line were nearly run over by the barges and the races were canceled and the results thrown out.

"Naturally the youngsters' parents were up in arms and I couldn't blame them," Jackson said. "We had cleared things with the Coast Guard and when we contacted the Water Resources Authority (MWRA) they apologized and said the Barges were unscheduled. But that didn't help much. We had perfect weather on Friday and those canceled races were made up."

"I almost got hammered by a barge," Blue Fleet sailor Greg Devine said. "It almost turned my boat into toothpicks."

"The seas were tough on Saturday but the ocean racing got off all right," said Jackson.

Lynn Ingram, the regatta coordinator and ocean race chairman, was pleased with the number of inside line competitors.

"The inside line is up quite a bit, but the outside line and ocean racers have dropped," she said. "The upkeep and maintenance of the boats is the main reason why it is down. It's because of financial reasons."

She added that in the past year race organizers have looked for ways to increase participation in what has become one of the oldest race weeks in the state.

"There are certain traditions that will always be there," she said. "But there are also new changes that have come about and we have to be more flexible."

The Race Week Association has become a member of the Yacht Racing Union of Massachusetts so it doesn't have conflicts with the schedule.

For the first time in nearly four years, QBRW was a Boston Harbor Qualifying Race.

Next year the QBRW organizers are looking to include board sailing in the competition. Race Week will mark its 55th anniversary, coinciding with the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' discovery of America.

The Willy family of Wessagusset Y.C. once again dominated the Laser class. Jack won three straight races before being defeated by Joe Hanrahan Saturday. Willy bounced back to win Sunday to take his second title in three years.

Jack's son, Jack Jr. finished third behind Hanrahan and Jack's daughter, Janese, was fourth.

Jack and Janese together with Russ Chase will compete in the U.S. Men's Area Championship

Callahan B Fleet Champ

Dick Callahan third in "Free Again", finished third behind Stewart Hamel of Metropolitan Y.C. fourth in "Slingshot" and Mark Fitzgerald of Wollaston fifth in "Havoc."

in the Mallory Class at Rockport Aug. 21-22. If they win they will go on to Ohio in September for the next round.

This year's Race Week was special for Dan McLaughlin of Wessagusset, who went from crew to skipper for the first time in the Red Fleet. He took the title by winning Sunday for his third win along with two seconds.

The final day of racing Sunday again featured the annual Marine Parade with another fine turnout of decorated boats.

The annual Trophy Day will be held Sunday, Oct. 20 at 2 p.m. at Quincy Yacht Club when trophies will be presented in all racing classes and for the Marine Parade.

Over 40 Recommendations To Combat Crime

•Park and Recreation Board will develop and prioritize a master plan for capital improvements and further development of recreational facilities.

•To finance improvements, a non-profit corporation similar to the Quincy Partnership will begin being formed in September or October.

•The school building maintenance department will identify areas currently suffering from excessive vandalism and littering. Once identified, police department will implement additional patrols in those areas. The department will also determine whether more lighting is needed in those areas. School alarms were found to be adequate. The recommendations will be forwarded to the school committee.

Bars, Restaurants, Fast Food and Convenience Stores
•Late hour operations of food, bar, fast food and convenience stores will not be changed. After reviewing police statistics, the committee found that the late hour operations do not contribute to increased crime.

•Police will work with the Methadone Review Committee which evaluates the success of Quincy residents enrolled in the program. Heroin is often connected with houseboat and other criminal behaviors.

•Appoint a drug task force in September which will establish a clearing house location for all activities, groups, organizations, education efforts, agencies and committees addressing substance abuse issues of all types.

•When young people gather in large groups such as along the beach wall or in large playgrounds, it will be city policy not to bother them unless they are creating a problem with illegal drug or alcohol abuse, litter, vandalism, blocking access to businesses, noise, other public disturbances or nuisances.

•Depending on an opinion by the solicitor, Sheets may file a home-rule petition allow large groups of people found illegally drinking or using drugs to be transported to the police station via a school bus. Parents or guardians would be called to retrieve them. If such activities included vandalism, the name of the vandal, regardless of age, would be published in the local newspaper.

•Institute a Citywide Youth Council comprised of four students from each middle school, two high school juniors, two students from Quincy College, two students from Eastern Nazarene College and two 19-year-olds and two 20-year-olds. The council would examine and discuss issues of mutual importance to youth, city and school officials, parents, neighbors and business community.

The council would meet with officials such as the parks director and might assume a role in a program such as Adopt-an-Island.

•The recreation department may assign a staff person to supervise playgrounds with lights until 11 p.m. or midnight. That person might be augmented by a member of the auxiliary police, if approved by the city's police unions.

•Each school, both public and private, would be encouraged to work on its own community involvement/improvement project to give students a sense of participation and responsibility in the community.

•City will continue and expand its annual parks and open space cleanup so that monthly cleanups are held between May and October.

•Approach business to Adopt-a-Playground, whereby business would purchase new equipment as needed. Plaques would be set up to signify their contribution.

•Money to purchase new or worn out playground or park and recreation equipment will be sought by allowing local musicians to give a concert at the stadium for a $5 admission fee.

•Each year, the police department will convene a meeting of Quincy business owners to address crime prevention, shop lifting, loitering and other concerns.

•Establishments which serve liquor may be required to provide coffee and juice to patrons between 11 p.m. and 1 p.m. Sheets will gather more information before making recommendation.

•To prevent the admission of violent, overage or trouble-causing outsiders into Quincy school or church dances, the city would provide "in-city student ID cards" to insure those admitted to dances are local young people. One guest would be permitted for each Quincy student. Mayor will forward recommendation to school committee for action next month.

•Require all Quincy bars and restaurants which confiscate false alcohol IDs to turn such cards over to the Quincy Alcohol Licensing Officer.

MBTA

•Mayor and MBTA director will meet to discuss businesses at Quincy MBTA stations be limited to those which do not encourage loitering, such as a dry-cleaners, or a community use such as a historic information center.

•The city will ask the MBTA to be part of a joint MBTA/Quincy cleaning and landscaping maintenance agreement at all four Red Line stations in Quincy. Cleanup activities would be undertaken from April 15 to Oct. 15.

•Sheets will ask MBTA to install historical information signs in the MBTA stations to direct and educate riders about Quincy's historical sites.

Commercial and Business Districts

•Mayor will ask Mullen to assign "beat patrolmen" in the Wollaston and North Quincy business districts.

•Entertainment Cinemas in Quincy Center is providing a detail police officer Friday and Saturday nights from April 15 to Nov. 15.

•Mayor will ask license board to limit the number of video games at each facility.

•An action plan will be developed to alleviate the amount of litter in the business districts by coordinating a litter pick-up.

•Additional rubbish barrels will be purchased and placed throughout the districts.

•A periodic inspection of the Ross Parking Garage and Hancock Parking Area will be set up to help eliminate graffiti in the districts.

•The city will undertake an ambitious anti-litter campaign by erecting additional signs that emphasize the fine for littering and by developing a process for increased enforcement of littering ordinances.

•The city will ask the Goldman family, which owns the site of the former Kincaide Furniture Store, to landscape the vacant lot until the parcel is developed.

Toland In Ireland When Home Depot Vote Was Taken

Councillor Patricia Toland could not attend last week's City Council meeting and vote on the proposed Home Depot project because of a pre-arranged family vacation to Ireland.

Toland said she had made plans to take her three children to Ireland several months before the Aug. 5th council meeting was scheduled. The city does not allow proxy votes at the City Council.

Now that the Home Depot project has been approved, Toland said she wants to make sure the West Quincy area is impacted as little as possible.

"I will work toward making the impact of the project as minimal as possible. The project is good for our economy and jobs but we also have to protect our neighborhoods.

"The biggest problem is traffic. That's the main issue and that needs to be worked upon and refined until we have as streamlined a plan as possible with the road system there now," Toland said.

City Celebrates First Year Of Expanded Recycling

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The cake, birthday card and gift on Mayor James Sheets' desk Tuesday morning marked the one-year anniversary of the city's expanded curbside recycling program.

As he opened a gift wrapped "blue bin" the mayor, in keeping with the spirit of recycling joked, "If my wife (Joann) were here she would tell me to save the ribbon."

Inside the bin was a congratulatory birthday card and a check from Browning-Ferris Industries, the waste disposal firm, for $17,800. The money is Quincy's share of the profits from resalable materials collected by BFI in the city's curbside recycling program.

"The program has been absolutely overwhelming success," said Sheets. "We were able to save $300,000 in real dollars which enabled us to have a turnaround of $600,000 in the budget."

The savings come from money the city would have had to pay in landfill costs. During the 1990-91 fiscal year Quincy recycled 370 tons of glass, 5,450 tons of newspaper and 50 tons of plastic. In its first year, 1989-90, the city collected 3,039 tons of newspapers only.

The $17,800 is part of an estimated $30,000 the city will collect from BFI for the 1991 fiscal year.

"This ($30,000) means to me that we can save one job, be it a teacher, firefighter or policeman," Sheets said.

The mayor praised Quincy's Recycling Committee Chairman, Ward 3 City Councillor Larry Chretien, DPW Commissioner David Colton and Michael Wheelwright of the DPW for their efforts on the city's behalf and thanked BFI officials for their cooperation.

"I'd love to take the credit for the success of this program but much of the credit belongs to the citizens of Quincy who, day after day, week after week, month after month, put those blue bins out," Sheets said.

"It is the attitude that the people of Quincy have towards the program which makes it such a success. By participating our residents have contributed to a broader spirit in the city which looks to the future with hope," he said.

Sheets and Chretien confirmed that the city is negotiating with BFI to expand the program.

Sheets said that BFI officials have been in the forefront of Quincy's program. "They (BFI) are an intricate part of this. It has been a collaborative effort which is why I think we'll continue to be successful."

Chretien said Quincy would like to recycle steel and tin cans and cardboard and is exploring ideas for dropoff centers for residents of apartment buildings and condominiums.

One of Chretien's priorities will be to enhance public awareness so residents know exactly what they can put in the blue bins.

"It is our objective to create the maximum extension of the recycling program to the greatest degree," Sheets said.

Quincy Native Gets DPW Management Position

DPW Commissioner David Colton announced the appointment of Lester Gerry to the recently created Operations Manager position.

Colton also announced the promotion of Michael Wheelwright to Programs Manager as part of the department's recent reorganization.

"Commissioner Colton's reorganization saved the city $100,000," said Mayor

James Sheets. "This sets an example in these difficult economic times as Gov. Weld attempts to downsize government and the citizens of the commonwealth call for more efficient government."

Gerry, a 1982 graduate of North Quincy High School, holds an engineering degree from Wentworth Institute of Technology and was previously employed as an assistant project manager with the Charles River Development Group. He is president of the Post Island Marsh Association.

Wheelwright has been the DPW's principal planner since 1987 and has worked on curbside recycling, permit taking and wetland replication. He serves on the board of directors of Father Bill's Shelter.

RESIDENTS OF WARD II

Recently, we applied to transfer our existing Liquor License within Ward II. It was our intent to revive and improve yet another vacant store front in the community.

On Tuesday, August 6, 1991, at a Public Hearing on the matter we presented our case. We addressed all concerns expressed by the board, as well as area residents. We noted our commitment to the community and flawless service at our existing location for the past ten years.

Our request was denied.

We would like to take this opportunity to extend our heartfelt thanks for your support; to the more than three hundred of you who signed our petition, to the many of you who phoned the City Council President, and to those of you who spoke on our behalf at the hearing.

We are most appreciative to all of you and we hope for continued support.

Trees Toppled, 50 Residents Evacuated

Bob Leaves Thousands Without Power

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Cleanup and electrical service crews began working around the clock after Hurricane Bob bore down on Quincy Monday afternoon. The storm forced the evacuation of about 50 residents, knocked down hundreds of trees and limbs and left thousands of residents without power.

As of 3 p.m. Tuesday, 6,502 or about 16 percent of the city's 40,000 Mass Electric customers were still without power, according to Cynthia Allegranza, a Mass Electric spokesperson. She said most customers without power were primarily from the North Quincy area.

Allegranza said it was possible power for some customers may not be restored until the end of the week. "It could take several days. The restoration (task) is enormous," she said.

At the peak of the power outage, 12,079 customers were without service in Mass Electric's Weymouth district which includes Quincy, Holbrook and Randolph. "Quincy was the hardest hit," Allegranza said.

According to Allegranza, 460 lines crews from Mass Electric were working around the clock to restore power throughout Southeastern Massachusetts. Crews included 230 from Mass Electric, 95 crews from private companies and 135 from utility companies outside the state, including some from New Jersey, Virginia, Vermont and Quebec.

Hurricane Bob, which packed winds up to 70 mph locally, forced the evacuation of approximately 50 Quincy residents, said Tony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Emergency Management Agency. The evacuees, mostly from Houghs Neck, Squantum and Germantown, were brought to a natural disaster shelter set up at the Quincy Vocational Technical School.

They were provided with cots, blankets, food and water. The shelter also provided two black and white televisions and oxygen tanks for people with medical conditions.

Other shelters were set up at North Quincy High, Snug Harbor, Atherton Hough and Squantum Schools.

Siciliano said the destruction caused from Hurricane Bob was worse than Hurricane Gloria which struck in September, 1985. Most of the damage was caused by high winds which reached up to 70 mph.

Hurricane Bob toppled many trees and limbs, bringing down electrical lines and causing widespread power outages.

"There were a number of streets inundated with debris. Some limbs tore down electrical lines and ripped out meters from homes," Siciliano said Tuesday morning.

Monday's storm could have been a lot worse. Two major factors played in Quincy's favor.

First, the brunt of the storm struck several hours before the 7:43 p.m. high tide in Quincy Bay. If Bob had hit at high tide, many city streets, especially along the peninsula communities of Germantown, Houghs Neck and Squantum, would have been flooded.

Second, Quincy was located west of Bob's track. Typically, the force of a hurricane is more intense to the east of its track. In fact, the highest wind speeds from Bob were recorded in communities east of its track. In Plymouth and Marshfield, gusts reached 110 mph.

Siciliano said the city was prepared for the worse. He headed up a team of 100 volunteers which manned the communications, transportation, civil air patrol, auxiliary fire, auxiliary police, shelter and underwater recovery divisions of the Quincy Emergency Management Agency. The volunteers were on hand to assist in various areas of operations.

Four Council on Aging vans were utilized for transporting evacuees and also to bring volunteers to various areas to clear debris from streets.

Siciliano praised Edward Roberts, Quincy's emergency shelter director. "He's done a super job. He's got a great team of people."

The volunteers, along with personnel from the police, fire and public works departments, spent the day clearing broken tree limbs that block neighborhood streets.

More than 100 residents called the forestry department about fallen trees while dozens of others reported downed power and telephone lines. The police station set up an emergency line for fire department calls after lines to the fire station were cutoff for about two hours.

Five Asian youngsters from Quincy also volunteered to answer telephone calls at the S. a St. Emergency Management

Durkin Seeks Re-Election To School Committee

STEPHEN DURKIN
level high school courses, athletics and extra curricular activities.

Quincy School Committeeman Stephen Durkin announces his candidacy for re-election to a third four-year term.

"During my two terms on the School Committee, I have worked cooperatively with parents, teachers and staff, as well as my colleagues on the School Committee, to bring about improvements in Quincy's schools. I have worked very hard, and I believe I have been able to accomplish a great deal," Durkin said.

"Today, our schools must play a larger role in meeting children's needs and it's important that young people get the attention they deserve. That is why I proposed and fought for the existing policy which limits class size at all grade levels.

"Consistent with my firm belief that all the limited resources we have should be directed to the classroom, and not administration, during the last two years I supported more than $300,000 in administrative cuts in an effort to save teaching positions.

Saying every child should have the chance to attain their potential, Durkin noted he established and since 1984 has chaired a subcommittee on special education to help improve a program which serves roughly 1,500 of Quincy's students each year. He also advocated retaining elementary enrichment programs, middle school foreign language, upper allow parents and citizens to voice their concerns. "I have also several times proposed subcommittees and task forces comprised of parents and teachers to encourage their participation in the policy-making process."

Durkin said community support is important. "Two years ago, I helped organize 'Quality Citizens for Quality Education' whose goal is to increase support for our schools through political activism."

He said he supports a comprehensive volunteer program in city schools. "Some of the features of a volunteer program may include inviting parents, grandparents, senior citizens and others to read to children, or to tutor them in other areas. The possibilities are virtually limitless."

"While no volunteer can replace a trained, full-time teacher in the classroom, developing a school-based, but system-supported, volunteer program is something we should begin now," he said.

Finally, Durkin said, "The challenges facing our schools in the coming years will be to ensure that resources are used wisely, and that our attention is focused on the children and their needs in the classroom. As a member of the School Committee, I will continue to be vigilant in making certain that resources are directed to the classroom, and not administration."

"As a School Committee member, I have certainly had to make my share of difficult decisions. Not all of those decisions, of course, have been politically popular. However, I have always tried to act responsibly and honestly, and in the best interest of the school system, the citizens of Quincy and its children, who deserve the very best we can give them."

"If re-elected, I can promise that I will continue to work hard for our schools and for the young people I serve."

Durkin is an attorney and a graduate of North Quincy High School, the University of Massachusetts and New England School of Law. He is a teacher at Northeastern University and the president of the Board of Directors of Quincy After School Day Care, Inc.

He lives at 125 Colonial Dr. with his wife, Maureen, a figure skating instructor and registered nurse, and their daughter, Mollie, age four.

What's important to a child's education? NOT TUXEDOS, THAT'S FOR SURE!

This year, it was reported that school officials chaperoning proms had charged tuxedo rentals to the school system.

Especially in tough financial times, the limited resources we have must be directed to educational needs, not frills.

At Steve Durkin's insistence, the School Committee put an end to the practice of paying for tuxedos. The Committee is also changing the budget format to ensure that every single dollar is accounted for.

Raymondi, Walsh Win Top Spots On Ballot

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Daniel Raymondi and Joanne Condon Walsh will head up their respective ballots in the Sept. 17 preliminary election for school committee and Ward 6 councillor.

Raymondi and Walsh were the first names drawn in a recent lottery at City Hall which decided the order of names on the preliminary ballot in both races.

After Raymondi, the order of names on the school committee preliminary ballot will be: Sean Barry, Michael Jovanovic, JoAnn Bragg, Stephen Durkin, Edward Lee, Mary "Jane" Powers, Margaret King, Toni Kabilian, Frank Anselmo and Linda Stice.

On the Ward 6 councillor preliminary ballot, Walsh will be followed by Bruce Ayers and Thomas Nutley.

The school committee candidate names were drawn by Walsh and Ayers. Kabilian drew the Ward 6 council candidate names.

Raymondi, a lawyer, is a former Norfolk County treasurer, city councillor and school committee member. He made an unsuccessful run for mayor in 1981, losing to former Mayor Francis McCauley.

Barry, 26, is the youngest candidate in this year's election. Working on his second master's degree in American studies at the University of Massachusetts in Boston, he is searching for a teaching position.

Jovanovic is a Yugoslavian native and a former college professor of Russian language and literature. He made unsuccessful bids for school committee in 1989 and for mayor in 1975 and 1979. He has a real estate business.

Bragg, a tax accountant, is a member of many education groups and school committee advisory committees. The mother of three school-aged children, she is an active member of the Citywide Parents Council.

Durkin, an incumbent, is running for his third four-year term. An attorney, he serves as the committee's special education advisor and is an advocate for mandating homework as part of the city's school curriculum.

Lee, a Boston public school administrator, is the first Asian-American Quincy resident to run for political office. A 1977 graduate of Quincy High School, Lee said he wants to encourage the city's Asian population to become more involved in the community.

Powers was elected to a two-year term on the school committee in 1989 to fill a vacancy in seat previously held by the late Christopher Kennedy. Running for her first four-year term, Powers is the school committee's representative in the Education Development Committee.

King, known as "Peggy," is a former math teacher at North Quincy High and Quincy high schools. Besides working 27 years as a teacher, she also has experience as an insurance underwriter.

Kabilian, president of the Citywide Parents Council, attends school committee meetings frequently. She has criticized the school department's handling of budgets and maintenance problems and has led education rallies at City Hall.

Anselmo, who resigned from the committee earlier this year due to health concerns, says he has been given a clean bill of health from his doctors. He now wants to return and extend his 29 years of service on the school committee.

Stice, who holds two masters' degrees in education, has a 21-year history of working in schools and social service programs. She coordinated the school department's teen mothers program and wrote a recycling education program that parent volunteers taught to elementary school children.

The Ward 6 race features two political veterans and one newcomer.

Nutley is running for his fourth two-year term. He was first elected in 1985, running for the seat which Walsh had occupied since 1978. Instead of running for re-election in 1985, Walsh challenged McCauley in the mayor's race and lost.

Nutley is community affairs director for Boston Gas. Walsh is a real estate broker for Condon Walsh Realtors in Quincy.

Ayers is making his first run for office. A community access monitor for the state Executive Department Office of Handicapped Affairs, he is employed at Ayers Bros. Inc., a handicap conversion center in Squantum.

A LARGE ELM tree in front of 1000 Southern Artery in Quincy was toppled by Hurricane Bob Monday which had gusts of up to 70 mph locally.

TENNIS ELBOW

Summertime is the peak season for sports and for sports injuries. One of the more common ones is tennis elbow, a form of tendonitis caused by an injury to the elbow joint. The injury occurs during the pursuit of other sports as well as tennis, and is often seen in golfers, baseball or softball players, and bowlers. It seems to result from stress to the joint which causes an inflammation on the tendons. A slight tear in the tendon may also be present. Treatment involves rest, applications of moist heat, and mild anti-inflammatory drugs such as aspirin or ibuprofen. If the problem keeps occurring, a good sports coach may be able to determine what's not right about the back swing, forehand, or other motion that is causing the problem, and offer correction. It is rarely necessary to give up the sport.

P.S. When a sports injury occurs, stop doing whatever caused it, and rest the affected area. Sports injuries are painful, and they keep you from the activities you enjoy. COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE reminds you that many such injuries require immediate medical treatment and continuing follow up. If you are experiencing pain, contact your personal physician, or call our office. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24, in Quincy. Phone 472-2550. ## The Hotel Lexington?

Mayor Sheets is doggedly pursuing the USS Lexington to bring it back home for conversion to a tourist attracting maritime museum.

But Charles Ryder, president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional association and owner of Ryder's downtown store wonders if something more could be done with the huge carrier if Quincy wins the vessel built at Fore River Shipyard during World War II.

Quincy has long lacked a hotel, Rydernotes. Everyone keeps talking about the great need for one but so far that's all there has been ... talk.

"Why not turn the Lexington into a hotel," Ryder suggests. "If not all of it, part of it."

He thinks it would draw overnight clientele and serve as a fascinating setting for special functions which would bring more business to the city. The revenue would help pay for the tremendous maintenance and upkeep the ship will require.

"The Hotel Lexington."

Has a nice ring to it.

Can't you hear some out-of-town businessman leaving his office saying: "I'm going to the convention in Quincy and I'll be staying at The Lexington."

And the desk clerk greeting him on his arrival: "Welcome to The Lexington. Hope enjoy your stay in Quincy."

And, then to the bellhop: "Boy, take these bags and show this gentleman to his stateroom on Deck Charlie, aft."

Hey, maybe Ryder has something there. Would the Navy allow it?

Might be worth a check.

There's still time for more candidates to get in. They have until Sept. 3 to obtain and/or file nomination papers for the Oct. 15 primary.

But it looks like it will be only Quincy's Ron Mariano and Tony Siciliano and Weymouth's Jack McGlone and Tom Tanner in the Democratic primary.

Two Quincy independents, Cheryl Balzano and Francis "Sandy" Eaton will sit out the primary. They'll be on the November final election ballot.

The only Republican candidate in the race at the moment is William Izbicki of Weymouth. Unless another one gets in, there will be no Republican action until the final election.

There has been speculation that Siciliano might withdraw to lessen the Quincy vote splitting to help keep the seat in Quincy. But at last report Siciliano says "I'm in to stay."

Council President Ted DeCristofaro, acting mayor, came by the agency for updating of operations. Mayor James Sheets was out of town attending the funeral of his mother in Pennsylvania.

The city's Emergency Management Agency was activated at 7:30 a.m. Tuesday. Shortly after, a state of emergency was

1000-Man Layoff At Shipyard

The Bethlehem Steel Co. explained that the recent layoff of more than 1,000 men at its busy Fore River Shipyard was due to the fact that shipbuilding actually was being carried on too fast.

"We have launched several tankers and one cruiser in high speed time," said a Bethlehem news release, "and within a few weeks we will launch the battleship Massachusetts and another cruiser."

"The completion of work has far outstripped our start of new work and hence there have been layoffs until we can get the new work far enough along to call the men back."

Raymondi Candidate For School Committee

Former Norfolk County Treasurer Daniel Raymondi announces he is seeking a seat on the Quincy School Committee.

Raymondi, an attorney, said he is running for one of the three seats because he believes the people of Quincy have lost faith in the ability of the present School Committee to lead the school system effectively into the 1990s.

Referring to a recent local newspaper editorial that stated an invigorated School Committee was never more needed than now, Raymondi said "Quincy needs School Committee members who will uphold traditional values and who will not compromise the beliefs of the hardworking men and women of our community."

"We are at a critical period in our school system's history," he said. "Newly elected members of the School Committee will decide issues such as the selection of a new school superintendent, school choice, attendance and hiring policies, school reorganization, school-based management, budget reform and Quincy College expansion and governance. The resolution of these and other crucial issues can only be achieved in the proven problem solvers and decision makers are elected."

As Norfolk County treasurer, Raymondi was credited with initiating and implementing numerous policy changes that brought efficiency and professionalism to an office previously in turmoil.

"I am a public official who has always brought positive change and innovation to every position that I have held. I am the only candidate with a proven public record as a problem solver and decision maker," he said.

Raymondi is a graduate of Quincy public schools and received a bachelor of arts degree from Holy Cross College and a law degree from Boston College Law

DANIEL RAYMONDI

School. Besides his elected public service, he served as a prosecutor for the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office and as a public defender at Quincy District Court. He is a present member of the Quincy and Norfolk County Bar Associations, Quincy Citizens Association, Ward 2 Civic Association, Knights of Columbus, Quincy Sons of Italy, John Quincy Adams Club and is a former member of the Massachusetts School Committee Association.

He is married to the former Sharyn Thibodeau.

"I am confident that my professional training as an attorney, my governmental and management experience and my education will provide me with the necessary skills to bring the resources of our community together to effectively advance public education within the city of Quincy."

Continuing, Raymondi said, "We should stop the endless talk of gloom and doom and work to develop the many resources in our community to promote and strengthen the quality of our educational system without burdening the taxpayer."

"The people of Quincy and in particular our business community realize that Quincy's economic and social vitality is dependent upon a school system that produces individuals capable of competing in a global society. We must do a better job in furthering partnerships involving all segments of our city for the advancement of educational opportunities."

Raymondi cited budget reform as one of his top priorities.

"The management and accounting experience that I obtained as treasurer overseeing millions of dollars of public funds will enable me to begin an immediate process of review of the school department and to effect reform. The people of Quincy deserve a budget that is understandable and an accounting and auditing process that monitors spending throughout the year."

In 1971 at the age of 23, Raymondi was elected to the Quincy School Committee. Now 20 years later, having served on the Quincy School Committee, Quincy Park and Recreation Board, City Council and having restructured and modernized the Norfolk County treasurer's office, Raymondi said, "I once again find myself drawn to the challenge issued by a recent headline that '67 Percent Unhappy With Public Education.'"

"That headline dramatically exposed the need for change. We need to improve teacher morale, increase involvement of students, parents and the community in the management and operations of our schools. We must prepare our young people for the real world; that is our challenge."

City Year Art Exhibit At Handshakes Aug. 28

Handshakes Cafe, 1354 Hancock St., Quincy Center, will host an art exhibit for the City Year Program from Aug. 28 through Oct. 9.

The exhibit features works by eight young artists who have been involved with the City Year program.

Through City year some 70 young people (three from Quincy) gave up a year of their lives to work with disadvantaged children, the homeless, elderly and others in the Boston area. They worked for a stipend of $100 per week and the promise of a $5,000 scholarship.

In an effort to help the program, Tim Cahill, owner of Handshakes and a member of the Citizen Finance Board for City Year, is hosting a fund raising event in conjunction with the exhibit opening Wednesday, Aug. 28 from 7 to 9 p.m.

The public is invited to come by handshakes to view the artwork, meet City Year graduates and learn more about the program. Refreshments will be served.

The artists featured in the exhibit are: Charles Kellman, Suzan Baltozer, Giuliana Colarusso, Jon Marshall, Katina Hayward, Aan Conte, Elizabeth Doherty, and Jennifer Seamans.

DEAR QUINCY VOTER:

During my two terms on the School Committee, I have worked very hard to improve Quincy's schools, and I have demonstrated an ability to get things done.

The challenges facing our schools is to ensure that resources are used wisely, and that our attention is focused on the children and their needs in the classroom.

Next year, my daughter, Mollie, will enter kindergarten in Quincy. I am seeking re-election so that I will continue to have a voice in making certain that your children and grandchildren, and my daughter, will have the best educational opportunities we can give them.

It would be my privilege to continue to serve the citizens of Quincy on the School Committee and I would be very grateful for your support. Thank you for your consideration.

Respectfully,
Stephen J. Durkin

Broad Meadows Receives National Award For Excellence

Broad Meadows Middle School has been selected by the Secondary School Recognition Program as a "National School of Excellence."

The purpose of the Secondary School Recognition Program is to identify and recognize outstanding secondary schools across the United States.

Of the 490 public and private schools nominated for the award, Broad Meadows was one of 16 New England schools selected.

To be recognized, a school must convince a review panel of educational experts that its students are developing reasoning and problem-solving abilities, attaining skills in writing, literature, mathematics, science, history, geography, civics, foreign language, and the arts.

The school must also present clear evidence that school programs, practices and policies foster the development of sound character, a sense of self-worth, democratic values and self-discipline.

In addition, the school must demonstrate that it has strong leadership, high quality instruction, effective working relationships and an atmosphere that is orderly, purposeful and conducive to learning and character development.

Each school is required to submit written applications responding to a variety of questions pertaining to established "Conditions of Effective Schooling."

Finalists in each state are then selected by a review panel in Washington, D.C. for on site visits. This allows the panel to gather information through observation, document review, and personal interviews with parents, students, teachers and administrators.

After a three month wait, Broad Meadows was selected as a National Secondary School of Excellence. In September, school representatives will visit Washington, D.C., where the formal awards ceremony will be held.

Sean Barry Announces Bid For School Committee

Sean Barry, 184 Marlboro St., Wollaston, announces his candidacy for a seat on the Quincy School Committee.

Announcing his bid, Barry, 26, said, "As an observer of the local political scene, and as a person concerned with education I feel compelled to enter the race as an advocate for the many issues seemingly neglected by the current committee."

Barry, who was raised in Quincy, said "The values my parents and grandparents instilled in me nurtured the values and aspirations all of us share as a community. The people of Quincy are compassionate and caring. They feel strongly about education."

"Many have valuable informed views relating to decisions the school committee made. But for some time now," Barry said, "those views have fallen on deaf ears. The committee has lost touch with the people."

Barry charged some committee members have lost contact with the people who gave them the privilege to represent them on the school committee. "We should not simply cast a vote for a candidate and then consider our responsibility concluded, our role fulfilled."

"A constructive partnership must be maintained. This is a partnership of parents, educators, students and the people of Quincy."

"Nor should we expect an elected official to act as our proxy, exercising carte-blanche, never consulting with the people that elected him or her."

A lifelong Wollaston resident, Barry attended St. Ann School and Don Bosco Technical High School. He received a B.A. in journalism and a B.A. in politics and government from Ohio Wesleyan University and a master's degree in journalism and public affairs from the American University.

While studying for his master's, he was a graduate fellow at the American University. He is currently a student in The American Studies Graduate Program at the University of Massachusetts in Boston.

Active in local politics, he was a delegate to the Massachusetts State Democratic Convention in 1988 and 1990. He is a former intern for Cong. Brian Donnelly in Washington, D.C.

Last year, Barry participated in the Summer Institute for Teachers at the John F. Kennedy Library in Dorchester.

If elected, Barry said he would "work with unions during negotiations in a fair and respectful manner." He also said he would "constantly ask" Quincy residents how they feel about school and other education-related issues

"Parents, educators, students and concerned citizens will also have my attention and my time. I want to be there for everyone," he said.

"Time will judge our actions and others will doubtless find fault in our solutions, as they inevitably will do. These critics are never satisfied and seldom involved. It is better that we try something."

"These are difficult times for all of us. I am no stranger to adversity. But I have learned that triumph in spite of adversity is the sweetest success of all. We all have dreams and personal goals. Many people never get beyond thinking 'what if?' or simply talking about plans."

"Together we can do something distinctly different. We will distinguish ourselves from those who talk of wondrous futures and splendid solutions year after year but who never accomplish anything."

"They never believed it was possible. I do," he said.

"Our ultimate successes will and should be found in our commitment to education. The measure of the effectiveness of the simplest solutions and the most complicated policies is wholly dependent upon the involvement of the citizenry," Barry added.

Anyone interested in joining Barry's election committee should call 773-8821.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

It has been said that successful people rarely consider work as just so much labor; they regard it in the nature of an opportunity for service and feel enjoyment in and derive pleasure from it.

Success is not a thing to be acquired; rather it is a spirit. It is not a matter of position or possessions. Success is the satisfying feeling of a life spent in the worthwhile way and a feeling of service rendered. Yes, success is a frame of mind ... "Success is in the way you walk the paths of life each day."

It's in the little things you do, and in the things you say.

Success is not in getting rich, or rising high to fame.

It's not alone in winning goals, which all men hope to claim.

Success is being big of heart, and clean and broad in mind;

It's being faithful to your friends, and to the stranger, kind.

It's in the children whom you love, and all they learn from you;

Success depends on character, and every thing you do ..."

Mary P. Sheets, 78

Mother Of Mayor

A funeral service for Mary Pauline (Walker) Sheets, 78, the mother of Mayor James Sheets, was conducted Monday at the Jefferson Church of the Nazarene, Jefferson, Penn., by the Rev. Gerald A. Law.

Mrs. Sheets died Aug. 16 after suffering a heart attack in Clarksville, Penn.

She had spent her summers in Clarksville and her winters at her daughter's home in Quincy since her husband, Harry Sheets, died in 1975.

Mary Sheets was active in the Jefferson Nazarene Church in the summer and attended the South Weymouth Nazarene Church while she spent her winters in Quincy.

Although she had been legally blind for the past 20 years, Mrs. Sheets continued to play the piano. She also sang in the "Early Birds," a singing group at the South Shore Center for the Blind. Besides being a homemaker, she was a union activist with her husband, a coal miner who died of black lung disease.

She raised her children in what is known as a coalpatch, a neighborhood of homes built by a coal company in a region where the company often runs everything from the general store to medical care.

Mayor Sheets said he might never have heard of the city of Quincy if not for his mother.

After graduating from high school, Sheets landed a Sheets went on to teach government at Quincy College and served 16 years as Ward 4 councillor before he was elected mayor in 1989.

Arthur B. Curtis, 92

Veteran Of WW I, WW II

And Entrepreneur

A private funeral service and burial was held for Arthur Bicknell Curtis, 92, of Quincy, a veteran of World War I and World War II and an entrepreneur who died Aug. 14 at Quincy Hospital.

Quincy, North Begin Football Workouts Aug. 26

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Quincy and North Quincy football teams will begin full-scale workouts next Monday morning, Aug. 26, with double sessions.

The Presidents and Red Raiders will be preparing for their second season in the Old Colony League. Last year Quincy finished a close second in the league with an 8-1-1 record, its best since the undefeated team of 1970.

Actually the teams report today (Thursday) for three days of conditioning without pads.

Last season Quincy overcame a 17-0 deficit to upset North, 23-17, to finish at 8-1-1, while North finished at 4-6, only the third losing season in Ken McPhee's tenure as coach.

Eight-year Quincy coach Jack Raymer will greet the Presidents for the start of full-scale drills Monday at 8:30 a.m. and the squad will practice at Faxon Field until 11:30 p.m. The players return for an afternoon workout from 1 to 3:30.

Raymer will have the same coaching staff as a year ago. Bob Noble, Bob Keuther and Billy Shaughnessy will be the varsity assistants and Jack Green is back as freshmen coach.

Quincy is scheduled to open at home against non-league rival Marshfield Friday night, Sept. 20, but Raymer feels the opening on the road.

"It is doubtful that the new aluminum benches will be ready by our first game," he said. "Three of our first four games are at home and I hope we can get them in, because four of our last six games are on the road."

The Presidents will play their first league game Saturday afternoon, Sept. 27, at Bridgewater-Raynham.

In addition to an outstanding nucleus of veterans, Raymer has graduates of last year's powerful freshmen team, Quincy's best in some time.

"We had some outstanding players on the freshmen team but I don't expect any to make the varsity, at least as starters, because we have many veterans back," said the coach. "I honestly feel we will have our best line this year since I have been coach."

North, under 10-year coach McPhee, will report Monday morning at 8:15 and work out at Kavanagh Field until 11:30. After a lunch break, the squad will meet from 12:30 to 1 and return for afternoon sessions from 1:15 to 3:45.

Both schools will follow their practice schedules until the opening of school.

McPhee also has a fine nucleus of veterans in addition to several good prospects from last year's fine freshmen team.

He has the same assistants as a year ago with Peter Chrisom, Pete Zoia, Tom Carter and Earl Metzler back as varsity assistants, but Chris Morton has replaced Kevin Kelly as freshmen coach. Trainer Michelle Connolly is also back.

North will open the season against a new opponent, Acton-Boxboro, at Acton, Friday night, Sept. 20.

There will be more than the usual interest in this game as A-B's coach is Bill Maver, former Quincy all-scholastic and coach and a former University of Connecticut standout.

"I am looking forward to this game as North Quincy's quarterback, Mark Taylor, is my nephew," Maver said. "We will really be gunning for him."

A-B will already have a game under its belt when it meets North as it is playing 11 games and will play Canton the week before the North game.

"This should be a real test for us as I understand Bill has a strong team with many returnees," said McPhee.

Acton-Boxboro, which replaces Somerset, and Durfee are the non-league opponents of North, while Marshfield and Medford are Quincy's non-league opponents.

North's first league game will be at home against Falmouth, Friday night, Sept. 27 at 7 o'clock.

Police, City Officials Win

Koch Doubleheader Raises $1,700 For MDA

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The Quincy Police Department and the City Officials were victorious on the field but the big winner was the Muscular Dystrophy Association at fourth annual Dick Koch Memorial MDA Softball Doubleheader held Aug. 8 at Adams Field.

The doubleheader raised $1,700 for the fight against muscular diseases. Since the charitable event was founded by the late Dick Koch 15 years ago, the doubleheader has raised $21,700 for MDA.

In the first game, the Police defeated the Quincy Fire Department 17-3 in a game which included timely hitting and superb defense. The victory extended the Police's winning streak to seven games.

In the nightcap, the City Officials edged the News Media All-Stars, 17-16 in an exciting and entertaining contest. The win gives the officials an 8-7 lead in the series.

After leading 5-1 in the third inning, the Police scored six runs over the next two innings to take a commanding 11-1 lead. The men in blue added six more runs over the next two innings. The Fire squad could only muster two more runs for the 17-3 final.

Steve Igo got the win for the police, pitching four fine innings. He also hit a home run. Other offensive stars for the Police were Bruce Tobin and Peter Gallagher who had two doubles apiece, Ed Nolan (single and double), Ed Kusser (single and double), Barry DeFranco (two singles), Tony Balzano (two singles) and Billy Brabazon (a triple).

Also playing for the Police were Jerry O'Rourke, Richie Gibbons, Jim Buhl, Bill Shea, Brian Tobin, Paul Preziosi, Richard Tapper and John Ryan.

Leading the Fire hit parade were Ed Ellis and Paul Andrew who each had two singles apiece. Stevie Graham, Mike Hobin, Paul Leonard, Dan DeCoste, Domenic Conso and Fred Baldock all had one single apiece.

Other Fire players were Steve Sweet, Steve Shaw, Bob Servaes, and Bill LaRaia. The Fire squad also turned two double plays in the infield.

The second game was a thrilling affair featuring solid hitting and key defensive plays on both sides. The lead changed hands four times and in the end, the officials held on for a 17-16 win.

Trailing 13-11 in the top of the sixth inning, the News Media scored twice to tie the game. With Dan Jaehnig of The Quincy Sun and Eric Schwarz, formerly of The Patriot Ledger, on first and second, John Rounseville of the Sun connected for a RBI-single. Sun Editor Bob Bosworth hit a long sacrifice fly to right field to knock in the second run.

The officials then snuffed out the media's rally with a great defensive play and some nifty pitching. With the go-ahead run on second, team MVP Liam Colleran of The Patriot Ledger ripped a line drive up the middle which was snared by shortfielder Mike Shaheen. Winning pitcher Ray Cattaneo then struck out Eric Ramstrom of WJDA on a called third strike to end the inning.

In the seventh, the News Media filled the bases but managed to score only once to take a short-lived 14-13 lead. Brendan Daly of The Patriot Ledger, Steve Kavanagh of The Quincy Sun and Ed Fiddler of

MEDIA'S JACK LOW of Quincy Community Television grabs the throw in an attempt to tag out Asst. City Solicitor Jim Timmons at third base during the second game of the Dick Koch Memorial Softball Doubleheader. The ball was knocked loose and Timmons was safe.

QCTV singled to load up the bases. Dana Rapold of QCTV hit a fielder's choice, driving in the only run.

In the bottom of the seventh, the City Officials struck for three runs, the last of which proved to be the game-winner. With one out, Shaheen drew a walk and was replaced by pinch runner Ron Mariano, a member of the school committee. Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien hit a grounder to second which struck Mariano for the second out of the inning.

With Chretien at first, Cattaneo singled down the right field line, sending Chretien to third. Planning Director Richard Meade scorched a line drive which was nearly caught by first baseman Mike Benjamin. Meade's infield single tied the game at 14-14. School Committeeman Steve Durkin then connected for a double, scoring Cattaneo.

With runners on second and third, Councillor Tim Cahill singled up the middle. Meade scored easily and the throw from centerfield to get Durkin was in time but a bit high.

In the eighth, neither team scored. The highlight of the inning was a running barchanded catch by Shaheen on a short fly ball to left.

In the ninth, the News Media rallied but fell short. With one out and Colleran at second, Daly hit an RBI-double. Kavanagh then singled, putting runners at first and third.

Fiddler followed with a fielder's choice, scoring Daly. Rapold singled, putting runners at first and second. With the tying run at second, Benjamin hit a long fly ball to Cahill in left to end the game.

Pacing the City Officials' hitting attack were Richie Meade (three hits, including a 2-run homer and 3 RBI), Councillor Michael Cheney (three singles, 1 RBI), Councillor Tom Fabrizio (double, 2 RBI), Councillor Charles Phelan, (single, 2 RBI), Cattaneo (three singles), Cahill (single, 2 RBI), Durkin (double, 1 RBI) and Chretien (single, 1 RBI).

Dana Childs and Mary Jane Powers.

The officials were managed by Asst. City Clerk Joe Shea.

Legion All-Stars 1-1 In Owens Tourney

The Quincy Legion All-Stars defeated West Haven, Ct., 6-2, Sunday to even their record at 1-1 in the annual Tom Owens Memorial Baseball Tournament at Adams Field.

In its opener, the Legion stars, comprised of players who have completed their eligibility from Morrisette, Quincy and Wollaston posts, lost to Watertown, 10-1.

The annual tournament includes teams from the Boston Park League, Cranberry League and Inter-City League in addition to independent teams.

Gary Rawdon went the distance in the win over West Haven, giving up one earned run and striking out seven. He also had a RBI single.

Mike Bayliss had two defensive gems and started two double plays from his shortstop position. Also contributing hits were Dave Gamsby, Eric DeBoer, Bayliss, Wayne McCulley and Tony Anderionis.

Bayliss was the starting pitcher against Watertown but received little support as errors gave Watertown seven unearned runs after Bayliss had struck out five of the first seven batters he faced.

Billy Warren and Chad McMahon pitched well in relief. Jim Maloney had two hits for Quincy and Ron Boudreau and Pat O'Donoghue one each. Gamsby reached twice and stole a base.

"We are a little over our heads in this tournament, but the kids put on a good show," said coach Ed Spring, who has entered a team every year in the tournament. "It gives them a chance to play against established players who play in the top leagues around. It is my hope that maybe some of the players will catch the eye of someone who will be able to help their baseball future."

'Bob' Leaves City With $300,000 Cleanup Bill

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Hurricane Bob left behind a $200,000 to $300,000 cleanup bill for city officials, draining Quincy's free cash account down to approximately $750,000, Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday.

Sheets said the city has paid $125,000 in machine rentals and private contractors and another $80,000 in overtime to city workers associated with the cleanup. With still some cleaning up being done by municipal employees, the mayor said the total bill could come to $300,000.

Hurricane Bob cleanup bills are being paid out of the city's free cash account. The account was certified at $1 million by the state earlier this month.

"With Hurricane Bob, our free cash account will probably drop down to $750,000. We thought our free cash would be certified at $500,000. I'm thankful it was more," the mayor said.

Due to the excessive amount of debris left in the streets in the wake of last week's hurricane, Sheets ordered the city's cleanup and disposal be stepped up.

As a result, Public Works Commissioner David Colton obtained a pistol driven grinder from the New England Recycling Company of Taunton. The equipment consists of a large-scale grinder with motor, hydraulic piston (feeder) grapple hook and operator capable of processing 50 cubic yards per hour and limbs up to 12 inches in diameter.

Colton said the chipping machinery cost the city $10,000.

"This is considerably less than the $81 a ton cost of pumping the debris into a private landfill," he said.

City cleanup crews assisted by hired equipment picked up overturned trees, downed limbs and delivered them to a site near the closed landfill. There, the grinder processes the material which will supplement the city's leaf compost stock pile for citizen use, erosion control and other city projects.

Sheets praised all the city department's which responded to the natural disaster which knocked out power for thousands of residents, many for several days.

In particular, he noted the quick action of Police Chief Francis Mullen, Acting Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, Colton, Emergency Management Director Tony Siciliano and City Council President Ted DeCristofaro who filled in as acting mayor while Sheets attended the funeral of his mother out of state.

"I thought all city departments did an excellent job. Certainly we were prepared for the storm. I think we responded swiftly to clean up after the storm," Sheets said.

Mullen and Gorman have issued reports to the mayor regarding their respective department's response to the emergency. Colton will also file a report after the cleanup is completed, the mayor said.

After the DPW report is submitted, Sheets said he will meet with department heads to critique the city's response to the hurricane. One area the mayor said he wants to improve on is communication between department heads and elected city officials.

Mayor, Application Washington-Bound Sheets In Final Pitch For Lexington

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

After six months of intense preparation, the city's application for the soon-to-be-decommissioned U.S.S. Lexington will be delivered to Navy officials next Tuesday, and Mayor James Sheets plans to make one more personal pitch for the carrier.

The 200-page application for the Lexington will be delivered by Bernice Mader, the mayor's administrative assistant who has spearheaded the city's bid for the Quincy-built carrier. Since February, city officials have worked countless hours on the application in an effort to take custody of the ship after it is decommissioned in November.

A decision on the carrier's fate could be made as early as the middle of next month. In addition to Quincy, three other cities, Pensacola, Fla., Mobile, Ala., and Corpus Christi, Texas, are vying for the carrier which was built at the former Fore River shipyard in the early 1940s.

City officials want to berth the decorated carrier on a five to seven acre site in the Town River. There, the ship would be converted into a shipbuilding and maritime museum. Officials hope the museum would attract as many as 300,000 tourists a year.

Quincy's application outlines cultural, educational and historical uses for the ship if the city takes custody. For example, the bid includes a proposal for a college maritime biology program on the carrier.

The application also includes 40 pages of financial budget projections prepared by Paul Olsen of the Harvard Consulting Group. "He's drafted a financial plan for five years and in that he's looked at the best and worst case scenarios. He's given us a very realistic picture of the fiscal soundness of the Lexington proposal," Sheets said.

Last week, Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci signed into law a bill which establishes the Lexington Development Corporation. The legislation allows the corporation to bond up to $10 million.

Officials estimate the cost to bring the ship to Quincy and convert the carrier into a museum at $5 million.

The application also includes a 20 to 25 page advertising plan drafted by Hill, Holiday marketing agency and petitions with more than 100,000 signatures of people who want to ship to return to Quincy.

Besides the application, a model of the Lexington maritime museum will be brought to Washington by Bill MacMullen, a land use planner who designed the model. MacMullen, of Devine and Associates of Scituate, designed the model at his own expense.

He also taking an Amtrak train at his own expense to bring the model to Washington.

Sheets called the city's application a "superb document" which will be tough to beat. "We feel it would be difficult for anyone to have a better application than us. This is a superb document. In terms of the application, we're in great shape."

The mayor is planning to meet Mader and MacMullen in Washington next Tuesday. Sheets will be in Pennsylvania sometime next week for family reasons. His mother, Mary Sheets of Clarksville, Penn., died Aug. 16.

While in Washington, Sheets said he hopes to meet with Senators Ted Kennedy and John Kerry, Cong. Brian Donnelly as well as White House aides Andy Card and Ron Kaufman to make one more lobbying effort.

He also plans to meet with officials from the U.S. Department of the Interior regarding a park system in Quincy.

The city's bid will also get some national exposure. Cable News Network (CNN) will interview

Mary 'Jane' Powers Kicks Off Re-Election Campaign

Mary "Jane" Powers, 16, Roberta Ln., Wollaston, announces her bid for a four-year term on the Quincy School Committee.

Powers, 39, was elected to the school committee in 1989 to replace the late Christopher Kennedy. She announced her candidacy at a recent kick-off fundraiser-Ice Cream Sundae Party at the Beechwood Community Life Center.

The event was aimed not only as a political fundraiser but also a family oriented activity. "This reaffirms my belief that a strong family and community value system is important to the education and future success of Quincy's children," she said.

Powers outlined 10 educational issues that she will focus her attention to if re-elected. They are:

- Redesign and implementation of a revised budget format and document in order to re-establish fiscal accountability throughout the system. "I will continue to strive to concentrate resources at the classroom level and distribute them fairly across the district."

- Selection of a new school superintendent whom she called a "crucial team member. I feel this individual must be able to be effective change agent who will be able to creative positive energy and inspire teachers, parents and students to strive for excellence."

- "I will continue to be an advocate for proactive problem solving approaches and long-range planning," she said.

- Evaluation and implementation of a transportation user fee. "Maintenance of student safety and parental or guardian responsibility must be taken into account as well as the system's accountability to finance the service."

- School system evaluation and restructuring. "Given limited financial resources and increasing operational costs I fully support a combined internal as well as external review by educational consultants, school administrators, teachers, parents and community groups in helping design Quincy's public school system for the future. I would qualify my endorsement of any recommendations and redesign only if it were predicated on increasing educational standards and not strictly a budget reducing maneuver," Powers said.

- Curriculum support and revisions. "As a member of the E.D.C. I will continue to research and support curriculum strengthening measures in order to fully prepare our students for the challenges they will face in their community and in their workplace."

- Powers said it is important for school committee members to be visibly more involved and accessible to the public. "I plan to stay in tune to the needs and concerns of parents, teachers and students by continuing to attend school activities, sports events and community meetings. I will continue to be available by telephone and respond to messages in a timely manner."

- Support maintenance and repair our school buildings. "I have supported seeking bonding as a method to fund needed repairs and safety renovations. Amounts approved are not sufficient to perform all of the needed repairs. We must review building use and needed renovations when evaluating any reorganization proposals," she said.

- Quincy College. "There are several complex issues the school committee needs to consider: college governance and oversight and accountability of tenure status are two that need to be addressed and resolved."

- Financial support for public education. "I worked to help defeat Question 3 on the ballot last fall because of the devastating effects it would have had on local communities and the harm it would have created in an already fragile educational setting."

- "I would support placing a Proposition 2 and a half override on the ballot to fund education and allow the Quincy public the opportunity to determine the importance of a strong school system," Powers said. "Failing an override I would support state or federal revisions in the funding of local education with less reliance on property taxes as the chief funding source."

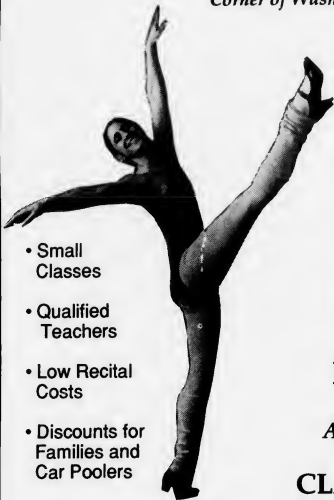

Powers and her husband, Bill Powers, have two children, Meghan, age 12, a student at Central Middle School; and Caitlin, 9, a student at Wollaston Elementary School.

Powers graduated from Notre Dame Academy in Tyngsboro and received a B.S. in nursing from Northeastern University and an M.S.N. in primary care from Simmons College.

She is active in many community organizations, including Beechwood Community Life Center, Quincy Citizens for Quality Education and several parent-teacher organizations.

What's important to a child's education? NOT TUXEDOS, THAT'S FOR SURE!

This year, it was reported that school officials chaperoning proms had charged tuxedo rentals to the school system.

Especially in tough financial times, the limited resources we have must be directed to educational needs, not frills.

At Steve Durkin's insistence, the School Committee put an end to the practice of paying for tuxedos. The Committee is also changing the budget format to ensure that every single dollar is accounted for.

Walsh Scores 94 On Chief's Exam

Deputy Chief Joseph Walsh has been notified by the state Department of Personnel Administration that he scored a 94 on the recent civil service chief's examination, an upgrade of one point.

State Personnel Director Elizabeth Dennis told Walsh in a letter that he received one additional point to his previous score as a result of an exam audit. The audit showed an error in the exam.

The letter also stated individual scores and ranking on the list will be re-established as a result on this action. With his new score, Walsh still tops the chief's list.

Acting Chief Thomas Gorman, who also took the chief's examination, scored an 82. Gorman's score did not change.

Mayor James Sheets is expected to make the new appointment within the next two weeks after interviewing each candidate.

The mayor, who is awaiting a certified service list which will permit the appointed, declined to say whether a one-point increase in Walsh's grade would affect his decision.

Readers Respond To A Family In Need

Thanks to the generosity of Quincy residents, a little boy may soon be able to have an operation to help restore his sight.

The community responded tremendously to an article in the July 25 edition of The Quincy Sun concerning 17-month old Marko Vukovic who is blind as a result of premature birth.

Marko has already undergone four surgeries, two on each eye, and is in need of additional surgery to restore his vision. The operations cost between $10,000 and $15,000 each.

Quincy Sun readers have donated some $3,000 of the $10,000 needed for the surgery, and the family couldn't be happier.

Marko is the son of Zoran and Marica Vukovic of Quincy and formerly of Yugoslavia.

The Vukovics have already used up all their financial resources, over $60,000, for Marko's previous operations and they cannot appeal to the Yugoslavian government for help because of the civil war in that country.

Out of desperation for their son, they turned to their new community asking for help and are overjoyed by the response. Quincy residents made contributions ranging from $1 in cash to $100 checks.

The Vukovics would like to thank the following residents who made donations to benefit their son:

Alma Tedeschi, Constance E. Westerman, David J. Blaton, Joan L. Raia, Edward J. Davis, Ann M. Carroll, Kathleen Koch, Anna Sappelli, Ellen S. Casagrande, Margaret M. Drake, Catherine McCallum, Enid Lubarsky, Jean M. Breen, Lauretta Whelton, William H. Lounsbury, Culeen Donahue, Thomas C. Solmonte, Theresa A. Gentile, Cara M. McNally; Marguerite A. Noonan, Bernice Ann Murphy, Joan C. Hansen, Marjorie C. Costello, Barbara A. Connors, Dorothy C. Kelly, and Elizabeth A. Boorack.

"To all our heartfelt thanks," Zoran and Marica write, "as well as to those whose names have not reached us."

The Vukovics are still in need of money for Marko's operation and are accepting donations of any size. To contribute to the cause send donations to Zoran Vukovic, care of South Shore Bank, 1400 Hancock St., Quincy MA 02169.

An Early Election Night

If the special voter registration sessions are any barometer, the Sept. 17 city preliminary election turnout will be on the light side.

Maybe mighty light.

"It is the deadead we have ever had," says City Clerk John Gillis referring to in-field and City Hall registration.

Three weeks of 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. evening sessions on location throughout the city and other day sessions in the field plus a special 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. one at City Hall last Saturday produced a whopping 32 new voters.

Yesterday (Wednesday) was last call for any new voters to register for the preliminary election. They had from 8:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. to do it.

"Usually we get 200, 300, or 400 on the last day," Gillis notes. "But I don't know about this year."

The special evening sessions were held at the Fore River Clubhouse, Quincy Point; Montclair School, Montclair; Lincoln Hancock School, South Quincy; Quincy Community United Methodist Church, Wollaston and the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, North Quincy.

Gillis thinks the lack of a mayoral preliminary—the usual main bout—is the reason for the lukewarm interest.

Only 14 names will appear on the preliminary ballot: 11 for School Committee and three for Ward 6 City Council.

There is no City Council at-large preliminary and no Council preliminary in Wards 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5.

BECAUSE THERE ARE only two contests, Gillis thinks the final results should be in early Sept. 17.

"It should be all wrapped up by 9:15," he says.

He figures the election will cost roughly $44,000 or about some $6,000 less than the usual preliminary which runs over $50,000.

There will be 30 fewer election workers—six instead of the usual seven at each of the 30 precincts.

This will be the 17th election since Quincy abandoned the old paper ballots and went to punch cards in 1984.

The new computer system cost the city an initial investment of $125,000.

Gillis estimates the punch cards have saved the city at least $5,000 each election. With 17 elections that would add up to at least $85,000.

"They are well on their way to paying for themselves," he notes.

And that makes him happy. He's the one that pushed for them.

WARD 6 COUNCIL candidate Joanne Condon

Walsh has a Nifty Fifties record hop fundraiser set for Saturday, Aug. 31, 8 p.m. to midnight at Amelia's Restaurant, Marina Bay. Refreshments, and prizes for best costumes and dancers. Tickets are $19.57. And if that price puzzles you there's a simple answer. It was 1957 that Walsh graduated from North Quincy High School. Get it?

A FUNDRAISER FOR George Miller, candidate for City Council at-large, will be held Thursday, Sept. 12, 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. at the Torre Dei Passeri Social Club, 252 Washington St., Quincy. Tickets are $10 per person and are available at the door or by calling 479-7638.

Takes Issue With Anselmo's Political Advertising

Editor, The Quincy Sun: I cannot keep silent any longer. I am not accustomed to writing about people in a negative way, however Mr. Frank Anselmo has gone too far with his political advertising. Instead of focusing on anything positive he may have done on the school committee, he has chosen instead to degrade the names of his fellow committee members as a last ditch effort to regain his seat. Shame on him!

He has chosen to campaign on the issues of tuxedo expenses and preach to be the returner of God to our school system. I feel it is only fair that we shed some light on his past, since he has decided to use other people's past, including my own.

As far as the tuxedo expenses he refers to, he never felt strongly opposed to them in the past, for he signed for their approval for years on the monthly warrant sheets. He also never had a problem in taking part in the costly junket trips across the country, at the taxpayer's expense, for the past 20 years. Especially irritating, when hotel accommodations are booked, airline tickets bought for these conventions, only to be cancelled for health reasons at the last moment, so that no money can be refunded. Or how about when the opportunity arose to put middle school sports back in the budget—Mr. Anselmo chose to vote to go the Las Vegas convention instead.

If Mr. Anselmo claims to be the returner of God to our school system, then maybe he can explain when a night school student begged for the attention of the school committee, because she was indecently fondled by a school administrator, he chose to vote against any investigation.

Over my past six years of service, I have had trouble understanding Mr. Anselmo's seat as a part-time or full-time one, since he seldom attends the meeting. I have had trouble understanding his points of view, as he often argues on one side of an issue, only to end up voting on the other, and why he addresses issues, discussed and dealt with previously, only to be brought up again needlessly because he still thinks we're on them.

The committee and audience sigh, let him spout, and then all try to get back to the business at hand.

You see, it's easy to focus on the negative. It is too bad Mr. Anselmo hasn't decided to highlight his positive aspects in his advertising. Maybe he doesn't have too many. Maybe it's time to hang it up!

SPECIAL DIETS

While a patient is recovering from surgery or illness, the physician may recommend a "bland" diet, a "soft" diet, or a more restricted regimen such as clear liquids only. Along with medication, bland diets are still used as therapy for peptic ulcer attacks. However, many patients and more than a few doctors are unsure as to what's allowed on a bland or soft diet. Bland diets, exclude anything excessively sweet or spicy, as well as coffee, strong tea, and alcoholic beverages. Carbonated drinks are taboo, as are nuts, coconut, seeds, raisins, cold cuts, and salted or spiced meats. A soft bland diet also omits whole grain breads and cereals, gravies and dressings, raw vegetables of all kinds, and all seasonings except salt. Bananas and cooked pureed fruits may be eaten, but no other raw fruit. Liquid diets generally mean clear liquids, including weak sweetened tea, diluted apple juice, broth, etc. P.S. Flat ginger ale is often suggested as a stomach settling drink. To flatten it, stir in a teaspoon of sugar.

Remember... the food you eat is one of the most important factors in your overall health. This column is presented in the interest of better health by COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE. ## 99 Granite Street:

From Eyesore To Attractive New Seniors Housing Facility

By ROBERT
BOSWORTH

What had been a rusting, unfinished office building in the heart of Quincy Center will soon become an attractive, senior citizen apartment facility.

O'Connell Management, headed by Quincy Businessman Peter O'Connell, secured a $4 million loan from South Shore Bank to convert an unfinished office building at 99 Granite St. into a 52-unit elderly housing facility.

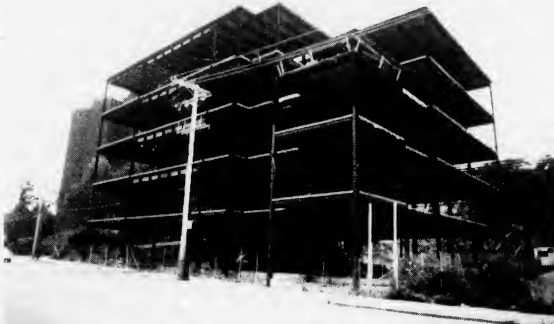

For approximately two years, the office building project sat idle, another victim of the soft real estate market. The rusting steel skeleton visible from Granite and Whitwell Sts. and as far as Hancock St. had become an eyesore for neighbors and officials who longed for the project's completion.

Enter O'Connell and South Shore Bank. With the bank's financial backing and O'Connell's management and construction team, the housing facility is on the threshold of opening. O'Connell's company began construction April 1 and the new building is expected to open in mid-September.

O'Connell said converting 99 Granite St. into senior citizen apartments made good business sense because his company manages three other elderly housing buildings in the area. Hancock Court and Hancock House on School St. are within close proximity and 125 Granite St. is adjacent to the new building.

"We were approached by South Shore Bank concerning 99 Granite St. as to what our ideas might be on the project," O'Connell said. "We took a completely different approach realizing that our own property, Granite Place next door with 270 units, and both Hancock House and Hancock Court being right across the parking area, that we really had a management critical mass there of people and personnel who were in the business of catering to an elderly clientele.

"So we approached the project quite differently from anybody else. We priced it out to convert it to a senior housing project realizing we could be very competitive in managing and running the property and because it was contiguous to Granite Place, we had certain advantages because of right-a-ways and common boundaries."

AFTER: 99 Granite St., with a brick and stucco exterior, is scheduled to open as Quincy's newest senior citizen community in mid-September. Seventy-five percent of 52 units are already leased.

Before pressing ahead, O'Connell Management hired M.G. Ross Associates, an architectural firm, to determine whether the project was structurally feasible. "Overnight they produced layouts which indicated to us that the building could be successfully converted and we made a proposal to South Shore Bank," said Project Manager Larry Corbeil.

The proposed office space was designed into 52 housing units: 14 two-bedrooms, 37 one-bedrooms and one studio.

"We've basically taken a commercial property and turned it into housing using the existing emergency stairway system encompassing a new exterior skin, encompassing a new roof system and have taken the floor area of what was to be office space and converted into one or two-bedroom units," Corbeil explained.

The exterior is predominantly brick with a stucco material which allows architectural contours. The roof is a standing seam metal roof with a weathered-copper effect.

"The architect went to great lengths to try to make

Quincy's Yesterdays

Despite Polio Threat Schools To Open

School Supt. Dr. Paul Gossard announced that the prevalence of infantile paralysis, or polio, on the South Shore would not delay the opening of Quincy schools.

Dr. Gossard said he was advised by medical people that it would be useless to close the schools if other public gathering places were allowed to remain open.

Meanwhile, four new cases of polio, including one "bulbar," the most serious kind, were reported in Quincy over the weekend, raising to 14 the number of cases at City Hospital.

CHLORINATION PLANT

Four sites in Quincy, including a favored one on Black's Creek, were under consideration for the proposed $120,000 state shellfish chlorination plant.

SQUANTUM PARK SOUGHT

Mayor Charles A. Ross was negotiating with the city of Boston for a 10-year lease on Squantum Park as a municipal recreation area, long sought by Squantum residents.

HEALTH CENTER SNAGGED

A hitch developed in plans to build a municipal health center on Hancock St. when plans to take land belonging to the Woodward School were challenged by Dartmouth College, a residuary beneficiary.

Condon Walsh Speaks At Squantum Coffee Hour

A coffee hour was held recently at the Nickerson Legion Post, Squantum, for Joanne Condon Walsh, candidate for Ward 6 City Councillor.

The coffee hour was sponsored by Bill Geary, Marcia McCarthy, Bill Houlihan, Judy Levering, Jon Kinsley, Jim Stamos and Tim McGillicuddy, residents of Squantum.

Concerns of the neighborhood were addressed by Condon Walsh which included recreational activities for young people, development of area business locations, public safety issues and accessibility of elected officials.

She cited some of her past accomplishments as Ward 6 councillor including buzzers for the blind at major intersections, smoke detectors in residential older dwellings, the formation of the Atlantic and Squantum Community Centers and the roll-back of liquor establishment closings from 2 a.m. to 1 a.m. in Quincy.

"One of the most important roles of a Ward 6 councillor is to have an awareness of neighborhood concerns," she said. "Your accessibility to residents and business people and your performance in addressing their concerns is your number one job. I feel that I have demonstrated with my past experience and record an ability to 'get the job done' in an efficient and timely manner. We need a representative as Ward 6 councillor that can work with the community and for the community now! We need an experienced, qualified candidate," said Condon Walsh.

Along with door knocking, Condon Walsh is continuing her circuit of coffee hours throughout the district to meet the residents and listen to their concerns.

King Urges School Committee To Rescind $20,000 For Study

Calling their decision a case of misplaced priorities, School Committee candidate Margaret "Peggy" King recently urged the committee and Supt. Robert Ricci to rescind an appropriation of $20,000 earmarked for a long range education study of the school system.

At the Aug. 21 school committee meeting, King told the board, "On Aug. 10, I attended the bid opening on the long range educational study of the Quincy public schools. I was quite surprised that I was the only person there other than the city's purchasing agent.

"I was even more surprised to find that there was only one bid. In a geographical area where there is so much educational expertise, I found it rather unusual to find only one consulting firm was interested in bidding.

"I feel that there are several important issues at stake here and that the school committee should proceed cautiously," Kelly said.

First, Kelly said, "It doesn't seem like good business practice to accept the only bid made when there were so many educational consulting firms on the prospective bidders list."

Second, Kelly said, "This long range study appears to be a strategic planning proposal since it looks to a vision of a future educational system that Quincy would like to have. It seems to me that it would be more appropriate for the new superintendent and the school committee to develop this kind of strategic planning jointly when a new superintendent can provide necessary input."

Third, she said, "The consultants listed on the bid are Dr. Sperber of Boston University and two other gentlemen who worked on the study of the Chelsea schools for Boston University. I would not want the citizens of Quincy to think that our schools were in as desperate straits as was Chelsea. We can not afford to lose any more confidence in our educational system by the citizens of this city."

Fourth, King said, "You are voting tonight to cut $450,000 from the school budget. I am sure that you can find a much more fiscally responsible way to expend $20,000 which would be directly related to furthering the educational needs of our students here and now rather than expend it on a study of future goals.

"In conclusion, I would urge the school committee and the superintendent to refuse this bid and rescind its previous vote to expend $20,000 to conduct such a study."

At the conclusion of the meeting, King said, "The question of a new superintendent was again left in limbo until the second meeting in September. I do not understand why the outgoing superintendent should be setting the goals for a new superintendent as this study would do."

She also said she was "disappointed" the committee did not delete the $20,000 study from the school budget. The money "could have been more effectively used to retain a teacher or for purchase of basic supplies and library books," King said.

"Once again, this indicates misplaced priorities on what we spend our limited funds for. How can we worry about future goals when we have so many needs to meet now, especially when we have to make $450,000 in cuts," she added.

To The Citizens of Quincy:

Greetings, good cheer, peace and prosperity,

This is to remind you that I am in a battle against 10 candidates, 3 of whom to be elected, but in my case after serving 29 years in that capacity, I am asking you for your vote to be reelected.

As you know, I had resigned on account of temporary sickness, but I can assure you I am now fully recovered.

I don't have a committee to raise money for me -- I never did. All I have to offer you the citizens is my proven record during those 29 years. That proof will come to you later, but before election time.

For now, realizing that it cost a lot of money to advertise, why not get some educational value from these dollars. Also, the more we learn the more we realize that education is a never-ending process and, being mortal, we will never know it all.

That being the case, why not consider the most wonderful creation of God, the human body.

Think, all the scientists with their PHD's, combined, and with all their papers and blue prints and researchers, cannot duplicate a human body unless they use God's formula, if you know what I mean.

To illustrate, take a look at these items taken from "Readers Digest Book of Facts."

THE AMAZING HUMAN BODY

The brain remains active to some degree around the clock, and each day triggers hundreds of millions of impulses - more than all the world's telephone systems put together

The body of the average adult contains 79 pints of water about 65% of a person's weight

Nerve impulses to and from the brain travel as fast as some racing cars. The fastest impulses recorded, in experiments carried out in 1966, traveled at nearly 180 M.P.H.

Nerve impulses move slightly more slowly in elderly people at up to 150 m.p.h.

The heart generates enough muscle power in one day to lift a small car about 50 FEET.

"From Readers Digest Book of Facts"

So it all boils down to education. Education or else?

"All who have meditated on the art of governing mankind have been convinced that the fate of empires depends on the education of youth. Educated men are as much superior to uneducated men as the living are to the dead."

ARISTOTLE

"Upon the subject of education, not presuming to dictate any plan or system respecting it, I can only say that I view it as the most important subject which we, as a people, can be engaged in."

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

"On the diffusion of education among the people rest the preservation and perpetuation of our free institutions."

DANIEL WEBSTER

"A human being is not, in any proper sense, a human being till he is educated."

HORACE MANN

Yes, good citizens of Quincy I'd rather spend the rest of my life helping the educational process of our young people than in any other way. In so doing I feel that I am paying back some of the blessings I have received, in spite of my travails.

I rest my case -- the decision is yours. At the right time, please vote for Frank Anselmo for School Committee.

In 29 years I have not betrayed you. You can trust me.

In the drawing for position on the ballot I am second from the bottom. Let your vote take me to the top.

to the School Committee

George Miller Announces Bid For Councillor-At-Large

George F. Miller, 120 Sumner St., announces his candidacy for councillor-at-large.

Miller, an attorney in a Boston-based law office, said a major issue affecting Quincy citizens now and in the immediate future is "the constant reduction in the budgets of the police, fire and school departments." If elected, he said one of his top priorities would be "to strongly oppose any further cuts in funding for these essential services and to wage an aggressive campaign to restore these services to a level that the citizens of Quincy expect and deserve."

Despite budget cutbacks, Miller said, "The city must provide quality essential services rather than settling for staffing these departments with mere skeleton crews. Quincy's seniors, many of whom live alone, especially must feel safe in their homes with the assurance that their tax dollars are being used to provide them with an adequately staffed and well-equipped police and fire department."

Similarly, the parents of Quincy's children have to be assured that their tax dollars are being utilized to provide their children with a superior education."

Miller also said he is concerned about the MWRA sludge plant located at the former General Dynamics shipyard. "As your councillor-at-large, I will make the protection of residents interests with regard to the sludge plant a top priority."

"If the MWRA's sludge plant's operation results in the emission of offensive odors, as many have predicted, I shall spearhead the city's efforts and insure that the city takes any and all necessary measures to protect the health, safety and financial interests of the residents affected."

The interim sludge facility is expected to begin operation in December.

In addition, Miller said the Fore River basin is "an environmentally sensitive and extremely populated area. Clean Harbors, Procter and Gamble and the MWRA must be kept in check. It is the duty of Quincy's elected officials to ensure that the proposed reopening of Boston Edison's Edgar Station in this heavily populated area is both safe for our health and safe for the environment.

"Our elected officials must learn a lesson from our experiences with the MWRA's sludge plant," Miller said. If elected, he said he would work with Weymouth officials "to determine whether Edison's proposal is safe rather than prematurely suggesting plans that would facilitate Edison's proposal."

A graduate of Quincy public schools, Miller received a bachelor of science degree from Suffolk University and his law degree from the New England School of Law.

He and his wife, Terese Miller, are the parents of two children, Joshua, age four, and Justin, four months.

Miller is the son of the late Beatrice Bythrow Miller and the late Stanley Miller.

The Committee to elect George Miller can be reached at 35 Main St., Quincy, MA 02169 or by calling 479-7638. Stanley Miller of Quincy is chairman and Michael Sandomato of Quincy is treasurer.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Labor Day has been a national holiday since 1894. It became a holiday in recognition of those men and women who are the working segment of our nation, and that includes all but a handful of our people.

Originally it was probably meant only for those who are employed in factories ... to the workers in the nation's industrial development, but no more.

The labor force today is the secretary, the farmer, the school teacher, the office manager, the executive, the fireman, the telephone operator, plus hundreds of others.

Today we are extremely concerned about the number of unemployed, those who want jobs and can't find them, but at the same time, we need to appreciate and praise the millions who are on the job everyday.

We need to provide education, both from books and learning to do with our hands, so that every man and woman is capable of working. Above all, we must instill in our younger generation the convincing thought that there is no shame, no stigma, no disgrace in honest labor.

Perhaps more than anything else, we need also, all of us, young and old alike, to go back once more to the realization that a day's out deserves a day's pay deserves a day's work

Sheets In Final Pitch For Lexington

Sheets, Mader and MacMullen on Tuesday.

As for the city's chances to claim the carrier, the mayor replied, "I think if it goes strictly on application and ability to manage the ship after its decommissioned, I think we're in better shape than the other cities."

Sheet said he expects the Navy to announce its decision by the end of September, perhaps earlier. If Quincy is selected, the mayor said he would attend the decommissioning ceremony of the Lexington in Pensacola, Fla., its home port, Nov. 8.

The city would have to take possession of the carrier next February. Before the carrier could be brought to the Town River, the site would have to be dredged and prepared. In the interim, the carrier would be berthed by Massport in Boston.

"We have made arrangements with Massport to have a dock with security personnel at no cost to the city," Sheets said.

To help fund the enormous task of bringing the Lexington to Quincy and setting up a maritime museum, the city hopes to raise $2 million through private pledges. On its first day last Friday, $9,000 was raised, the mayor said.

In addition, a major fundraising dinner is being planned in Boston. At $1,000 per couple, Sheets hopes $300,000 to $400,000 can be raised.

"We think we'll reach the $2 million mark without too much difficulty," the mayor said, noting thousands of Navy personnel have served on the Lexington and many people helped build her.

McGlone To Announce Candidacy At Party

Jack McGlone of Weymouth, a Democratic candidate for state representative in the Third Norfolk District, will officially kick-off his candidacy at an announcement party Wednesday, Sept. 4 at 7 p.m. at the Weymouth Elks Club, 1197 Washington St.

"While going door-to-door, in the past four weeks, I have spoken with hundreds of people. The party September 4th gives me the opportunity to spend more time with them, as well as meet with those people I haven't yet spoken with," McGlone said.

The event is open to the public. There will be music, dancing and food.

McGlone said he feels his campaign is unique since he is trying to include all members of the community.

A special primary election for the seat previously held by Robert Cerasoli will be held Tuesday, Oct. 15. The final election will be held Tuesday, Nov. 12.

High School Football Playoffs Here This Fall

Quincy Veterans Memorial Stadium will be one of several sites for the new high school football playoffs which go into effect this fall.

The Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association (MIAA) voted last week to end the schoolboy Super Bowls and stage playoffs among leagues which will be in six new divisions.

Division 1 for the bigger schools will be made up of the Old Colony League, which includes Quincy and North Quincy; the Big Three Conference, Catholic Conference and Greater Boston League.

Div. 2 will have the Merrimack Valley

Conference, Bay State League, Middlesex League and Dual County League.

Making up Div. 3 will be the Eastern Athletic Conference, Atlantic Coast Conference, Northeastern Conference and Hockomock League.

Div. 4 will comprise the South Coast Conference, Cape Ann League, Catholic Central Large and South Shore League.

The Commonwealth Conference, Boston North, Boston South and Mayflower Large will make up Div. 5.

Making up Div. 6 will be the Mayflower Small, Tri-Valley League, Catholic Central Small and Catholic Suburban.

At the end of the season the four league champions in each division will be ranked by enrollment. The two biggest schools will play one game and the two smaller schools the other. The winners of those games will not meet and the season will be over.

The other playoff sites will be Boston University, Haverhill High, New Bedford High, White Stadium, Boston, Framingham High, North Attleboro High and Medford High.

After one year, the results will be evaluated and a decision made on making the new format permanent.

Quincy Sweeps Auerbach Tourney

Quincy's entry in the second annual Red Auerbach Basketball Tournament at Boston University swept all three of its games in the round robin event and finished as the tournament's only unbeaten team.

Quincy, comprised of 12 girls from next year's North Quincy girls' team, edged Somerville, 50-47, in its opener.

Trailing by 15 points in the first half, Quincy exploded for 29 second half points. Cindy Mitton led the balanced attack with 10 points while Jen Santry and Alyssa Haldoupis added eight apiece. Cindy White had seven.

Quincy then defeated Cambridge, 47-33, with Tricia Hughes scoring 17 points while Maureen McCarthy had 13. Santry again played well and scored five points and Nooreen McDonough and Regina Murphy had four each. Also playing well was Jenny White.

Quincy trailed early in the finale against Belmont but a late first half spurt led by Hughes, named the team's MVP, pushed the winners to a 14-10 lead at the half.

Quincy held Belmont to nine second half points as the defense led by Nicole Sapientza, Stephanie Olsen, Linda Connolly and Mitton was outstanding.

Hughes led the way with 19 points and Cindy White scored seven.

Quincy, Cambridge, Belmont, Woburn, Boston and Somerville entered teams in the tournament.

Quincy was coached by former Quincy girls' coach Doug MacFarlane in the opening game and by former North girls' coach Paul Bregoli in the second and third games.

Colclough New President Q-N Football Hall Of Fame

The Quincy/North Quincy Football Hall of Fame committee met recently at Morrisette Post and installed the new officers who were elected at the last meeting.

The new officers are president Jimmy Colclough (Quincy, Boston College and New England Patriots), secretary Ed Vena (North Quincy, Harvard and Suffolk Law) and treasurer Mark Giordani (Quincy and University of New Haven).

The Hall of Fame recently awarded $500 scholarships to North Quincy's Matt Swierk and Mark Bogan of Quincy.

The Hall also presented trophies to outstanding players from both schools.

The winners were running back Bogan and lineman Mike Tempesta of Quincy and running back Evan Kiley and lineman Adam Strout of North Quincy.

In his last report as Hall of Fame president, Lionel "Shine" Buckley praised all the officers, executive board and nominating committee for their assistance and particularly thanked outgoing secretary Tom Kiley, treasurer Nick Malvesti, past president Pete Zoia and past secretary-treasurer Tom Fitzgerald.

"I wish to commend Bob Sylvia for his work on the selection process, Jack Hatfield for his work on the rosters of the North Quincy 1980's teams and initiating a golf tournament and Mark Giordani, who is going to hold a softball game as a fund raiser in early September," said Buckley.

"Let us remember, though, that because of the ideas and efforts of John "Bitch" Mahoney, Quincy coach Jack Rayer and North Quincy coach Ken McPhee, the Hall of Fame was founded and has grown bigger and better each year."

Buckley said that at the present time there is $2,429.57 in the Hall's account in the Quincy Credit Union. Of that amount $1,000 is encumbered to pay for the two scholarships next January, so that the Hall has a surplus of more than $1,400.

"We appreciate the generosity of several members who donated their tickets or made donations," Buckley concluded.

Last year's inductees were Bill Phinney, Ron Wray, Vin Penzo, Ed Vena and Carl Leone III of North Quincy and John Menz, Lou Marini, Jim Russo, Paul Picarski and Preston Carroll of Quincy. Special awards went to Dan McPhee, Henry Bosworth and Jerry Perfueto.

Pickarski's brother, John, is also a member of the Hall, being inducted in 1988, and Leone's late father, Carl, was one of the Hall's first inductees.

it an attractive building because it's so prominent," O'Connell said.

Inside, residents will find modern, fully appliance kitchens, wall to wall carpeting, individual climate controls and emergency pull cords in each apartment. There is also wiring for cable in each apartment, laundry facilities on three floors, a 24-hour security monitoring system, smoke alarms and sprinkler systems.

Residents can also share in activities offered at O'Connell's other three elderly housing facilities, such as trips and parties. "The amenities are tying together the services of a number of elderly facilities that will be made available to these people.

"That's the key. We had three buildings in the downtown, now we have four," O'Connell said.

In addition, the site will have 26 parking spaces and be landscaped. Four trees, with grates, will be planted in the sidewalk in front of the building. Nearby Convent Congregational Church is providing 20 additional parking spaces for visitors.

O'Connell thanked the church board and its pastor for allowing workers to park their vehicles in the church lot, thereby giving them better access to the property. "They made the job much easier because of their cooperation."

The facility has both short and long-term economic benefits.

In the short run, the conversion has created 75 full-time construction jobs. The building will also generate much needed tax revenue for the city; the property is worth more as a finished residential facility than an empty commercial property.

With more people living closer to Quincy Center, the new apartment building should give the local economy a little lift in the not too distant future.

"A lot of people that we talk to are coming there because directly across the street, no need of cab or public transportation, there's shopping, banking, whatever they need and we've had people call from other apartments saying they are tired of taking cabs from here to there," Corbeil said.

"They want to be somewhere where they can walk across the street for their necessities and it's working." With less than a month to go before the it opens, the facility is already 75 percent rented."

O'Connell added, "It is also sort of in line with one of the earlier thoughts of the revitalization of downtown was to have as many residential units close in to the downtown so it kind of props up and supports the downtown."

"It's a very simple project. It has a short construction time frame. We originally knew that we wanted to lease it up for fall occupancy."

"We are on schedule, on budget and it will be completed by the middle of September. We are very pleased with the job. The people who are going to live there are happy to becoming downtown."

QUINCY'S NEWEST senior citizen apartment facility, 99 Granite St., is an attractive addition to the Quincy Center area. In the background to the left is Granite Place.

Mariano Calls Water Tax Unconstitutional

Ron Mariano, Democratic candidate for state representative in the Third Norfolk District, says the state's FY 92 budget provision to tax water used by the MWRA is not only unconstitutional but a shameful attempt to balance the state's budget at the expense of overburdened homeowners in the MWRA district.

"I applaud the MWRA Advisory Board's action to file a lawsuit against the governor and commonwealth," Mariano said. "Additionally, as a legislator, I would immediately begin a two-pronged attack by filing legislation to amend sections 165 and 46 of the state budget.

"It is bad enough that the cleanup of Boston Harbor is being financed by the 60 communities in the MWRA district, but now we are being asked to pay off the MDC's debt via a tax on water."

Mariano said the legislature created this problem by failing to adequately finance and oversee the operation of the old MDC's sewer operations. "Now they are not only trying to correct their previous mistakes at the expense of present-day taxpayers, but they are also attempting to raise additional tax revenue at the expense of the same ratepayers. This back-door tax policy cannot be allowed to pass."

Since Quincy and Weymouth are being asked to shoulder the sludge treatment plant and help to finance the harbor cleanup, Mariano said the two communities "deserve a state representative who will make the MWRA functions and financing a top priority."

"These little-understood outside sections of the state's budget should never have passed. Now, the affected communities must come up with additional money to pay for the lawsuit against the state. This is outrageous," he added.

Anti-Drug Song Contest Open To Quincy Musicians

Kit Figueiredo, New England coordinator for the national anti-drug coalition, "Lead the Way to a Drug-Free USA," announces an anti-drug song contest open to Quincy Musicians.

The coalition aims to popularize drug-free living by rewarding the composers of the best new anti-drug songs with free studio time.

The deadline for submitting a song, which may not have been previously published, is Oct. 31. The contest is open to any songwriter, singer or band whether professional or amateur.

Two winners will be selected, one for the best new anti-drug rap song, and one for best new anti-drug pop/rock song. Each winning songwriter will be awarded free production and recording of their song at a professional studio.

Entrants will be required to send the song on cassette with a typed transcript. All the final judging will be done by professional musicians and will be judged on the words and music only, not the quality of the recording.

A complete set of rules is available by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Kit Figueiredo, Lead the Way to a Drug-Free USA, c/o 448 Beacon St., Boston, MA. 02115.

For more information call 266-9500.

Eaton To March In National Solidarity Rally

Francis "Sandy" Eaton of Quincy, an Independent candidate for state representative in the Third Norfolk District, will participate in a national march Saturday, Aug. 31 in Washington, D.C.

Dubbed "Solidarity Day II" by the AFL-CIO, which called for the march, the rally will unite an estimated 500,000 working people from across the country. The major demands include national health care reform, the banning of permanent replacements for workers choosing to strike and the promotion of workers' rights and freedoms of association at home and abroad.

"Only partial solutions to the most basic problems our working families face can be found at the state and local level," Eaton said. "Health care, education and affordable housing require positive action and cooperation by all levels of government.

"For over a decade, the federal government has been backing away from our domestic needs. Guided by knee-jerk ideologues of supply-side Reaganomics, our federal government has found ways to force-feed the rich and their corporations, offering the excuse that crumbs would trickle down to sustain the rest of us. However, all that's tickled down is misery," he said.

"Homelessness is now a national disgrace. Measles and TB have returned as public health threats. Cute gimmicks are offered as educational reform, instead of the cold cash needed for books, buildings and staff," Eaton said. "Despair and greed have fueled the explosion of drug and alcohol abuse."

In 1981, Eaton marched with a South Shore contingent in the first Solidarity Day in Washington. Since then, he has led the staff nurses' local bargaining unit of the Massachusetts Nurse Association at Quincy Hospital, chairing the unit from 1986 to 1989.

Since 1987, Eaton has been on the MNA body which oversees its state-wide collective bargaining program.

"As an organizer and as a negotiator, I've demonstrated the leadership ability needed to represent our working families on Beacon Hill. When it comes to their needs and hopes, you'll know which side I'm on," Eaton said.

Thomas Tanner Files Papers For State Rep In Third Norfolk District

Thomas Tanner, 10 Biscayne Ave., Weymouth, a Democratic candidate for state representative in the Third Norfolk District, has filed nomination papers with Weymouth Town Clerk Franklin Fryer.

Tanner, 54, ran unsuccessfully for the seat in 1984. He received more votes in Weymouth than incumbent and former state representative Robert Cerasoli. However, Cerasoli carried Quincy by a large margin to win reelection.

In Weymouth, Tanner received 1,713 votes while Cerasoli polled 1,686. In Quincy, Tanner polled 754 while Cerasoli received 2,088.

Commenting on his chances of waging a successful campaign this year, Tanner said, "I have the incumbent a good run for his money and this time there is no incumbent."

THOMAS TANNER

The Third Norfolk District includes Quincy Point, South Quincy, a portion of Quincy Center, Weymouth Landing and South Weymouth.

Cerasoli stepped down in July after he was named the state's new inspector general. A special election was called by House Speaker Charles Flaherty to fill the seat.

A special primary election will be held Tuesday, Oct. 15. The final election will be held Tuesday, Nov. 12.

Tanner, a longtime Weymouth Public Works commissioner and technician for New England Telephone, said he is a pro-life candidate. "I will not waiver on my position."

He also said he stands up for what he believes in. "I feel the Quincy candidates are now going to have to look at all issues facing the Third Norfolk District," Tanner said. Examples he cited include the proposed Old Colony Railroad restoration and the sewer interceptor from Weymouth through Quincy to the MWRA treatment plant.

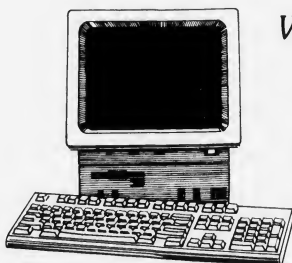

"There are many other issues that are of great concern to all the voters," he added.

Tanner urges voters to get to the polls in this special election.

Conway Company Dedicates Commercial Consultants Office

Formed to address the growing need of today's lenders to dispose of foreclosed commercial properties, the Jack Conway Co., Inc. officially dedicated the new offices of Conway Commercial Consultants in the historic Willard Building in West Quincy.

The recent ceremony was attended by more than 100 invited guests, including representatives from the banking, real estate and media communities.

During ribbon-cutting ceremonies, Chairman Jack Conway lauded the leadership of Conway Commercial Consultants.

President Kathleen Douglas whose efforts have already resulted in the sale of six major pieces of property.

"We're delighted to have Kathleen heading up this exciting new venture for us," Conway said. "We now feel we have the necessary components in place to make Conway Commercial Consultants a major player in the commercial real estate market."

Douglas, a resident of Hingham, has earned the coveted CCIM designation of the National Association of Realtors. She said the time is right for the services

Conway Commercial Consultants provides, including consultation with lenders on how to effectively market properties in an unstable economy.

"We're already seeing great response from banks looking to move their properties quickly and profitably. And I have no doubt that the Conway name is a major part of the acceptance we're receiving from a great number of lenders," Douglas said.

The Jack Conway Co., Inc., is the largest independent real estate company in Massachusetts.

Appeal To Consumers To Buy Produce Local Farmers Assess Crop Damage Caused By Hurricane Bob

By DAN JAEHNIG

Massachusetts farms sustained extensive damage from the high winds, heavy rains and flooding brought on by Hurricane Bob. Farmers, as well as state and federal agricultural officials, are assessing the extent of their damage while appealing to state residents to buy local produce.

The extent of the damage was felt by local growers who set up produce stands at the Quincy Farmers Market, located in the Hancock. Parked Area across from Quincy District Court. The market is held every Friday from 11:30 to 5 p.m. now through October.

Doris Mills of Noquochoke Farms in Westport, whose major crop is apples, reported a 70 percent loss. "One hundred and twenty mile an hour winds came right through our crops. Out of 4,000 apple trees we have, 150 of them were uprooted, and a lot of the apples were knocked down due to the wind," Mills said.

Before the hurricane struck, the farm, which grows 60 varieties of apples each year, completed harvesting only 10 varieties.

Apple specialists say the time of Hurricane Bob was unfortunate because some of the fallen fruit is unripe and cannot be used in processed products, such as cider, to offset hurricane losses.

Mills, who could not save any of her peach crop destroyed by the storm, said she can salvage her downed apple crops. "We can salvage some of the apple crop by making cider out of the ripe apples that fell and by starting to replant new trees as soon as possible," she said.

After initial planting, trees take seven years before they produce apples.

Apple grower Frank Carlson, president of the Massachusetts Fruit Growers Association, said, "Although we lost some fruit in the hurricane, there still are apples on the trees. Most growers will still offer 'pick-your-own apples.'"

The "pick-your-own" season could start as early as this week because unusually warm spring weather pushed the crop ahead of schedule. And, availability may be reduced not only by the hurricane, but also by the recent drought.

The state Department of Food and Agriculture reports the heaviest crops hit by Hurricane Bob were apples and sweet corn, the most vulnerable to wind.

Downed corn stalks will make harvesting difficult, but growers are hopeful some of the stalks will recover.

All LeBlanc, owner of Pemacra Farm in Pembroke, took a 25 percent loss due to downed corn stalks caused by last week's strong gusts.

"I've probably lost around $3,000 due to the damage. I'll have to hand pick through what's left and start replanting," said LeBlanc, one of several local growers who sell produce at the Quincy Farmers Market during the summer and early autumn.

LeBlanc and his wife, Dianne, and their daughter, Leslie, were forced to pick their crop of 12,000 pumpkins early this year to save them from blight, fungus and cracking caused by wet fields. "Hopefully, this will make up for the loss," he said.

Another local grower, David Freitas of Freitas Farms in Middleboro, said 80 percent of his blueberry plants were damaged, a loss of $15,000. He said there is no way he can salvage them.

After planting apple buds seven years ago, on his first harvest this year, he lost 30 bushels. "I have 16 acres of apple trees and I lost about five acres to the hurricane," Freitas said.

All of the farmers, some of whom depend solely on their produce, agree consumers can play a small role in helping the situation.

"If they come down and buy their produce here before going elsewhere, that can help us," said one farmer.

"They complain about the prices, we have to raise our prices, it's the only way we're going to get out of this," Mills added.

Freitas was pleased with the consumer reaction. "The people that come down to the market have been very understanding and receptive to our situation," he said.

Other local farmers, however, were not affected by "Bob." Susan Puleio, who owns a small farm in Scituate, did not suffer any damage to her crops. "I had some vegetables, like my tomatoes, fall, but nothing serious," Puleio said. "I was a lucky one."

One farmer from Milton said farmers will not really know the extent of their damages for another two or three weeks. "After a couple of weeks, when you dig up your crops, that's when you see if the corn in the downed stalks is still good, that's when you can tell the extent of the damage."

Massachusetts farmers may be eligible for federal disaster assistance if Gov. Weld declares a state agricultural disaster. A decision should be issued by the governor's office this week.

Farmers will damage should contact their regional office of the USDA Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service to file an "application for disaster credit."

Lobbying Intense

Sheets Takes Lexington Bid To Navy Secretary

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

With the city's application for the U.S.S. Lexington now in the hands of the U.S. Navy, Quincy officials have turned their attention to an intense lobbying drive in an effort to win custody of the Quincy-built aircraft carrier.

On Tuesday, Mayor James Sheets, Administrative Assistant Bernice Mader and Bill MacMullen, a land use planner, submitted the city's 700-page application for the ship to the Navy. The officials also delivered a scale model of a maritime museum in Town River which the Lexington would be converted into if Quincy is granted custody.

On Wednesday, Sheets met with H. Lawrence III, secretary of the U.S. Navy, at the Pentagon. Garrett will ultimately decide which of the three cities vying for the ship will take custody of the Lexington after it is decommissioned in November.

In addition, the Quincy delegation was scheduled to meet with Charles Cart, William Scott and David Thomas of the Naval Sea Systems Command and go over details of the two-volume application which measures about four inches thick. The staff will analyze Quincy's bid as well as the applications submitted by the two other cities who want the Lexington: Corpus Christi, Texas, and Mobile, Alabama.

The fourth city, Pensacola, Fla., dropped out of contention last week after its City Council voted 7-3 to drop the project. Pensacola city councillors rejected the Lexington bid fearing a maritime museum there would interfere with the success of the city's aviation museum.

After analyzing the three applications, the Naval Sea Systems Command staff will make a recommendation for the Lexington's final destination to Garrett. He is expected to make a final decision by the end of the month.

Sheets said Garrett could follow the staff's recommendation or he could decide the issue entirely on his own.

"The final decision is up to the Navy secretary. Our sense is he has to have justification to Congress," Sheets said. Garrett's recommendation must be approved by Congress for it to become official.

In terms of the applications, Quincy has made a stronger case. The city's bid contains literally hundreds of pages which detail how the Lexington would be towed to Quincy, how the Town River site would be dredged and prepared for a maritime museum and the finances needed to make the museum a reality.

Quincy's application also spells out specific

6 Candidates File For State Representative

Six people have filed nomination papers for state representative in the Third Norfolk District, while one potential candidate opted against entering the race.

These filing papers before the 5 p.m. deadline Tuesday were Democrats Ronald Mariano of Quincy, Jack McGlone and Thomas Tanner, both of Weymouth; Independents Cheryl Balzano and Francis "Sandy" Eaton, both of Quincy; and Republican Bill Izbicki of Weymouth.

The three Democrats will challenge one another in the primary election Tuesday, Oct. 15. The winner will face the two Independent candidates and the sole GOP contender in the final election Tuesday, Nov. 12.

Tony Siciliano, a Democrat who took papers out for the race, did not return his papers. "I feel that I can best fill my role in life by continuing to do what I do best and that is helping people," said Siciliano, who is deputy director of Quincy's Emergency Management Agency and an active member in many elected and appointed committees.

Siciliano's departure would appear to strengthen Mariano's campaign. Mariano, who resigned from his position in the state's Attorney General's office to seek the seat previously held by Robert Cerasoli, is now the only Democratic candidate from Quincy.

Quincy Democrats who want to vote from a parochial perspective have one candidate to choose from: Mariano. In Weymouth, there are two Democrats running.

Political observers believe Tanner and McGlone would likely split the vote in their home district, giving Mariano a tremendous advantage since he is the only Quincy Democrat in the race.

The Third Norfolk District represents parts of Quincy and Weymouth. Registered Democrats outnumber registered Republicans and Independents in both communities.

Insiders said the Mariano camp was concerned that Siciliano's entry would strongly dilute their chances to win the Democratic primary. Siciliano is well-known and is regarded as a likeable, hard-working citizen and volunteer.

By the same token, there is speculation that the McGlone camp is trying to persuade Tanner to drop out of the race. Insiders said Jack Carey, McGlone's campaign manager and a friend of Tanner's, was to meet with him Tuesday night.

If Tanner bowed out, observers say a Democratic primary between Mariano and McGlone would be a dog-fight.

Observers in Quincy are predicting 18 to 20 percent in the city. Turnout could be higher in Weymouth, especially if a Proposition 2

King Discusses Issues At Two Coffee Hours

Two coffee hours were recently held for Quincy School Committee candidate Margaret "Peggy" King.

One was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George King, Avalon Ave., the other at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Herbert, Bedford St.

Wide ranging concerns of the neighborhood about the schools and education were addressed by King. Among these were computers and computer education, closing and/or consolidating schools, vouchers, choice, and a longer school year.

King said she believes all schools are not all fully equipped with computers nor has the training of all personnel including administrators been fully realized. This, despite the Stop and Shop "Apple Computers for the Students" campaign, parental fundraising and business gifts as well as a short reform funding by the state in addition to their own budget funding. "Yet we are supposedly in an area of technical education," she added.

On closing and/or consolidating schools, King said, "Until the current study on school facilities and enrollment projections is completed, one cannot make the rational decisions on this issue." She cautioned that decisions should be focused on educational improvements for students and not solely for economic reasons.

Concerning vouchers and choice, King expressed opposition because, overall, they increase inequality in the funding of public education. "They are detrimental to communities like Quincy which are hard pressed to adequately fund their schools using the regressive property tax since the state has reneged on its responsibility for proper educational funding," she said.

On lengthening the school year, King stated, "The longer school year does not appear feasible from a budgetary point of view." Compensation costs for personnel and air conditioning in schools are added costs which cannot be handled unless the state mandates and funds. The concept could be investigated, she said.

However, a number of students need to work, King said. "We have trouble getting a good number of students to come to school 180 days. Increasing the number to 220 would further exacerbate that problem."

King stressed that budget cuts can be more rationally determined when the budget format is changed and the makeup of line items is designated. She also emphasized the need for school based decision making which would more adequately handle the varying needs of different schools and different neighborhoods. Better public relations about the positive successes in our schools is also essential, she said.

In conclusion, King said, "Above all a School Committee member must be a strong advocate for education on all fronts—city, state and national as well as in the business community and all media."

North Quincy Bar Hearing Continued To Sept. 24

By STEVE KAVANAGH

The fate of the Sagamore Inn could be decided at the Sept. 24 License Board meeting.

A hearing scheduled for Tuesday was continued to the new date. The North Quincy barroom, located at 78 Sagamore St., is the target of frequent complaints by neighbors of drug dealing and violence emanating from the establishment.

Earlier this summer a man was shot outside the bar. In the past the bar's license has been suspended for serving alcohol after hours and recently a bartender was caught by police in possession of illegal drugs.

Ward 6 City Councillor Thomas Nutley told the License Board he would like to see the bar closed or moved to a new location.

"That neighborhood is not the place for that establishment," Nutley said. He noted that the Welcome Young Playground is directly across the street where children often play.

Nutley said he would not be opposed to the bar's owner, Michael Dormady, being allowed to move the business to a more suitable location in a non-residential area.

4 Weekend Fires Under Investigation

State and Quincy fire officials are investigating four fires which were set during Labor Day weekend.

A fire at a warehouse at 1 Billings Road, North Quincy, was the latest incident. It was discovered at 8:30 p.m. Monday and was described as minor with little damage.

Two fires were set early Monday morning. The first was reported at 1:15 a.m. at the M&E Enterprises storage building on Hayward Street next to the Wheelhouse Diner in North Quincy. Fire officials estimated about $30,000 in damage in the blaze which took about 90 minutes to extinguish.

As soon as that fire was put out firefighters were called to a three-alarm blaze at the Wollaston Redemption Center on Brook Street.

Firefighter Mark Franzoni was treated and released from Quincy Hospital after suffering a broken bone in his foot while fighting the fire.

The store received about $60,000 in damage and nearby stores Time Out Toys, Foreign Autopart and Qualimax Video also received smoke damage.

The first of the four suspicious fires was reported at 1:40 a.m. Saturday at the Jade Restaurant on Hancock Street in Quincy Center. The fire caused about $10,000 in damage and the store manager credited a quick response by firefighters in limiting the damage. The establishment was reopened for business Monday.

South Quincy Barroom Faces New Violation Charge

By STEVE KAVANAGH
Brannigan's Pub will be back before the City of Quincy License Board Sept. 24 and may face a three-day license suspension.

The Water Street barroom will be cited for violating its probation established by the board for a brawl there earlier this year.

The city's liquor inspector, Det. Sgt. Richard Laracy, said the most recent violation at Brannigan's took place on a recent Sunday when the bar allegedly served alcohol before its legal hours of operation.

The License Board suspended Brannigan's license for three days on April 2 but placed the suspension in abeyance provided that there were no further incidents at the bar.

The original suspension resulted from a Feb. 14 brawl at the bar which involved the bartender on duty. In that incident, employees of the bar failed to call police.

In a separate case, four convicted bookmakers were banned from Brannigan's June 18 by the License Board. One of the men, Robert DiBona Sr. is the father of Brannigan's owner Mark DiBona.

Brannigan's appealed the board's findings to the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission but lost. The city received a letter from the ABCC last week approving the License Board's actions against Brannigan's.

Donnelly Would Expand Benefits For Disabled

Cong. Brian Donnelly (D-Quincy) has introduced legislation which would expand programs for individuals with disabilities, as well as modify provisions of the tax laws negatively affecting the disabled.

The bill, Donnelly said, is a "logical extension" of the Americans with Disabilities Act which was passed by Congress last year. "Last year's bill was an important piece of civil rights legislation for our fellow Americans with disabilities, but unfortunately did little to expand existing benefits."

Provisions of the Donnelly legislation include:

- The 10 percent luxury tax, imposed on automobiles exceeding $30,000 in value, will be waived for parts or accessories for automobiles used to make the vehicles handicapped accessible.

- Making a home accessible to the handicapped would be allowed as a specific itemized deduction instead of a medical expense deduction.

- Modifies an optional Medicaid program designed to encourage individuals with development disabilities to remain in the community such as the popular "Turning 22" program in Massachusetts which the state recently restricted.

- Eligibility for the Social Security Disability and Supplemental Security Income benefits would be substantially liberalized.

As a result of the recession and financial pressures, Donnelly said many states are cutting back on benefits for individuals with disabilities.

"The federal government has a great moral responsibility to respond to these cutbacks at the state level, and to improve and end discrimination in existing federal benefit programs," Donnelly said.

Donnelly said that the legislation would be funded by "closing outrageous tax loopholes benefitting the wealthiest taxpayers," and that he has numerous pieces of legislation before the Ways and Means Committee which will more than offset the cost.

SNORING

Snoring during sleep is caused by vibration of the soft palate and surrounding tissues while inhaling. Snoring is more likely to occur in certain families, in obese persons, and in individuals who have a small jaw, receding chin, or a short, thick neck. Obstructive sleep apnea is a more serious condition, characterized by intermittent episodes of cessation of breathing during sleep due to blockage of the upper airway. Snoring is a major component. When severe, this condition can cause daytime headaches and fatigue, high blood pressure, heart attack or lung damage. Obese, middle-aged males are affected most. Among the treatments are surgery, breathing exercises, chin straps, and behavioral modification. Weight loss and special hormone medications may be effective for some persons with obstructive sleep apnea.

P.S. Therapy for snoring is successful in about half the cases. Most loud snorers and their families have to learn to live with this usually harmless condition.

This column is presented in the interest of better health for all by COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE. If you are troubled by snoring or other sleep conditions, we suggest that you contact the appropriate physician or medical specialist. If you would like to discuss the information in our column, please call me at 472-2550. Office hours are by appointment at 101 Adams St., Suite 24, in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospital. We'd like to wish Happy Holiday to all our Jewish friends.

A Shirt From Tony

Tony Siciliano's decision to bow out of the Third Norfolk District state representative race is a big plus for Ron Mariano.

The two Quincy Democrats would have split crucial Quincy votes in the special Oct. 15 primary.

With Siciliano out of the picture the two Weymouth Democrats, Jack McGlone and Tom Tanner now have the vote splitting problem to wrestle with while Mariano has a solo shot in the primary as the only Quincy Democrat.

In the November final election, the primary winner — Mariano, McGlone or Tanner — will square off against Weymouth Republican William Izbicki and two Quincy Independents, Cheryl Balzano, and Francis "Sandy" Eaton.

There was no deal cut between Mariano and Siciliano.

They hardly know each other.

Siciliano who had more than enough signatures on his nomination papers agonized over filing them.

He is actively involved in a number of organizations and began fretting over the fact that if he ran and was elected state representative he no longer would have the time to work for and with these groups.

Siciliano has the reputation of a guy always ready to give you the shirt off his back. He may have just given it to Mariano.

QUINCY REALLY HAS a gung-ho competitor for the USS Lexington. Corpus Christi, Tex. has an all-out campaign on to win the carrier as a tourist attraction reports Gail Izbicki of Weymouth.

She and her husband, William, Republican candidate for the Third Norfolk District state representative seat, were recently in Corpus Christi.

"There are signs all over the place "Bring Back The Lex," she says.

There are pledge cards in all the stores. The cards are for pledging money to help finance bringing the ship to Corpus Christi.

People there have a warm spot in their hearts for the Lexington where the ship was assigned after World War II for the training of Navy pilots.

QUINCY'S Uncle Sam Rounseville had them smiling at the Registry of Motor Vehicles the other day.

He arrived in full dress uniform to obtain his new driver's license with his now legal name. His license has his picture with red, white and blue top hat and jacket.

Imagine the reaction when someone asks to see his driver's license while cashing a check or, perish the thought, while stopped for a traffic violation.

Can't you hear a police officer reacting: "Yeah, and I'm George Washington!"

But if Rounseville's campaign to become the nation's Uncle Sam is successful he won't need a driver's license to show anyone.

Durkin Proposes 'No TV Week' For Public School Students

School Committeeman Stephen Durkin has proposed that the public school system sponsor a "No Television Week" to encourage students to read and develop good study and learning habits.

In a letter to School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci, Durkin made the proposal in light of recent reports that SAT scores declined nationally and in Massachusetts. He asked Ricci to include the proposal on the school committee's agenda for discussion.

"While the SAT is only one measure of achievement, as well as aptitude for college study, the continued decline in scores nevertheless reflects a disturbing trend," Durkin wrote.

He noted several factors which may bring down average scores: Students for whom English is a second language scoring lower than average on the verbal test; poor study habits; excessive television viewing and other distractions; and students being offered and/or taking less challenging academic courses.

"Clearly, the communication skills measured by the Verbal SAT test are directly related to the amount of time students spend developing their reading, writing and thinking abilities," Durkin said. "We do not need to conduct a study to know that young people are simply watching too much television and not reading enough.

"Moreover, there are few television programs which help to develop intellectual skills.

"Solutions to complex problems are never simple," he continued. "I think the school system should set a positive example by sponsoring a week during the school year when students and their families would be encouraged to turn off the television and pick up a book."

As part of a school-sponsored "No Television Week," Durkin said notices could be sent to parents encouraging their active participation and support.

Teachers could give special homework assignments requiring extensive reading and writing.

In addition, Durkin said city libraries could be involved by offering special reading programs for younger children in conjunction with the school system. Parents could be encouraged to read with their children.

"While simply acquiring knowledge in preparation for taking a test is clearly not the essential purpose of learning, the decline in SAT performances underscores the need to convey to students that learning is hard work, but well worth the effort," Durkin said.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Hurricane Edna's 75 MPH Winds KO Quincy Power

Hurricane Edna, the second major storm in 12 days, struck Quincy with winds of 75 miles an hour and gusts up to 106 miles an hour, knocking out 40 percent of the city's power in Wollaston and North Quincy.

Edna was mild compared to her predecessor, Hurricane Carole, which hit winds clocked at 93 miles an hour and gusts up to 125 mph. Edna dropped 5.16 inches of rain in 14 hours.

Rotary Field off Coddington St. and Kincaide Park in South Quincy were under several feet of water and parts of Houghs Neck and and Squantum and Atherton Hough Schools.

James T. Garland, executive director of the Quincy Red Cross, said 24 gallons of coffee, 150 small cartons of milk and 25 dozen doughnuts were served so storm refugees in the shelters.

Two Quincy Police Officers Monitoring School Bus Routes

To ensure the safety of children boarding or leaving stopped school buses in Quincy, Police Chief Francis Mullen has assigned two Quincy police officers to monitor the school bus routes throughout the city.

The two officers will either escort the buses, or died on the buses, to stop and cite all violators of the school bus law. Violators can be fined a minimum of $100 and a maximum of $200.

The school bus law mandates that motor vehicles stop for a school bus which has its flashing red lights on, as students are being picked up or exiting the bus. The only exception is when the motor vehicle is on the opposite side of a divided highway, then the motor vehicle may continue in a safe manner.

Mullen asks motorists to drive carefully and obey the school bus law.

LANE NOMINATED

Myron N. Lane of Quincy swamped two opponents, Sturtevant Burr of Stoughton and George P. Carney of Quincy, to win the Republican nomination for Norfolk County district attorney.

Lane had almost three times as many votes as Burr, his nearest challenger, in the race for the post to which he was appointed by Gov. Christian A. Herter.

A big primary victory by City Councillor David J. Crowley gave Democrats hope of displacing Republic Rep. William I. Jenness and winning the State Rep seat in the Second Norfolk for the first time.

Sun-Sons Of Italy Center Raises Over $5,000 For MDA

The Muscular Dystrophy Labor Day Activity Center co-sponsored by The Quincy Sun and the Quincy Sons of Italy raised over $5,000 for the MDA.

The proceeds included fishbowl receipts, other donations and money raised by a three-mile walkathon from North Quincy High School to the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center on Quarry St., site of the activity center.

The activity center, the second annual, was held in association with the Quincy-South Shore Jerry Lewis Telethon Committee which has raised over $1 million to help the fight against muscular dystrophy and for patient care.

Sons of Italy Lodge President Mike Capone, Committee Chairman Denis Tardo and Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth expressed thanks to all those who participated in the pledge center and to those who contributed for making the event a success despite the difficult economic times.

This year's activity center matched last year's in money raised and could surpass the total as final figures have not yet been tabulated.

Cooperating with The Sun and the Sons of Italy at the activity center were WJDA, the Quincy and Canton Fire Departments, the Quincy Auxiliary Police, the Quincy Emergency Management Agency, Quincy Jewish War Veterans, Creative Fairs, Jimmy Jay Productions and Stella del Nord.

The fishbowl got a big boost from George Parker who donated two $400 checks, one from the Yellow Cab and one from himself personally, a $250 check from Vincent Moscardelli of ERA Real Estate, a $200 check from the Bryan VFW Post and a $100 check from Frank Anselmo.

Entertainment included a two-hour "big band era" concert by the Alumni Band of Quincy directed by George Vallatini and featuring the Feeley Sisters of Auburn, Me., who sing in the style of the Andrews Sisters.

Other musical groups performing were Next Dimensions with Bobby Sontag, Young Love, Special Request, Jay Rock, Mikey B and Ivory Soul.

Prizes for drawings were donated by the Wollaston Theater, Arby's, Harry's Linoleum & Tile, Blackwood Pharmacy, U-Rent It, Wollaston Florist, Prestige Photo, Egan's Sunoco, CVS, Balducci's Pizza, Mr. Sub and Monadnock Spring Water.

Ayers Bros. Celebrating 10th Year Anniversary

It was 10 years ago, in 1981, when Ayers Bros. Handicap Conversion Center opened its doors for business.

From a small two-bay garage to the four division multiple bay establishment it is now, Ayers Bros. has seen many changes over the past 10 years. Since receiving its license to operate from the city, Bruce Ayers, his brother Chuck and his father Charlie have worked to earn Ayers Bros. its well respected reputation.

The center is one of New England's largest and most modern, quality controlled technology centers for handicap and vehicle modifications. From the simplest handicap conversion to the most advanced technical driving equipment including wheelchair lifts and tie-downs, left footed gas pedals and hand controls, Ayers Bros.' equipment provides a more independent life style for the physically challenged. The company offers courtesy evaluations, rents handicapped equipped vans and provides 24-hour emergency road service.

Ten years later, Ayers Bros. continues to grow. Charles Ayers Sr. still plays an integral role in the company operation and Bruce Ayers serves as the handicap division administrator. Bruce is also a licensed community access monitor for the state Office of Handicapped Affairs. He has been involved in efforts to insure handicapped citizens are able to exercise their rights regardless of physical disabilities.

On election day, Ayers Bros. Inc. provides transportation to the poles for voters confined to wheelchairs, as well as providing transportation to Christmas Eve Mass. The company has also provided volunteer support to several charitable organizations, including the Special Olympics and Heaven's Children.

McGlone Announces Candidacy For State Representative

John (Jack) McGlone, Democrat, last night (Wednesday) announced his candidacy for the State Representative seat vacated by Robert Cerasoli.

McGlone said he is running because, "the state government needs a new direction."

McGlone announced at the Elks Club in Weymouth before a large group of supporters and community residents. McGlone was introduced by his fiancée, Celeste Bradley of Quincy. (They are being married Saturday, Sept. 7th).

Bradley said: "When the special election was called, we decided that we would postpone our honeymoon plans, so that Jack could spend as much time as possible walking door-to-door, meeting all the residents of the district."

McGlone stressed the need for change in state government and the importance of new ideas and new people.

"I am not a political insider -- I have never run for office before. I am a Democrat from our community who cares what my neighbors have to say," he said.

McGlone denounced the state's recent decision to cut benefits to senior citizens. He criticized those on Beacon Hill who would cut aid to senior citizens. "Senior citizens on a fixed income have paid their dues to society building this great Commonwealth and they are not at a point in their lives when society must re-pay them," he said. On Beacon Hill, I will fight to protect senior citizen's rights."

McGlone said there are a number of proposals on the table to reform the educational system.

"It is time to realize that the teachers have not failed the system, the system has failed, he said. Public education is failing us at this critical time when we need to become more competitive in the world marketplace. We must take a look at restructuring the broken down educational system."

"Our community needs a fighter on Beacon Hill. Someone who will take on agencies like the MWRA, with their unconscionable rate hikes. Someone to challenge our Environmental Secretary to protect our community and ask why trucks are driving down our streets transporting hazardous and other dangerous materials, creating a terrible accident waiting to happen. I will fight to restrict the use of and access to our neighborhood roads by companies transporting such hazardous materials."

"We need someone on Beacon Hill to bring change to the state government, someone who will protect our children, our environment, our senior citizens -- our community. I believe I can offer that change if you will work with me and let our voices be heard on Oct. 15th."

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

We learn the words to the "Pledge of Allegiance" early in our lives. Yet many Americans do not know the history of the heritage of our flag.

In some cases, one flag can have many histories. Did you know that the same flag that flew over the U.S. Capitol in Washington on Dec. 7, 1941, at the beginning of World War II, was also flown from the mast of the USS Missouri during the final Japanese surrender on Sept. 2, 1945?

Let us take time to remember our flag and be proud of what it represents to all of us ...

New Mural At Atlantic Neighborhood Center

ADMIRING A NEW mural at the Atlantic Neighborhood Club are, from left, Mildred Bostwick, Mary Zoland, Theresa Kelley, Miriam Connolly, Corlene Bayfield, Arthur Millett, Millie Veneto and Patricia Keefe, the club's outgoing director. Sketches and reference materials for the mural were supplied by Linda Beeler of the Thomas Crane Public Library and the Quincy Historical Society.

PHUOC LAO admires part of a new mural at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center. Over the past three months, volunteers from the Jefferson Forum and the Quincy Court Community Service program have joined forces to construct the mural. The background of pastel stripes depicting sunrise was done by Dave Fegeron and Barry Dooley and others from the "Earn-It!" program. The finer details including the liberty symbols were created by Orn Yos, Kaling Tam, Winnie Fong, Mindy Tse and many North Quincy High School volunteers who are part of the Jefferson Forum.

North Has The Horses For Rebound

By TOM SULLIVAN

North Quincy football coach Ken McPhee appears to have the horses to rebound from last year's 4-6 season, only his third losing season in nine years.

McPhee has nine returning offensive starters, led by wide receiver Desmond Bellot, rated by his coach as "one of the outstanding players in the state and a wonderful kid."

Last fall Bellot, despite missing the last four games with a broken leg, was a unanimous Old Colony League All-Star selection and made all the all-scholastic teams.

The 6-2, 180-pounder had 47 receptions, including six touchdown receptions and in the past two years he broke several games wide open with his explosive kick returns.

McPhee has experience, size and speed on the offensive team.

Tight ends are Mark Kelleher, Brian Raftery and Paul Kerr. Kelleher had an outstanding year in 1990.

North has several fine wide receivers, led by Bellot and Pat Shea. They are joined by Willy O'Donnell, John O'Donnell, Tony Licciardi and Chris Peck.

The tackles are 255-pound Mark Zych, 215-pound Scott Kohler and Mike Linnane.

Chris McCallum, Dave Raftery and Dave Pacino are the guards and Scott Prouty (210), Chris Campbell and Nick Mastrogiacono are the centers.

Mark Taylor, who had an excellent season last fall, leads the quarterbacks but is being pushed by Liam Higgins. Dave Duncan is also vying for a spot.

Mark Cocuzzo, who ran for 750 yards last fall, is the top running back and John Skahan and Mark Sinclair are other threats.

Sinclair also heads the fullbacks and Chris Murray, who ran well a year ago, and Matt Walsh are other fullback hopefuls.

Higgins will do the punting and placekicking for the Red Raiders. He is capable of kicking from about 40 yards out and this could prove invaluable in close games.

"We will be very competitive and I am satisfied with the way our offense is operating," said McPhee. We are a little thin in the offensive line but are improving every day.

"We will have a good passing game with Taylor doing the throwing and Bellot and Kelleher leading the receivers. Both are outstanding receivers."

Cocuzzo and Murray look like the top ball carriers.

"This is the best prepared team since I've been coach," McPhee added. "The boys worked awfully hard during the summer and reported in excellent condition. The skill positions are good kids and we have the experience we've lacked in the past. We lost four games last year by a touchdown or less. We'll have to be on top of our game the whole year."

McPhee has all of his varsity assistants back, Peter Chrisom, Earl Metzler, Tom Carter and Pete Zoia, while former Raider Chris Morton has succeeded Kevin Kelly as freshmen coach.

"We gave out 120 uniforms, including 35 to freshmen, and I am delighted with the turnout," McPhee concluded.

North opens against a tough newcomer, Acton-Boxboro, at Acton Friday night, Sept. 20. Taylor will be playing against his uncle, coach Bill Maver, former Quincy all-scholastic player and coach.

North To Open Against Plymouth

The North Quincy boys' soccer team, looking toward an improved season this year, will open against Plymouth next Monday, Sept. 9, at 3:30 p.m. at the varsity soccer field behind Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Senior co-captains Tom Johnson and Mike Giese lead a squad of 13 returning seniors with several juniors and sophomores making strong bids for varsity positions.

Last season was North's first in the highly competitive Old Colony League, and although the team played several close games, the difference in age, size and experience was too much to overcome, resulting in a 3-13 record.

Second-year coach Bob

Dano and assistant Bob Doyle expect significant improvement after the learning experience of last year.

"This team has excellent skills and, with so many returning seniors, the size and speed differential of last year will be equalized," Dano said.

Senior players are Garvin Chan, Adam Chansky, Matt Flynn, Chris Hill, Sean Hannon, Paul Kearns, Kevin Murphy, Aidan O'Donoghue, Chris Olsen and Mike Walsh.

Juniors are Mark Cahill, goalkeeper Adam Calvert, Brian Fitzgerald, Brian Kelley, Mike MacDougall, Bo Smith and Dan Danais.

Sophomores are Kevin Chan, Brad Galaneck, Neil

Hutchinson, Bob Johnston, Scott McCormick, Jason McLaughlin, Eddie Mitton and Sean Williamson.

Freshmen hopefuls include Tom Bianco, Zac Costa, Tom Meade and Bob Verney.

The schedule includes two night games against Quincy on Friday, Sept. 13 and Wed., Oct. 9. The games will be played at 7 p.m. under the lights at Kincaide Field and the public is invited.

After the Plymouth opener, North will host Falmouth on Wed., Sept. 11.

All varsity games are played at the varsity field at 3:30 p.m. with junior varsity games at Bishop Field in Montclair.

Presidents Will Pack Power

By TOM SULLIVAN

Last fall the Quincy football team enjoyed its best season since the undefeated 1970 team when it finished at 8-1-1 and was a close second in the Old Colony League.

This year, despite the loss of the sensational Mark Bogan, coach Jack Raymer expects the Presidents to be explosive offensively.

"We have what I consider our best offensive line in years and we have some excellent running backs, good passers and some outstanding wide receivers, giving us a well-balanced attack," Raymer said.

"Naturally, we will miss Bogan, who had one of the best seasons I've experienced, but Jason Anderson is one of the most powerful runners in the league and we have some other excellent runners."

Last year Bogan rushed for 1,280 yards, scored 112 points to finish two points behind Brockton's Anthony Comer for the Division I scoring title and finished with an outstanding effort in the come-from-behind win over North Quincy. In his last two years Bogan, who rushed for 1089 yards in 1989 despite missing three games with an injury, amassed over 5,000 yards in total offense, rushing, pass receiving and returning punts and kickoffs.

Joining Anderson at the fullback position will be Dave Bogan, Mark's brother, who has looked very good in scrimmages, and Jason Eleuteri.

Noel DiBona, who scored 19 touchdowns for the junior varsity last season; Mark Zaborowski and newcomer Alvin White, who has loads of speed, are the tailbacks.

"The big question right now is at quarterback, where we lack varsity experience," Raymer said. "Mike Flavin had an outstanding year for us last season and his two backups, Pat Gallagher and Joe Crespi, are in a dogfight for the starting post. Both look good, both can pass and run and have looked good in scrimmages. They are two great athletes."

Behind them are Mike Bartlett and Walter Spadorcia.

Raymer has three exceptional wide receivers in Chris Walker, Robbie Kane and newcomer Scott MacPherson, a senior out for the first time who has looked good. He is one of Quincy's outstanding hockey players and Raymer expects big things from him.

"I think we have three of the finest wide receivers around and we should have a good passing game," Raymer continued.

At tight end are Mike Kavanagh, Mike Malvesti and Gary Collins, all excellent players.

The tackles are Duane Holmes, Keith Norris, Rich Buckley and Claircent DeMesier.

At guard the top players are Ally Sleiman, Peter Fernald, Kevin Keane and Dave Cedrone.

Chris McLaughlin and Mike DeAngelo are battling it out for the starting center spot.

Malvesti and Crespi will do the President's punting, Collins will kick off and DiBona will kick extra points and field goals.

"I am very happy with our offense and I think we can stay with any team," the Quincy coach said. "Our program is headed in the right direction. Our seniors and juniors both played on undefeated freshman teams and know what it is like to win."

Bob Noble, Bob Keuther and Bill Shaughnessy are back as varsity assistants and Jack Greene is back as freshman coach. He is being assisted by Dick Vella.

"We had 55 turn out for the varsity and there are 37 freshmen out, a fine turnout for us," said Raymer. "The kids are working awfully hard and I think things look very good for us."

Quincy open its schedule Friday night, Sept. 20, against Marshfield at 7 o'clock at Veterans Memorial Stadium, one of two non-league games.

Stephanie Rizza Wins Tourney at Ponkapoag

The Women's Inner Club of the Ponkapoag Golf Course recently held its annual 18-hole Johnson Cup Tournament.

Stephanie Rizza, president of the club, with a net of 70 was the winner.

The club also held a nine-hole tournament recently. Winners were Hazel Ford with a net of 35, Laura Lynch with a net of 36, Mary Garber with a net of 38 and Edna Canter with a net of 39.

Future Looks Bright For Morrisette Legion

The Morrisette Legion baseball team, despite its youngest squad ever, recently completed another outstanding season and with 15 of 18 players returning, things look bright for 1992.

Morrisette, with 11 16-year old players, tied Braintree for the Zone 6 title for the second year in a row with a 13-3 record and was eliminated in the second round of the state playoffs. It defeated Bridgewater in two straight games but lost to Brockton in two straight hard fought contests, 3-1 and 6-5.

Pitching will be coach Dave Perdios' biggest problem next year as the only graduates are pitchers Gary Rawdon, Mike Baylis and southpaw Billy Warren.

Rawdon was 5-2 this year and 7-1 last season. He led the team in strikeouts with 65 and, playing centerfield when not pitching, hit .281, including many key hits. He will return to UMass this fall.

Baylis was one of the Zone's most valuable players. He was 6-2 pitching, played flawlessly at shortstop, hit .500 including 32 hits, high for the team and was tied for the lead with nine extra base hits.

In the state playoffs he reached base 14 times for a .647 on-base average. The B.C. High graduate will enter Bridgewater State College in the fall.

Warren was used mostly as a spot reliever and in relief over the past three years. He pitched two outstanding games against Randolph and Wollaston. He will return to Bentley College in the fall.

The leadership role will be passed on to the four 17-year olds led by Tom Balzano, first baseman/catcher, who batted .369 with a team-high 19 RBI. He will enter Massasoit Community College in the fall.

Mark Kelleher, who played outfield and caught, batted .328 and was tied for the team lead with nine extra base hits.

Pat Clifford, third baseman/pitcher, is expected to do more pitching next year. He pitched well at third and drove in 16 runs.

Mike Malvesti was used primarily in a reserve role, playing all three outfield positions and first base. He had a big pinch hit double against Randolph that started a come-from-behind victory.

The 11 16-year olds, many of whom started, will be the backbone of the future and the experience gained this year should stand them in good stead when Morrisette hosts the Northeast Regional Tournament next August.

Leadoff batter Robbie Kane will be back at second base where he started every game. Next year he looms as the team's shortstop. He led the team with 25 runs, 18 walks and 11 stolen bases. He batted .333 with 13 RBI.

Liam Higgins, an outfielder/pitcher, was Mr. Clutch as he drove in the winning run in the last inning of three games.

Serge Belcastro, who started most of the season behind the plate and was hitting over .400 until he injured his elbow, hit .349.

Noel DiBona and Pat Shea, speedy outfielders, will be starters and Adam Calvert, an infielder, started a few games at shortstop and had a big three-run homer against Milton.

Sean Donovan, who came up a year ago as a good southpaw pitcher, suffered a sore arm which sidelined him at North Quincy High this spring but came back and pitched well.

Mike Kenny will be out to grab an outfield spot next year.

Morrisette had three good looking young pitchers in Mike O'Toole, Jay Schnabel and Mike Patch. Patch also plays the outfield. O'Toole picked up a win in relief against Bridgewater in the playoffs.

Perdios completed his fifth year as head coach and is pleased with next year's prospects.

Tom Malvesti did a fine job as Perdios' assistant, especially working with pitchers.

General Manager Ray Cattaneo finished his 22nd year with Morrisette, including 17 as coach.

Frank Osborne, long-time athletic officer, again raised the necessary funds to keep the team operating with his ad book.

All of these men will return next year along with scorer/statistician Richard 'Berger' Ryan.

Siciliano Bows Out Of State Rep. Race

By ROBERT
BOSWORTH

Saying he wants to continue to help people in his present position, Tony Siciliano announced Tuesday he will not seek the seat for state representative in the Third Norfolk District.

"I feel I can best fill my role by continuing what I do best and that is helping people. It would be impossible for me to run for the state representative seat and still continue to be at the heart of what I love most--my community and humanity," Siciliano said.

Siciliano's decision not to enter the race leaves six candidates vying for the seat previously held by Robert Cerasoli. Democrats Ronald Mariano of Quincy, and Jack McGlone and Thomas Tanner, both of Weymouth; Independents Cheryl Balzano and Francis "Sandy" Eaton, both of

TONY SICILIANO

Quincy; and Republican Bill Izbicki of Weymouth returned nominations papers before the 5 p.m. deadline Tuesday.

The three Democrats will challenge one another in the primary Tuesday, Oct. 15. The winner will face the two Independents and the sole GOP contender in the final election Tuesday, Nov. 12.

In making his decision,

Siciliano said, "If I ran for the state representative seat I would no longer be able to devote my time and energy where I feel it is most needed especially in my capacity as deputy director of public safety for the city of Quincy's Emergency Management Agency (Civil Defense).

"This takes thousands of volunteer man hours. The city of Quincy receives federal funding through the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) because of our participation in the Emergency Management Assistance Program. Quincy has an excellent reputation and is used as a model through state and federal officials because we follow mandated laws which are required for federal funding and I would not want to jeopardize this."

Siciliano also said a political run would have detracted from the time he spends on numerous appointed and elected committees. He is chairman of Local Emergency Planning, Disaster Planning Committee, president of the state Auxiliary Police Association which covers 90 cities and towns, and is a member of the Quincy Festival Committee and Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Although he is not a candidate this year, Siciliano did not close the door on future campaigns.

"What does the future hold for me politically? Who knows. There's always that element of surprise."

Siciliano extended thanks to the "many people who had faith in me and signed my nomination papers from Quincy and Weymouth and also to the many people who were willing to serve on my campaign committee."

and a half override question is put on the ballot.

Weymouth town meeting members will decide this month whether to vote on or place place before voters a $900,000 override question. Insiders say the matter will likely be placed in the hands of voters.

If that's the case, the question would be placed on the special primary ballot Oct. 15. In Quincy, the primary is the only matter on the ballot.

Kabilian Says Platform Based On Common Sense

School Committee candidate Toni Kabilian recently told a group of 75 supporters that she is running as a common sense candidate, not a politician.

At her "Return to the '60s Night" dance party recently held at the Morrisette Post, Kabilian said, "I am not a politician, nor do I want to be one. I am a mother and taxpayer in the city of Quincy who wants to make sure my children, your children and grandchildren are getting the most for our tax dollars.

"As an involved parent, for the past six years I have sat, watch and listened to a lot of words and rhetoric and I am still not satisfied.

"These are very tough economic times and the way education is under assault from the federal government down to the local level, the school committee is a tough job for anyone, but common sense tells me that we cannot continue to cut programs that are necessary for our children to compete for a higher education with other cities and towns,"

Kabilian said.

"Common sense tells me you do not close secondary schools when there is an overcrowding problem in our elementary schools. Common sense tells me you cannot fund education on the backs of the taxpayers--some of whom are already at their absolute limit. "And finally, common sense tells me that no one has the right to tell me when I can hear or not speak the word God. If we take God away from our children, what is left for them to respect."

In addition, Kabilian said the city should concentrate on the needs of students.

"We have to provide Quincy's students with an atmosphere conducive to learning, and teachers that feel safe and confident in their jobs--because without teachers children cannot learn, and without learning, Quincy doesn't have a future."

Kabilian, who is familiar with the format of the school budget, also said it is time the budget is revamped.

"As president of the Citywide Parents Council, I have had the opportunity to go over this budget inside, outside, backwards and forwards...I have had the opportunity to question line items on that budget and I have never once seen or heard the word 'tuxedos' mentioned.

"It appalls me to think that the money that was used for the past 40 years to rent those tuxedos could have been used for basics for our children."

Kabilian, a former bookkeeper for the state, added, "I have never seen such a confusing budget and I believe there is a definite need to build a new and readable one."

In keeping with the theme of her party, Kabilian arrived at the Morrisette Post in a 1969 Lincoln stretch limousine donated by Frank Daly of LP Limo Service. Among those attending were several members of the recently established Quincy Youth Council.

Celebrities Line Up For VNA/Hospice Bertoni Golf Tourney

The Quincy Visiting Nurse Association and Hospice will hold its third annual Bertoni Memorial Golf Tournament Monday, Sept. 9 at the Halifax Country Club.

Tee off is at 8 a.m. followed by a luncheon. Foursomes have been signing up and sponsors who have come forward in the past are there again to lend a helping hand, play some golf and raise some money for the hospice program.

Bill Shea of Shea's Formica Center began the event and has led the Quincy VNA and Hospice the past two years. Shea noted many prizes will be available. Tommy Maher will service as master of ceremonies during the luncheon.

The hospice is a home health care program for the terminally ill. It provides support for the patient and family at home in a compassionate way and with dignity to the individual. Some of the services are not fully reimbursable from health insurance. Proceeds from the fundraiser helps provide the extra ingredient of caring and assistance.

Bob Lobel and Jack Williams of WBZ Channel 4 will be joined by Dave Shea of WEEI and NESN, as well as some other surprise celebrities. For information, call Bill Shea at 471-9130 or Stephen Robbins at 472-2828.

LEXINGTON PLEDGE—John Amaral, left, administrator for the New England Laborers' Labor-Management Cooperation Trust, and Tom Chirillo, business manager for Local #133 of the Laborers' International Union of North America, present a $1,000 check to Mayor James Sheets for the city's U.S.S. Lexington fundraising drive. As of Aug. 30, the drive had raised $31,775 in pledges and $4,335 in cash donations. Officials hope to raise $2 million in private donations.

Sheets Takes Lexington Bid To Navy Secretary

historical, cultural and educational uses for the ship as a major tourist attraction. Plans call for guided tours, films and lectures, a function hall for 1,100 people and even a chapel. A marine biology laboratory would be set up for college and high school students.

Several shops would be located near the museum, including a restaurant, cafe and gift shop. A monument would be erected in honor of Quincy's shipbuilders.

In comparison, the bids submitted by Corpus Christi and Mobile are far less extensive. Officials from the Naval Sea Command office told Sheets the application submitted by Corpus Christi totals 29 pages while Mobile's bid is 26 pages.

From a financial perspective, Quincy's application appears to be more in line than the others. In Quincy's bid, officials believe it would cost an estimated $5 million to bring the Lexington to the Town River, prepare the site and convert the ship into a maritime museum.

To pay for the towing and conversion, officials hope to raise $2 million in private donations and float bonds for the rest. The bonds would be paid off by revenue generated by admission to the ship.

Corpus Christi and Mobile officials believe the cost is closer to $2 to $3 million. Those two cities are also counting on a combination of private donations and bonds to pay for the Lexington towing and museum conversion.

Sheets said he believes Quincy's application is stronger than the other two bids. He also believes Quincy's bid gives the city's lobbying effort momentum over Corpus Christi and Mobile.

"I think we were much more extensive and thorough with our application. I'm very confident with that," the mayor said in a telephone interview Tuesday afternoon.

"I think (Quincy's bid) is stronger than the other two packages. They have less than $2 to $3 million available (to finance the project). I think we're much better off financially."

"I think there is momentum. How that translates to the secretary of the Navy is still up in the air."

It is that uncertainty that is driving the city's lobbying effort. Quincy may have a better application, a more definitive financial plan and the claim as the carrier's birthplace, but politics will still play a major factor in the final decision.

Quincy officials believe Corpus Christi poses the greatest threat. Mobile has been essentially dismissed since it already has one big ship, the battleship U.S.S. Alabama. Quincy and Corpus Christi have none.

One positive note going for Corpus Christi is that the country's aviation training command is based in that city. Over the past 30 years, the Lexington has been the premier naval aviation training ship.

In addition, Sens. Lloyd Bentsen and Phil Gramm have a strong history of backing military projects, unlike Sens. Ted Kennedy and John Kerry who have advocated defense cuts.

While in Washington, Sheets planned to meet with as many members of the Massachusetts congressional and senatorial delegation. He also wanted to meet with other officials, including union leaders, who "will contact the secretary of the Navy on the city of Quincy's behalf."

The fact that many federal officials had not returned to Washington Tuesday because of the Labor Day holiday weekend may have somewhat hindered the mayor's lobbying effort. However, Sheets said the lobbying will intensify over the next two and half weeks.

Although unlikely, he may even return to Washington for one final push. "I don't envision any more trips but I'll wait to see what happens."

Sara Mann, Massachusetts director of tourism, was scheduled to travel to Washington to join the city's delegation, Sheets said. The mayor said Gov. Weld instructed Mann to go to Washington and indicate to the Navy that the state fully supports Quincy's bid as a major tourist attraction.

"She will indicate to the Navy department that Weld is totally behind the Lexington effort. The governor feels tourism is a cornerstone for the state's future industry," Sheets said.

Elvera DeYoung, Gretchen Bumpus Receive Community Volunteer Awards

At a recent North Quincy community meeting, Ward 6 Councillor Thomas Nutley presented city council commendations and recognition awards to two community volunteers: Mrs. Elvera DeYoung, 23 Young St., North Quincy; and Mrs. Gretchen Bumpus, 14 Seaway Dr., Squantum.

"Mrs. DeYoung has been recognized for her work in monitoring the Welcome Young Park area and for her efforts in the annual 'Cleaner, Greener' cleanup program. Mrs. DeYoung is 78 years old but that hasn't prevented her from taking pride in her community and working each day to help keep that community clean," Nutley said.

"Mrs. Bumpus has volunteered to conduct the blood pressure tests at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center for senior citizens every other Friday morning for over a decade. That is also a tremendous and valuable commitment to our senior citizens and our community. "We are truly proud to recognize both of these ladies by presenting them with city council commendations and our "community volunteer awards of 1991," Nutley said.

School Committee, Ward 6 Only Races 20% Vote Seen For City Election

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

With only the school committee race and Ward 6 council contest, less than 20 percent of Quincy's registered voters are expected to turn out at the polls for the preliminary election Tuesday, Sept. 17.

City Clerk John Gillis said this year's preliminary election is one of the quietest ever. Without a major ballot draw like a mayoral preliminary, Gillis projects turnout will be low.

"Citywide turnout will be less than 20 percent. There's really no fights. In five of the six wards, there is only the school committee race. In Ward 6, turnout will be a bit higher (23-24 percent) because of the council race.

"The (election) interest just isn't there. You can see by the recent voter registration drive which was the smallest we've had since I became clerk (in 1959)" Gillis said.

Three weeks of earlier special registration sessions attracted only 32 new voters, Gillis said. On the final registration date, 13 new voters signed up for a grand total of 45 new voters.

There are approximately 15,000 eligible voters in Quincy who are unregistered, the city clerk said.

This year's preliminary election will undoubtedly fall far short of the turnout mark reached at the last city preliminary election in 1989. Two years ago, 46 percent of the city's electorate voted. The big ballot draws that year were a four-way mayoral race and a nine-candidate contest for school committee.

This year, there are 11 candidates running for school committee and three candidates campaigning for Ward 6 councillor. The top six finishers in the school committee race and top two voter getters in Ward 6 will advance to the final election Tuesday, Nov. 5.

School Committee candidates, as listed on the ballot, are:

Daniel G. Raymondi, 88 Elm St.; Sean L. Barry, 184 Marlboro St.; Michael Jovanovic, 62 Town Hill St.; Jo Ann Bragg, 74 East Elm Ave.; Stephen Durkin, 125 Colonial Dr.; Edward S. Lee, 299 Highland Ave.; Mary Jane Powers, 16 Roberta Ln.; Margaret King, 49 Avalon Ave.; Toni Kabilian, 33 Hyde St.; Frank Anselmo, 1000 Southern Artery; and Linda K. Stice, 29 Phillips St.

New Fire Chief In Two Weeks

Mayor James Sheets said he will appoint the city's new fire chief within the next two weeks.

Sheets had previously planned to name the new chief by the first week of September after holding interviews with each candidate, Acting Chief Thomas Gorman and Deputy Chief Joseph Walsh.

However, the interviews had to be rescheduled because the mayor has been out of the city recently. He had to travel to Pennsylvania after the death of his mother earlier this month. Last week, he was in Washington, D.C., to deliver the city's application for the U.S.S. Lexington.

On Tuesday, Sheets said he was in the process of rescheduling the fire chief interviews. He said he would likely make the appointment within two weeks.

Gorman and Walsh will be interviewed by Sheets, his executive secretary, Thomas Koch, City Solicitor Stephen McGrath and Personnel Director Kathy Yaeger.

"We're going to give each of the candidates an opportunity to say what they want to say. I think we'll get some good dialogue. There won't be any grilling," Sheets said.

Although the candidates will be interviewed by a panel, the mayor said he alone will make the appointment.

"I will make the decision. It won't be a committee decision. I won't take a vote," he said.

Sheets called Gorman and Walsh "two good candidates." He said one major concern the next fire chief will have to address is department operation in light of dwindling revenue.

"The next fire chief will have to be able to deliver the highest quality of fire services on a limited budget."

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Candidates are also required to file reports eight days before the final election.

According to the preliminary campaign finance reports, the eight school committee candidates who have filed have combined to spend a total of $24,756. Linda Stice leads the way with $5,000 in expenditures, including $1,602 of her own money. She raised $1,931 to leave her with a balance of minus $3,069.

The next biggest spender is Sean Barry who spent $4,775, including $986 of his own money. He raised $3,246 for an ending balance of minus $1,529.

Barry also listed $296 in "in kind" contributions and $250 in liabilities.

"In-kind" contributions are non-monetary campaign gifts which have value, such as lumber for political signs. Liabilities are bills or loans which have to be paid.

Other school committee candidates submitting finance reports, in order of the money spent, are:

Daniel Raymondi, a former treasurer for Norfolk County, started with a previous balance of $15,534. Raymondi raised $575 for a total of $15,930. He spent $4,481 for a balance of $11,448, the most of any school committee candidate.

Margaret King: raised $5,531 and spent $4,363 for a balance of $1,168. She listed $200 in "in kind" contributions.

JoAnn Bragg: raised $4,063 and spent $3,416 for a balance of $646. She also reported $299 in "in kind" donations and $1,239 in liabilities.

Over $40,000 Spent On School, Ward 6 Races

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

With less than a week before the preliminary election, eight of the 11 school committee candidates have spent more than $24,000 collectively while the three candidates for Ward 6 have combined to spend more than $16,000, according to campaign finance reports filed at the city clerk's office.

State law requires candidates for local office to file the finance reports. As of Tuesday evening, four candidates for office had yet to file: Councillor Michael Cheney, School Committeeman Steve Durkin and School Committee candidates Edward Lee and Michael Jovanovic.

The deadline to file the reports was Monday at 5 p.m., eight days before the Sept. 17 preliminary.

15 Volunteers Provide Assistance At South Quincy Italian Festival

Fifteen volunteers from the city's Emergency Management Agency spent Saturday, Sept. 7 assisting the seventh annual South Quincy Italian festival which attracted an estimated 4,000 people.

Volunteers began at 6 a.m. when barricades and traffic cones were placed on streets surrounding the perimeter of Liberty St. and surrounding streets to divert traffic around festival crowds. Portable lighting and heavy-duty extension cords were made available and temporarily installed on poles on Liberty St. for the evening portion of the festival.

Back-up generators were also made available in the vent of a power outage. Some of the volunteers remembered when Hurricane Gloria hit in September, 1985, and they had to clean debris from the streets to ensure that the festival could go on.

Tony Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Emergency Management Agency, expressed special thanks to Iannone Foods who donated food to the volunteers.

At 6 p.m., all volunteers watched a special program aired on Continental Cablevision Channel 22, called "Dangerous Edge," a 30-minute program on hurricanes. The video is available to all organizations who are interested in showing it which Siciliano recommends.

The agency is looking for Quincy citizens who would volunteer to assist at the local emergency management shelters in city schools and housing developments in the event of a natural or man-caused disaster.

It Will Be Mariano Vs. McGlone Tanner Bows Out Of Democratic Race For State Rep

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Citing medical and other personal reasons, Thomas Tanner of Weymouth has dropped out of the Democratic race for state representative in the Third Norfolk District.

"I've recently undergone knee surgery and have had to spend time (10 weeks) away from work," Tanner said. "I feel that I cannot devote the time and attention required to run a successful campaign."

With Tanner's departure, there is now a two-man race to capture the Democratic nomination for state representative in the Third Norfolk District. Ron Mariano of Quincy and Jack McGlone of Weymouth will face each other in the Democratic primary Tuesday, Oct. 15.

The winner will face Republican Bill Izbicki of Weymouth and Independent candidates Cheryl Balzano and Francis "Sandy" Eaton, both of Quincy, in the final election Tuesday, Nov. 12.

Tanner, who said he viewed himself as a viable candidate, said he regretted his withdrawal from the race. He said he will support McGlone.

"In entering this race I felt that we needed a different perspective from our representative on Beacon Hill. We needed someone who would represent both Weymouth and Quincy—not forgetting either community," Tanner said.

"After talking with Jack McGlone at length, I found Jack shares many concerns and his candidacy warrants my whole-hearted support."

Political observers say Tanner's departure will make the Democratic contest for state representative a very tight race. Primary voters who want to vote from a parochial perspective have just one candidate to choose from: McGlone, an attorney from Weymouth; and Mariano of Quincy, a member of the Quincy School Committee.

Mariano resigned from a position in the Public Protection Bureau in the state Attorney General's office to campaign full time.

Observers likened Tanner's departure to Tony Siciliano's decision not to enter the race. Last week, Siciliano, deputy director of Quincy Emergency Management Agency, bowed out of the race.

Siciliano and Mariano, two Quincy Democrats, would have split crucial Quincy votes in the primary. McGlone would have had the same problem if Tanner had stayed in the race.

The Third Norfolk District comprises six precincts each in Quincy and Weymouth. In Quincy, the district includes Quincy Point, Quincy Center and the Hospital Hill section of the city. In Weymouth, the district includes Weymouth Landing, the Idlewell section of town and up into South Weymouth to the Abington line.

Voters who are registered as Democrat or Independent by Wednesday, Sept. 25 will be eligible to vote in the Oct. 15th primary. Independents who vote in the Democratic primary can switch their affiliation back to Independent or remain in the Democratic party.

The most recent voter registration figures show Weymouth has more eligible voters in the primary election. In Weymouth, there are 4,057 registered Democrats and 4,835 registered Independents for a total of 8,892.

In Quincy, there are

5,507 registered Democrats and 2,571 registered Independents, a sum of 8,078.

Compared to the number of Democrats and Independents, registered Republicans are heavily outnumbered in both communities. In Quincy, there are 1,422 registered GOP voters; in Weymouth, 1,320.

Unregistered voters in Quincy and Weymouth have until Sept. 25 to enroll and become eligible to vote in the Oct. 15th primary.

In Quincy, registration of new voters has been light while officials in Weymouth report new voter registration is heavier than usual. "We have a couple of new people registering every day instead of a couple every week," a worker in the Weymouth town clerk's office said Monday.

Over the past 23 years, Quincy has been the home of the district representative. Robert Cerasoli, who resigned earlier this year to become the state's new inspector general, was first elected in 1974. From 1968 to 1974, the seat was held by Clifford Marshall, who is now sheriff of Norfolk County.

The district has not had a representative from Weymouth since William Connell held the seat in 1964.

Back in the 1960s, the district included Baintree. Between Connell and Marshall, two Baintree residents, Barry Hannon and the late Carl Johnson, served as representative. Hannon is presently the Norfolk County Registrar of Deeds. Johnson was town clerk in Baintree.

Democrats have occupied the seat the last 25 years. The last Republican representative in the district was Herbert Hollis of Baintree in 1966.

Lexington Decision Could Be Made By End Of September

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

D-Day for the U.S.S. Lexington is only a few weeks away.

Mayor James Sheets, who is back in the mayor's office after a trip to Washington, D.C. last week, said Navy Secretary Lawrence Garrett III will decide whether Quincy, Corpus Christi, Texas; or Mobile, Alabama, will win custody of the aircraft carrier by the end of this month or the first of October.

Sheets, who met with Garrett during his trip, said, "The secretary is going to take his time and make the right decision. He said he will make the decision by the end of this month or the first of October," the mayor said.

The Lexington will be decommissioned in November.

According to Sheets, Garrett's biggest concern is making sure the city which receives custody of the ship has the finances needed to care for the vessel. He noted the Navy awarded a New Orleans group custody of the U.S.S. Cabot, which like the Lexington, is a World War II Essex class carrier.

However, the group did not have the funding necessary to maintain the Cabot. As a result, the carrier "is just sitting in the Mississippi in New Orleans," Sheets said.

"In our conversation, (Garrett) referred to the U.S.S. Cabot. He said he doesn't want to pass on that kind of legacy to his successor. He's going to look very closely at the finances.

"The important factor is having someone take the carrier who is going to be able to care for it," the mayor added.

With the focus on finances, Sheets sees the lobbying efforts by the three cities vying for the Lexington secondary. However, lobbying could still prove pivotal in the event Garrett does not see one financial plan rising above the other two.

"For that reason, he's going to take his time in making a decision. He could decide to mothball (the Lexington) but it's highly unlikely because I think he has in the City of Quincy a city which is very capable of taking care of it," Sheets said.

Although two other carriers are available, the mayor said the city is only interested in the Lexington. The U.S.S. Midway, a bigger class carrier than the Lexington, will be decommissioned next year.

The U.S.S. Coral Sea, an Essex class carrier, is mothballed in Philadelphia.

"The Lexington has a special appeal because it was built in Quincy. I don't think another carrier would have the same impact (as the Lexington). The risk factor would also go up. I don't think another carrier would do for us what the Lexington would do," he said.

If the city gains custody of the Lexington, the ship would be converted into a maritime museum on a site in the Town River.

Sheets hopes the Lexington would boost area businesses as well as the city's tourism industry.

Corpus Christi, considered the city's main competitor for the carrier, also has a link to the Lexington. Five or six years ago, the Navy "promised" Corpus Christi the Lexington would be homeported there as part of a decentralization plan for active duty training vessels.

However, the plan was never implemented because of federal budget cuts. Instead, the Lexington remained homeported in Pensacola, Fla.

The idea that Garrett could award the Lexington to Quincy and give the Corpus Christi and Mobile

CERVICAL DYSPLASIA

Cervical dysplasia is an abnormal growth of cells in and around the cervical canal. It represents a pre-cancerous condition which can be cured if caught in time. As with malignancies of the cervix, it is found more commonly in women who have begun sexual activity at a young age (less than 18), have had multiple sexual partners, or have been infected with herpes genitalis or cervical venereal warts. Because early dysplasia may not be visible, the diagnosis is first suspected more often than not, after a routine Pap smear. Evaluation of a woman with an abnormal Pap smear begins with biopsies of any suspicious cervical lesions. Colposcopy, a means of viewing the cervix through a magnifying scope, may be employed to locate hard-to-see abnormalities. When colposcopy-guided examination is unrewarding, cervical conization (removal of a core of tissue surrounding the canal) is often performed.

P.S. The intent of this aggressive approach is to detect dysplasia and early forms of cancer before they progress to more advanced stages.

Quincy Vs. Weymouth

The Third Norfolk District state representative Democratic primary race which started out looking like a potential free-for-all is now down to a one-on-one fight.

It's now between Quincy's Ron Mariano and Weymouth's Jack McGlone.

The exit of Tony Siciliano gave Mariano a temporary edge which now has been nullified by the departure of Tom Tanner.

Siciliano bowed out last week leaving Mariano the only Quincy Democrat in the race and not having to worry about crucial vote splitting in Quincy.

Now Tanner has gotten out leaving McGlone the lone Weymouth Democrat with no worries about splitting key Weymouth votes with Tanner.

MARIANO

McGLONE

When Robert Cerasoli gave up the seat to become State Inspector General it looked like it would trigger a big Democratic scramble to succeed him.

Potential candidates included such Quincy Democrats as Dan Raymondi, Joseph LaRaia, Bruce Tobin, Michael Marshall, Tony Agnitti and Tony Falco.

Each dropped out, one by one — Raymondi to run for School Committee and LaRaia to attempt a comeback with a City Council at-large bid — the others for their own reasons.

Now it's Mariano vs. McGlone.

And, Quincy vs. Weymouth.

Mariano and McGlone are going to have to work to get the vote out in their own backyard and make some inroads across the Fore River Bridge into the other guy's territory.

It may come down to who can bring out the most voters.

The district is strongly Democratic so the winner of the primary would be conceded the edge at least in the November final election.

Mariano or McGlone would face Weymouth Republican William Izbicki and Quincy Independents Cheryl Balzano and Francis "Sandy" Eaton.

And as Yogi Berra used to say: "It ain't over until it's over."

QUINCY'S VOTER LIST is shrinking. And, pretty fast.

The city now has 44,540 registered voters — down about 4,000 from just a year ago, noted City Clerk John Gillis.

Gillis attributes the downward swing mainly to people moving out of the city and to deaths.

He says that many of the people moving out — or dying — are being replaced by Asians who, he says, so far have shown little interest in registering to vote.

Quincy, which went Democratic in the 1950's, is still strongly so. There are 26,262 Democrats to 6,648 Republicans and 11,635 Independents.

Women, incidentally, are increasing their numerical lead over men. They now outnumber male voters by 5,680 — 25,110 to 19,430.

That should give the women on the Sept. 17 city preliminary election ballot a little extra encouragement.

FORMER MAYOR Frank McCauley is backing School Committee candidate Dan Raymondi, who was his rival for the mayor's office in 1981.

A letter endorsing Raymondi and addressed to Houghs Neck residents and signed by McCauley, former Ward 1 Councillor Leo Kelly and Jack Nigro, husband of School Committeewoman Peggy Nigro, is in the mail this week.

Harold Davis, Raymondi and McCauley were elected to the School Committee in 1971, finishing in that order. Twenty three (23) ran for the three seats that year.

MILESTONE: Former School Committeeman Charles Sweeny is a young 75. Charlie keeps in shape walking with the Senior Strollers at the South Shore Plaza. Clocks about four miles a day. And, of course, Betty keeps him busy at home.

$1.2 Million In Wire Permits In August

The Quincy Wire Department issued 180 permits for an estimated cost of $1,281,440 in August, reports Wire Inspector Thomas Purpura.

Last month, there were 67 certificates of approval to the Massachusetts Electric Company and $6,146 in permit fees.

In addition, there were 361 inspections, 59 defects noted, 41 reinspections and nine fire calls.

During August, a permit was issued for the wiring of a Speedy Lube and two commercial rental spaces at 366 Centre St. More than 60 inspections were made relative to Hurricane Bob.

20% Turnout Forecast

are:

Joanne Condon Walsh, 80 Harbourside Rd.; Bruce J. Ayers, 65 Williams St.; and Thomas J. Nutley, 235 Billings St.

Here is a brief description of each candidate:

Raymond, a lawyer, will turn 44 years old Oct. 18. He is a former Norfolk County treasurer, city councillor and school committee member. He made an unsuccessful run for mayor in 1981, losing to former Mayor Francis McCauley.

Barry, who will be 27 years old Oct. 12, is the youngest candidate in this year's election. Working on his second master's degree in American studies at the University of Massachusetts in Boston, he is searching for a teaching position.

Jovanovic, 71, is a Yugoslavian native and a former college professor of Russian language and literature. He made unsuccessful bids for school committee in 1989 and for mayor in 1975 and 1979. He has a real estate business.

Bragg, 36, is a tax accountant and a member of many education groups and school committee advisory committees. The mother of three school-aged children, she is an active member of the Citywide Parents Council.

Durkin, 35, is an incumbent running for his third four-year term. An attorney, he serves as the committee's special education advisor. He recently proposed a "No Television Week" for Quincy public school students.

Lee, 32, a Boston public school administrator, is the first Asian-American Quincy resident to run for political office. A 1977 graduate of Quincy High School, Lee said he wants to encourage the city's Asian population to become more involved in the community.

Powers, 39, was elected to a two-year term on the school committee in 1989 to fill the seat previously held by the late Christopher Kennedy. Running for her first four-year term, Powers is the school committee's representative in the Education Development Committee.

King, 72, known as

"Peggy," is a former math teacher at North Quincy High and Quincy high schools. Besides working 27 years as a teacher, she also has experience as an insurance underwriter.

Kabilian, 44, is president of the Citywide Parents Council and attends school committee meetings frequently. She has criticized the school department's handling of budgets and maintenance problems and has led education rallies at City Hall.

Anselmo, who will be 93 Sept. 22, resigned from the committee earlier this year due to health concerns. However, he says he has been given a clean bill of health from his doctors and now wants to return and extend his 29 years of service on the school committee.

Stice, 42, holds two masters' degrees in education and has a 21-year history of working in schools and social service programs. She coordinated the school department's teen mothers program and wrote a recycling education program that parent volunteers taught to elementary school children.

Nutley is running for his fourth two-year term as Ward 6 councillor. He was first elected in 1985, running for the seat which Walsh had occupied since 1978. Instead of running for re-election in 1985, Walsh challenged McCauley in the mayor's race and lost.

Nutley, 64, is community affairs director for Boston Gas. Walsh, 51, is a real estate broker for Condon Walsh Realtors in Quincy.

Ayers, 29, is making his first run for office. A community access monitor for the state Executive Department Office of Handicapped Affairs, he is employed at Ayers Bros. Inc., a handicap conversion center in Squantum.

The preliminary election, like other city elections, will cost approximately $44,000, Gillis said. That figure covers all election expenses, including police detail, election workers, custodians and voting machine setup.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Gillis said he expects the final results will be known by 9:30 p.m. "It will be very quick," he said.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Shipbuilders' Strike Enters 12th Week

"We are fighting on the side of right and we will win because right always wins over might," John Grogan, international vice president of the CIO Shipbuilders Union told a Local 5 membership meeting.

The meeting was held in the Quincy High School auditorium as the shipyard workers' strike against the Bethlehem Steel Co. entered its 12th week.

Sept. 18-24
1947
44 Years Ago

Other speakers were Rev. Daniel T. McColgan, professor of moral theology at St. John's Seminary, and Rev. Bedros Baharian, pastor of Quincy Point Congregational Church.

"The liberalistic, laissez faire of market prices of labor and unlimited profits for capital is an un-Christian hoax perpetrated by practitioners in the 18th and 19th centuries," said the Rev. McColgan.

"I hope that Uncle Joe Beth will get back in the good graces of the people of this city as he was during the war," said Rev. Baharian.

INCINERATOR CONSIDERED

Mayor Charles A. Ross disclosed he was considering the purchase of a municipal incinerator as "the only method of disposing of rubbish and garbage."

"The only question has been the cost," said the Mayor. "I now think that the city is financially able to undertake such a project."

VETS HOUSING OPENS

The first group of 12 veterans moved into a new $95-unit $850,000 Meadowbrook Apartments at the corner of Adams and Furnace Brook Parkway, where 4 1/2 room apartments rented for $93.50.

Durkin Asks Sheets, Ricci To Address Elementary Classroom Overcrowding

their cooperation and assistance in addressing the problem of large class sizes at elementary schools.

In a letter to the mayor and superintendent, Durkin said the classroom overcrowding problem in several elementary schools is a "very serious problem."

Due to state reductions in local aid, Durkin noted this year's school budget was cut by $1.7 million, causing 24 teachers to be laid off. "While the (school) committee made the determination not to cut any teaching positions at the elementary level, as a consequence of increasing enrollment class sizes in several of our schools have increased dramatically," he said.

"In particular, it is expected that first grade classes at Merrymount, second grade classes at Montclair, and several classes at Parker and other schools will exceed class size guidelines set by the school committee. Most alarming to me are the large classes in the lower grades (particularly first grade) where it is critical that children get the attention they need.

"The situation is unacceptable to me," he said, adding at least two of the problem schools have significant populations of students for whom English is not the first language, "a factor which makes the teacher's job all the more difficult."

Continuing, Durkin said, "It is my understanding that the city recently received an uncollected tax payment from Jordan Marsh totalling $1.1 million. If possible, I would ask that the city give consideration to the school system in the allocation of available funds.

"It would be my hope that we could bring back at least four elementary teachers so that class size can be reduced to more manageable and educationally sound levels.

"Until this problem is addressed, it would be my suggestion that the school committee postpone payment of monies to carry out non-safety related capital improvements.

Additionally, I recommend that the $25,000 sum allocated for long-range planning consultants be held back at this time," Durkin added.

He said his experience in reforming the office of the Norfolk County Treasurer "will enable me to begin an immediate process of review of the school department and to effect reform. The people

IF YOU'RE TIRED OF ROLLERCOASTER HEATING PRICES, PIPE UP.

The cost of natural gas remains stable without fast up, down and around price fluctuations associated with heating oil. One of the main reasons for this is the fact that almost all of our supplies come from North America, making natural gas an energy resource that we control. So if you want steady energy costs as well as a steady supply, pipe up. And switch to natural gas heat.

Citizens Of Quincy

Let the truth prevail. I hereby offer $1,000.00 REWARD to any one that can prove in a court of law that I introduced the issue of religion in this campaign.

"In God We Trust"

Strange how this message travels all over the country and beyond, 24 hours every day!

In The Boston Globe of 8/25/91, Mr. Durkin is quoted as saying, "I'm somewhat offended that Mr. Anselmo would seek to use religion for political gain."

Now Good Citizens, You Are The Judges.

When Collins, Durkin, Nigro and Powers voted to ban any prayer or the mention of God at the graduation of the High Schools, Anselmo had no part in this act — I was not there, I was out of Office! They could have followed the advice of the City Solicitor, or waited the outcome of the appeal of the Providence, R.I. School System to the same question.

There was no need to rush the issue.

As for political gain, my 29 years record on the Committee will prove otherwise.

Most important this is not a question of religion — IT IS A QUESTION OF EDUCATION!

If there is any element of offense, it comes from those that VOTED the ban of God. If you don't believe it, let's conduct a poll on the question. It would be interesting to see the results.

A large number of the U.S. population does believe in some divine power that gives us life and all the elements to sustain it. That applies to religions world wide. Yes, that vote was an insult and I had no part in the making!

If it is an issue, you made it! You Collins, Durkin, Nigro and Powers.

I don't need or want political advancement, and as for financial gain, let it be known that every dollar that I have ever received and much more has gone into charity, and most of it to help those that need education.

And if re-elected, I will continue to do the same.

Yes, I thank God for the privilege of doing so.

My name is second from the bottom on the ballot. Tuesday, Sept. 17, let your vote take me to the top.

Thank You,

Condon Walsh Pledges Accessibility, Accountability

Joanne Condon Walsh, a candidate for Ward 6 councillor, recently held a series of coffee hours in the neighborhoods of Atlantic to discuss with area residents their concerns and suggestions.

Some of the key topics discussed included residents complaints of current lack of accountability and accessibility of their elected ward councillor, Condon Walsh said. She cited her past record of informing the community of all issues and working with them for a solution in a timely manner.

"Working together with the community as a team effort is one of the most important roles of a ward councillor," Condon Walsh said. "As founder of the Atlantic Neighborhood Association specifically for this purpose of communication, I feel strongly that without regular community meetings about current events, both positive and negative, the job of ward councillor cannot be performed properly.

"These regular meetings and neighborhood involvement are not taking place and without this in the Atlantic section of Ward 6, the job of the ward councillor is not being done," Condon Walsh said.

Area residents asked about the status of public safety protection, educational issues and concerns and local development. "I feel over the past years some of our most important achievements have been lost along the way."

"As the ward councillor, I commit to working with the community to reinstate an active neighborhood association, an active neighborhood center full of neighborhood volunteers and a thriving business district," she said.

King Reiterates Stand Against Long-Range School System Study

Margaret "Peggy" King, a candidate for School Committee, recently reiterated her position that she believes the committee should not spend any money on a long-range study of the city's public school system.

An item on the Sept. 4 meeting agenda called for the approval of $29,780 to the Co-op, a consulting firm, for a long range study of the school system. During the open forum portion of the meeting, King told school committee members "I would urge the committee to consider this very carefully because it appears to be an illegal action."

"The Co-op made a bid for this study of $20,000 which I believe under the bid specifications was the maximum amount. There is a legal bid process and I don't see how the rules can be changed now."

"Other potential bidders could have looked at the specifications and said, 'Well, I can't do it for $20,000, maybe $27,000, or whatever.' But, since the specifications said $20,000 they would not therefore bid. Moreover, you do know there was another firm bidding, but had a mail snafu."

"Once the specifications for a bid are sent out, and a bid has come in for those specs you can't change the rules of the game so to speak," King said.

"I would urge the committee to table this item pending a legal opinion. Further, I might point out that no such amount was budgeted for this item."

"I will reiterate again that I feel no money should be spent on this item, and the $20,000 in the budget can be spent on far needier items related to the education of our students here and now," she said.

After the meeting, King expressed satisfaction that, following remarks by member Ron Mariano, the committee requested a legal opinion from City Solicitor Stephen McGrath on the awarding of the contract.

King also said she found School Supt. Dr. Robert Ricci's maneuvering on the money for this bid by Co-op "rather intriguing." He changed from $29,780 to $25,000 after further "negotiations" with Dr. Robert Sperber from Boston University, one of the consultants, she said.

On July 12, potential bidders were notified by Ricci that "a sum, not to exceed $25,000, has been set aside for this study. From this fund, up to $5,000 will be used by the school system for mailing and other costs associated with their study."

"The successful vendor would be responsible for all services specified in the Request for Proposals not to exceed $20,000 in QPS funds." The Co-op came in with a bid for $20,000.

"How do you legally negotiate for an increase after a bid had come in as specified," King asked.

A further question arises, she said, because if $25,000 were to be paid to Co-op, where is the $5,000 coming from which was supposed to be paid for internal school expenses. "If such costs are not necessary why was $5,000 budgeted originally," she questioned.

"This whole scenario is getting out of hand," King said.

Barry Outlines Community Action Plan At Coffee Hours

Quincy School Committee candidate Sean Barry is outlining his community action plan at a series of coffee hours throughout the city.

"The fastest way to resolve our problems in these tough times is to involve more people in the process," Barry said at a recent coffee hour at the home of the Budreckis family, 147 Clay St. "The theme of my campaign is because we're all in this together, and we really are."

"The quality of our school system speaks not only of our commitment to education but also of the values we profess as a community," he said.

Speaking before a group of more than 60 people at the home of John and Louise Kapples, 105 Presidents Ln., Barry explained his reasons for seeking election to the committee. "I am a lifelong Quincy resident. This is my first effort as a candidate."

"I feel passionately about education and think I can make a difference. To recover from these tough times we need to increase community input into the decisions of the committee. We need to reconcile sagging employee morale

"Quincy needs to be a school committee that reflects the concerns of everyone. Just because you are a parent or teacher doesn't mean that you are better qualified to serve on the committee. We need compassion, long-term planning and budget sense," Barry said.

"As candidates, we can surround ourselves with children for advertisements. We can talk about how wonderful the system is. But we need to do more than that."

"We have a responsibility to talk about real issues. Issues like how we plan to deal with unions or what we plan to do about low employee morale."

"When I talk about community, I mean getting senior citizens involved with our students, sharing their experience and their time. I mean assuring that parents have the skills to help their children. I mean building solid partnerships between neighborhood schools and the people of Quincy."

Because many people pay taxes to support the school system, Barry said those people should also be interested in how that money is spent. "Even if a parent decides to send their children to private school, as my parents did, they still have an interest in the system. From a purely utilitarian standpoint, things like property value and the quality of life in the city are basic school committee issues."

"Everybody can be convinced that they have something at stake in our school. Taking a moment now to get involved is a brilliant investment in the future of Quincy," Barry added.

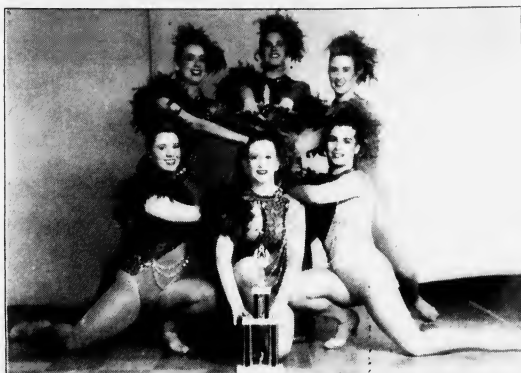

A coffee hour was scheduled for Wednesday night at the home of Paul and Grace Kelly, 93 Ames St.

The Barry family has invited anyone with questions or comments to stop by their home for a pre-election open house at 184 Marlboro St., Sunday at 7 p.m.

Nutley Recognized For Volunteer Work On Behalf Of Handicapped

Ward 6 City Councillor Thomas Nutley recently received a certificate of appreciation as the Outstanding Public Official of Behalf of the Handicapped for 1991 from David Tilley, president of the New England Association of Handicapped Contractors.

"Tom Nutley's 10 years of volunteer service on behalf of the handicapped uniquely qualifies him for this prestigious award," Tilley said. "Nutley's five years of volunteerism on the Boston Commission to Employ the Handicapped followed by an additional five years of volunteer service on the governor's Commission to Employ the Handicapped was an outstanding effort on behalf of all handicapped people everywhere throughout the state.

William Izbicki Republican Candidate For State Representative

Bill Izbicki of Weymouth announces he is a Republican candidate for state representative in the Third Norfolk District which represents parts of Quincy and Weymouth.

"Career politicians are not the answer to our state's problems," Izbicki said. "What problems have they solved?"

Izbicki is seeking to become the first Republican state representative for Quincy and Weymouth in more than 17 years. He is an outspoken advocate for term limitations for all political office holders.

A special primary election will be held Tuesday, Oct. 15, and the general election will be Tuesday, Nov. 12, to fill the seat left vacant by former representative Robert Cerasoli. Cerasoli resigned to become the state's new inspector general in July.

"I want to help the people of Weymouth and Quincy by serving as their representative in the State House," Izbicki said, adding he believes the district needs a full-time representative.

If elected, Izbicki said, "I will work to make state government meet its obligations more cost effectively, for all our people in our cities and towns." He said there is an opportunity to trim costs in many departments within the state bureaucracy.

In the last 12 months, more than 175,000 people have lost their jobs in Massachusetts, Izbicki noted. He said he is confident state government can work to attract and retain employees who create jobs. He said he would work with employers in the district in helping create new jobs.

The Izbicki Committee will hold a campaign kickoff party Sunday, Sept. 8 from 4 to 7 p.m. at the Wessagusset Yacht Club, North Weymouth. To purchase tickets, call 340-7137.

Eaton To Petition For Tax Justice

Francis "Sandy" Eaton of Quincy, an independent candidate for state representative in the Third Norfolk District, has pledged to combine his door-to-door campaigning with efforts to change the unjust tax structure in Massachusetts.

"This fall, as I revisit the families I met in last year's state representative race, I will be carrying with me two initiative petitions to allow us to restructure our antiquated tax laws," Eaton said.

"Right now, the Massachusetts Constitution mandates that those making over $200,000 per year pay the same state income tax rate as someone making $20,000 or less. That's called a flat rate.

"However, the federal government and 35 states have income tax rates which vary according to one's ability to pay. Here in the Commonwealth, our working families and the small business community are pay too much because the wealthy are paying too little," Eaton said.

Noting that more than 50,000 corporations in Massachusetts pay the minimum state tax of $228, Eaton said, "The fellow who sweeps the floors at night pays more to the state than the whole company itself.

"I want to know exactly how and why this can happen," he said, adding the petition drive is also intended to establish a law requiring publicly-traded corporations, banks and insurance companies to disclose for public scrutiny how much they actually pay.

Eaton said he is not new to the fight for tax justice. Fifteen years ago, as a leader in the Quincy chapter of Massachusetts Fair Share, he testified before a legislative committee at the State House on behalf of similar efforts to amend the Constitution.

Although such efforts in the 1960s and 1970s failed to pass, Eaton said his optimism is buoyed now by the firm resolve of thousands of citizens to shift the tax burden onto the shoulders of those more able to pay so as to achieve tax relief while preserving all the necessary services that only the public sector can adequately provide.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Doctors estimate that as many as three out of four patients who seek medical care are suffering from psychosomatic illnesses - emotional ailments which manifest themselves in physical ways ... J.A. Schindler, M.D. suggests these eight preventive "pills":

1. Stop listening for a knock in your motor. People who look for trouble frequently find it.
2. Learn to like your work. If you hate your job, find a job you can like.
3. Have at least one hobby and work hard at it. Hobbies are invaluable for relieving tensions.
4. Learn to enjoy people and to forgive and forget affronts.
5. Learn to accept with equanimity what cannot be changed.
6. Learn to accept adversity. If you live long enough, you are certain to meet with it.
7. Learn to be cheerful even when you don't feel cheerful. The sunshine you spread will warm you as well as those around you.
8. Learn to face life with confidence and decision.

These are eight powerful "pills" to take for better living! Don't you agree!

Memorial Service For Teen Killed On Bridge Oct. 11

By ROBERT
BOSWORTH

The parents of a teen killed last year in a tragic automobile accident on the Fore River Bridge will conduct a memorial service for their son Friday, Oct. 11 at the bridge.

Joseph Smith of Quincy and Janet Smith of Hingham are planning a memorial service for their 16-year-old son, Roger, who died Oct. 12, 1990, after the car he was driving skidded on wet steel grating at the top of the Fore River Bridge.

Smith lost control and the car crashed into a steel drawbridge gate. He was killed. A friend traveling with him was seriously hurt.

Witnesses at the scene said Roger was not speeding. Police said drugs and alcohol were not factors in the accident.

Since the accident, Joseph Smith has held curbside vigils at the base of the bridge. His large, home-made signs calling the bridge unsafe are a familiar sight for motorists who use the bridge.

Over the past 11 months, Joseph Smith has also demanded safety improvements to the bridge. Some improvements, such as new street markings and cushions around the gates, have been implemented but Smith wants more, including the replacement of the steel grating which he says caused his son's accident.

Smith said families of loved ones who have died on the bridge in automobile accidents are invited to attend the Oct. 11 service. The service will be held during rush hour, beginning at 7 a.m. and again at 3:30 p.m.

Among those invited to attend are Council President Ted DeCristofaro, Mayor James Sheets and Senator Paul Harold. Anyone who wants to attend the service can contact Joseph Smith, 95 Martensen St., Apt. 514, Quincy, MA, 22169, 328-5324 or Janet Smith, 182 Hersey St., Hingham, MA 02043, 749-4709.

A Few Words on FUNERAL SERVICE

Should Children Come to the Funeral?

Don't deny your child the emotional outlet of a funeral. Children can cope better than you think!

Don't force them to attend. Each child reacts differently and we'd be glad to discuss this with you in advance.

The child needs to know what to expect! You may wish a private appointment and we'll try to make time to help you, if needed.

Above all, discuss this with sensitive children as most of them need your help or ours during this period of time.

FUNERAL PRE-NEED SPECIALISTS

For those times when the darkness lingers

With the loss of a loved one through death, it is helpful to be able to share the feelings and emotions which we all experience.

For most of us, there are family members, clergy, and friends who are ready to listen in a caring way.

Yet, there are those who find it helpful to share their grief with someone outside their immediate circle of support.

Because of our continuing commitment to the families we serve, Keohane Funeral Service is pleased to announce that Dr. Sherry Johnson has joined our staff as a Grief Counselor. Her educational background, professional experience and understanding manner can be particularly helpful.

We are the first funeral home in New England to offer the service of a Grief Counselor.

Quincy Defense Looks Sturdy

By TOM SULLIVAN

When the Quincy High football team opens its season Friday night, Sept. 20 at Veterans Memorial Stadium, coach Jack Raymer feels the defense will be outstanding.

"We don't have many returning starters, but there are a lot of lettermen who saw considerable experience and we should be very strong defensively," said Raymer.

For defensive ends Quincy has Jason Anderson (210), Gary Collins (200), Mike Malvesti and Dan Morrell.

The tackles are Keith Norris (225) Dave Cedrone, Claircant DeMesier, Rich Buckley and sophomore Rich Howard.

Raymer has a fine group of linebackers headed by Mike Kevanaugh (220), Ally Sleiman (175), Dave Bogan and Jason Eleuteri.

Others are Mike Gardner, Mark Nutley and Ashley Davis.

Cornerbacks and defensive backs are led by Robbie Kane and Chris Walker and also include Scott MacPherson, a senior out for football for the first time and looking excellent; Alvin White, John Sova, Kevin Carey, Tim Dowling and John Fraser.

The safeties are Noel DiBona, Mark Zabrowski and Jason Kelly.

"We have several others who are looking good and we will have good depth on defense," Raymer said. "Most of the boys are experienced and we have good speed at the skill positions. The linebackers could be the best around and we have three of the toughest kids I have had in Collins, Anderson and Norris."

"The defense has looked impressive in scrimmages and I am happy with the way we are progressing."

It is still doubtful if the new aluminum seats will be ready at the stadium for the first game but Raymer feels the Presidents will be able to open at home even with the fans sitting on the concrete.

Quincy is coming off its best year since 1970 with an 8-1-1 record, climaxed by a fine come-from-behind win over North Quincy.

The Presidents will be seeking their fifth win in a row. They won their last four games last year after a heartbreaking loss to Old Colony league champion Weymouth.

Following the opener against Marshfield, one of two non-league games, Quincy will open its league season at Bridgewater-Raynham Saturday afternoon, Sept. 28.

Over 100 Compete In City Tennis Tourney

The Quincy Recreation Department is sponsoring the 21st annual tennis championship for Quincy residents of all ages. For the 12th year Granite Bank is co-sponsor.

The tournament will include over 100 players in eight categories.

In the mens' singles draw, defending champion Oscar Jara leads a strong field. Other contenders look to be Tom Savoie, Steve Kienzle, Al McDonald, Joe Ryan and Joe McLaughlin.

Newcomers will be Edward Montego-Don Marini, Lee Yaffe-Steve Soderholm and Frank Nedved-Chanapaul Akathapom.

Challengers in the mixed doubles field will have to beat the father-daughter team of Peter and Pam Trafton. Strong competitors should be Eric Sherman and Susan Burke.

Pam Trafton will also be the top seed in the womens' singles draw. Her tough opponents should be Louise Durante, Wendy Trafton and Alison Sughrue.

The mens' 35 and over draw features defending champion Wayne Chatterton. Challengers include Al McDonald, Steve Myatt, Joe McLaughlin and John Durante.

The boys' 16 and under draw has many new faces including Ben Israel, Mike Santoro, A.J. Kabilian, Sam Kwam, Mike Clark and Brendon Gibbons.

Recreation Director Barry Welch has named John Franceschini tournament director. He will be assisted by Steve Durante once again. They have worked together over 10 years on the tourney.

The tournament continues weeknights from 5:30-10 p.m. and all day Saturday and Sunday at the Russell Park courts behind Quincy High School. There is bleacher seating and the public is invited. Weather permitting, some finals could be held this weekend.

Quincy Girls Open At Abp. Williams

The Quincy High girls' volleyball teams, which have won four state championships, dominated the Suburban League for several years and last year swept through the state tournament until they lost a hard-fought three-game match to Case in the championship match for the second year in a row.

Coach Tom Henderson lost some fine players but has five returnees who will be the keys when Quincy opens the season today

Save Gas and Money
Shop Locally

(Thursday) at Abp. Williams at 5 p.m.

The Quincy girls will play at Dracut Friday at 6:30 p.m. and will open their home season next Tuesday against Brookline at 5 p.m.

Quincy faces some of the strongest teams in the state in non-league games including Medway, Milford, Notre Dame of Hingham, Pope John and Durfee.

The returning players are senior captain and outside hitter Susan McCole, junior middle blocker Liz Noble, junior outside hitter Christie Richmond, junior middle blocker Nikki Shaughnessy

"Our strengths are tradition and our role models from 1988, 1989 and 1990," said Henderson. "Our general weakness are inexperience and uncertainty of playing as a unit at this point."

"Our prospects are uncertain. I'm looking for a shaky start and gradual, continuous improvement."

North Has Strong Defense

Not only will the North Quincy football team have a fine offense this fall, but according to defensive coordinator Earl Metzler, the defense should be outstanding.

"This is the best defense I've seen here," said Metzler. "We have a lot of experience, good size, good speed and good depth. Most of the players were starters a year ago and things look good defensively."

The defensive ends are Mark Taylor, Dave Reinhardt and Dave Raftery (220).

North has three outstanding defensive tackles in Mark Zych (255) Scott Kohler (215) and Brian Raftery (245).

"This is an outstanding group with excellent size and good speed," said coach Ken McPhee.

The nose guards are Scott Prouty (210) and Peter Licciardi.

Linebackers are Mark Kelleher (195), Chris McCallum (195) and Mark Sinclair.

At corner back are Desmond Bellot, Tony Licciardi, Willy O'Donnell

and Pat Shea.

Brendan O'Connell, Serge Belcastro and Keith Lentini are the leading safeties.

"There are several other excellent players on defense and we will have good depth," McPhee said.

North will be trying to bounce back from last year's 4-6 season but it will face a strong newcomer in its opening game at Acton-Boxboro Friday night, Sept. 20. A-B is a member of the Dual County League and is rated as a top contender this fall.

North quarterback Mark Taylor is eagerly looking forward to this game as he will be going against his uncle, A-B head coach Bill Maver, former Quincy all-scholastic and coach.

North's first Old Colony League game will be at home against Falmouth Friday night, Sept. 27.

"We are guardedly optimistic, but we are in a strong league and Quincy, Weymouth and Bridgewater-Raynham in particular should be strong this season," said McPhee.

X-Country

Experience Gives North Optimism

The North Quincy boys' cross-country team opened its season yesterday (Wednesday) at Plymouth and coach Jeff Hennessy feels experience will enable the Raiders to improve on last year's 1-7 record.

"Last year's predominantly freshman team paid its dues and hopefully we can reach the 500 mark in the always tough Old Colony League," said Hennessy.

Providing leadership will be seniors Greg Buck,

Hugh Meighan and Adam Chansky.

Juniors include Jeff Earnest, John Laing and Chris Sullivan.

"We might have a couple of league all-stars in sophomores Eric Torvi and Jim Chen, both of whom possess speed, intelligence, aggressiveness and a solid work ethic," Hennessy said.

Other sophomores include Alan Morse, Ken Duncan, Lee Hughes, Matt Groom, Shawn Piccozzi, Tat Man Yu and Ricky Cheng.

Although his season's freshman crop is not as big, Matt Faiseas, Ch Ng, Eric DeOssie and Fred Braun have looked good in workouts and will be brought along slowly.

Several track standouts are training with the team to stay in shape and some may contribute by season's end, according to Hennessy.

They include seniors Mike Yee, Marc Larson and Tim Ross, juniors Josh

O'Donnell, Jim Georgaklis, Jeff Jones, Bill Sit and Edwin Chin.

"These guys can lift, run and stay in shape as well as provide a ready work force when we host meets at Pageant Field as well as provide moral support," Hennessy said.

North hosts Falmouth next Tuesday over a new 500-meter course through the Merrymount woods beginning and ending at Pageant Field and will host Quincy Friday, Sept. 20, over the same course.

North Girls' Prospects Look Good

The North Quincy girls' cross-country team enjoyed one of its best seasons a year ago, tying Silver Lake for first place in the Old Colony League at 7-1 and winning the conference meet handily after losing to the Lakers in their dual meet.

The North girls opened yesterday (Wednesday) at Plymouth and, despite the loss of three runners who contributed mightily in 1990, prospects are good.

"The job at hand is to replace Jenn Flynn, Julie Tangney and Ann Marie Montgomery, who graduated," said coach Jeff Hennessy.

"However, ready to step in are sophomores Erin Duggan, Katie McNamara and Sonia Olmedo, along with senior Laurie Connolly, who missed most of last year's indoor and outdoor seasons with a bad ankle sprain," said Hennessy.

Juniors include Kerry

Evans, Maryellen Eddy, Karen Leary, Jennie Marks and Miyon Park.

"All eyes will be on our top runner, junior captain Suzanne Lewis, who has reported in excellent shape," Hennessy added. Lewis won a silver medal in this summer's Bay State Games in the 3,000 meters.

Other sophomores who will contribute include Melanie Gaziano, who possesses a vicious finishing kick which she used on several occasions during track season; Erin O'Brien, a former Quincy Track Club standout; Leah Lamond, Julie Johnston, Nicole Green, Kristy Kabilian, Chrissy Herman, Danielle McPhee and Christine Perry.

Hennessy has another banner crop of freshmen including Elizabeth O'Donnell, Laurie Blaikie, Jaclyn Shaw, Katie Gustafson, Ursula Feurtado, Sarah Cadogan, Danielle Rinella, Sherri McLellan, Mandy McCartney, Erin Skehan and Jill Johnston.

Track athletes working out to stay in shape include Trish McNamara, Ilana Cobban, Tracey Grossi and Karyn Burns.

"Our goal is to stay healthy, train hard and let our people quietly develop," Hennessy said. "As usual, the progress of our rookies will be a key when the big meets arrive in November, but, as usual, we will be ready."

The North girls will host Falmouth next Tuesday over a new 500-meter course which begins and ends at Pageant Field. They will host Quincy on Friday, Sept. 20, over the same course.

Quincy Bows To Falmouth

The Quincy boys' soccer team made a strong showing in its opening game Monday but, after holding Falmouth even for 78 1/2 minutes, the Cape team defeated the Presidents, 4-1 at Falmouth.

Junior Roberto Bagu scored the only goal for Quincy.

Andy Smith played an outstanding game in goal with 17 saves and Dean Morris stood out on defense.

The Presidents played at Barnstable yesterday (Wednesday), and will face rival North Quincy Friday at 7 p.m. under the lights at Kincaide Park.

'Consumer Beware' Tips For Hiring Contractors

Federal and state disaster recovery officials are advising Massachusetts residents who have property damage or downed trees as a result of Hurricane Bob to be careful when obtaining contracting services for clean-up and repairs.

"Homeowners need to protect themselves against exorbitant expense and financial liability in case of an accident," said A. David Rodham, director of the state Emergency Management Agency.

Rodham, and Richard Strome, regional director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency, offer these "consumer beware" suggestions:

"Use reliable, licensed contractors. Check with the Massachusetts Better Business Bureau (617-482-9190) or the local business trade council to make sure that the firm has no outstanding consumer complaints against it.

"Get a written estimate. Be sure to obtain a written estimate for the job and read the fine print. Compare the services and prices of several reputable contractors before making a final decision. Deal locally if possible.

"Ask for references: Call former customers who had similar work done to make sure they were satisfied with the job.

"Proof of insurance: Make sure the contractor carries general liability insurance and workers' compensation. If the contractor is not insured, the homeowner may be liable for accidents that occur on the property or to the house/building.

"Obtain a contract: A complete contract will state the tasks to be performed and all associated costs. Never sign a blank contract or one with blank spaces. Make sure the agreement states who will apply for the necessary permits/licenses. Have a lawyer review the contract if substantial costs are involved.

"Written guarantees: Ask for a written guarantee which states who is responsible for equipment and materials.

"Pay by check: If possible, avoid on the spot cash payments; the safest route is to write a check made to the contracting agency. Federal law requires a three-day "cooling off" period for unsolicited door-to-door sales of more than $25.

"Cancelling a contract: Cancelling a contract should be done so within three business days of its signing. Be sure to follow the agreements stated in the cancellation clauses and send the notification by registered mail.

"Have work inspected: If excavation work is being performed (i.e. sewers or basement walls) make sure a qualified observer inspects the work before it is hidden from view to avoid smaller problems in the future.

Consumers who have problems with a contractor or have been victims of fraud are urged to contact the State Office of Consumer Affairs at (617) 727-7755 or the state Attorney General's office at (617) 727-2200.

Guidice, Sullivan On Drexel Volleyball Team

Junior Amy Guidice, former Quincy High player, and freshmen Kara Sullivan, former North Quincy player, are members of the Drexel University varsity women's volleyball team.

Guidice, a 5-10 middle blocker, will again play the most physically demanding positions in both the front and back court this year. Playing in 134 of Drexel's 138 games a year ago, she put down 226 kills while hitting .200 and added 30 service aces, 230 digs, 29 solo blocks and 63 block assists. She was named the team's unsung hero.

Sullivan was one of three freshmen selected for the varsity team.

A 5-5 backcourt specialist, she brings an impressive resume to Drexel. A four-spot star at North Quincy, she excelled in both volleyball and basketball and was a two-time Globe and Patriot Ledger all scholastic and a Suburban and Old Colony League all-star.

Holly Rendle Colgate Volleyball Co-Captain

Holly Rendle of Quincy is a junior co-captain on the Colgate University volleyball team.

Rendle appeared in 31 games last season before a shoulder injury ended her season. She had an outstanding freshman season, appearing in 78 games with 82 kills, 99 digs and 20 service aces.

An outside hitter, Rendle is a graduate of North Quincy High School where she helped the Red Raiders to the 1987 state championship.

Mariano Says Cuts In Education Must Be Reversed

Ron Mariano of Quincy, a Democratic candidate for state representative in the Third Norfolk District, says budget balancing is being done disproportionately at the expense of children and the state's future.

"Massachusetts now ranks 48th out of 50 states in aid to education. This disgraceful affront to our children must be reversed if we are to continue to be a 'competitive state,'" Mariano said.

"It is foolhardy, and morally wrong to sacrifice our children's future. The investment we make in education in pay enormous dividends. There is no substitute for a well-educated society. Our failure to recognize this fact is a surefire formula for economic decline and social unrest," he said.

"As the debate intensifies on Beacon Hill about the course and direction our state takes, it is imperative that we renew our commitment to education. Previous generations have always provided for a quality education for the Commonwealth's children.

"Most cities and towns cannot rely on a regressive real estate tax formula to adequately fund education. Having seen firsthand, as a member of the Quincy School Committee, the result of federal and state cutbacks in education, I believe we are developing a system of unequal education.

"Unless we take positive steps to correct this situation, Massachusetts will end up with the federal courts stepping in and dictating change, similar to what has happened in New Jersey and what has happened with Boston Harbor."

Quoting a recent published editorial, Mariano said, "The education of our children—that sacred trust that is passed down from generation to generation—is being broken. When is it going to stop and when are we as a nation going to become honorable to our children again.

Waste and misuse of state funds must be eliminated and redirected to local communities to adequately fund education," Mariano said.

Michael Jovanovic Running For School Committee

Michael Jovanovic, 62 Town Hill St., Quincy, announces his candidacy for a seat on the School Committee.

Jovanovic, 70, who is fluent in five languages and holds four college degrees, said he hopes to bring his academic expertise to Quincy's schools.

A Yugoslavian-born businessman, he said he also wants to introduce an international and religious perspective to the city's schools.

Jovanovic said his primary reason for running is to return prayer to high school graduation ceremonies. His campaign theme "Solo Dio Basta," is Italian for "God Above All Else," adding, "America is part of Western civilization and Christianity is the spiritual foundation of that civilization.

MICHAEL JOVANOVIC

Jovanovic owns Community Real Estate in Quincy Center and is a translator for Yugoslavian families who have brought blind babies to the Boston area for surgery.

Jovanovic ran unsuccessfully for school committee in 1989 and for mayor in 1975 and 1979. There are 10 other candidates in this year's school committee race.

He speaks English, German, Russian and French and has a teaching certificate to teach those languages. He also has taught Serbo-Croatian, his native tongue.

Jovanovic has been an instructor at the University of Pittsburgh; Wittenburg University in Springfield, Ohio; Stanford University; Harvard University and Massachusetts Community College.

He earned bachelor's and master's degrees from Columbia University, a master's degree from Union Theological Seminary in New York, and a divinity degree from St. Vladimir's Orthodox Theological Seminary in New York.

He and his wife, Liseta, live in West Quincy. He is a member of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors.

LOCAL AND STATE fire investigators suspect arson caused a fire at the Teal Building, the North Quincy High School annex, on Newbury St. last Friday evening. Firefighters found a door open and heavy fire inside upon arrival. The building is used by the school department for storage of materials. Damage was estimated at $20,000. This was the fifth arson fire in the city in two weeks.

the other carriers is only an option, the mayor said.

"I think it's an option the secretary could explore but the same problem exists. There's only one Blue Ghost. The Lexington carries a mystic all its own."

While in Washington to deliver the city's application for the Lexington, the mayor met with Navy officials as well as high-ranking union heads. He also talked with Dick Schubert, a classmate of his at Eastern Nazarene College, who is now president and CEO of the Points of Light Foundation, an organization created by President Bush to promote volunteerism.

Schubert is a former president of Bethlehem Steel Company which built the Lexington. Sheets is interested in establishing a Bethlehem Steel exhibit on the Lexington. Schubert is going to put the mayor in contact with the appropriate people for an exhibit.

In addition, Sheets touched base with Mimi Brody, legislative assistant for Sen. Ted Kennedy, and Chris Helman, an aide to Cong. Brian Donnelly. Congress was not in session at the time of the trip.

The mayor said his office will continue to lobby their Washington contacts on behalf of the Lexington.

"We'll pursue some of these contacts. I think we've basically done everything that can be done. We'll just have to wait and see."

Real Estate Cycles

Similar to most every equity investment, real estate prices are cyclical in nature. Over the long term, real estate has generally proven to be a very sound investment selection whether for personal dwelling or for investment purposes.

Some investors claim to have made a profit in real estate without actually selling the property. In reality, their personal residence has increased in value from the thirty something thousand they originally paid in the 1970s to $225,000 today. This profit may never be realized because when the property is sold, another must be purchased to replace it resulting in a virtual wash sale.

A simple guideline for real estate investing is to obtain more than one property. This method provides the investor with the capability of selling in a favorable market without being forced to replace the property under the same market conditions. The profit (less taxation) may now be salted away while the investor awaits the next opportunity.

A depressed real estate market is poor only for sellers. As we in the Northeast have recently discovered, real estate prices do not just go up. The astute investor will take advantage of these cycles, seize the opportunity by purchasing property when prices are lower. When the cycle turns positive, it is the time to consider profit taking.

Owners obviously do not plan to unload their property under poor selling conditions which may limit selection. On the other hand, many are forced to sell due to unemployment, job transfer, or other reasons beyond their control. An abundance of prime property may be the result if poor economical and employment conditions are widespread. An ample selection from which to choose becomes available to the potential investor.

The cost of money or interest rates is a major factor when determining the appropriate time to purchase real estate. If money is too expensive, property generally moves more slowly. When interest rates are reasonable, other economic factors become more significant.

Today, we need not be a real estate magnate to take advantage of the market. The combination of reasonable interest rates and lower real estate prices allows many renters to purchase property for little more than their monthly rental payments. Since mortgage interest and property taxes are tax deductible, the after tax cost of home ownership may actually be less than renting.

There are many reasons why buying real estate for a personal residence or for investment purposes makes financial sense in today's market. We can not predict next year's prices or interest rates, they may continue lower, or turn higher. For an investor to wait and to attempt to buy at exactly the bottom of the market is futile, if we are not early, we will be too late. A more logical approach is to purchase when the market is known to be lower than in years past and to hold the investment until prices turn higher which is inevitable in an inflationary economy.

NOW IS A GOOD TIME TO BUY

Refinancing: If The Rate Is Right For You, Now's The Time

BY ANDREW J. EMANUEL

Mortgage rates have dropped. And if you're one of those people waiting for rates to drop further, you may be gambling away an opportunity for saving money. If you have an adjustable rate or your current mortgage is 11% or above, now is the time to consider the advantage of refinancing. Don't count on rates dropping or stabilizing, they're on the way up.

How much can you lower your payments?

A two percent point spread in mortgage rates can produce considerable savings over a period of time. For example, with an interest rate of 11% your monthly payment for principal and interest on a $100,000 loan is $952.32.

With a 9% rate, your monthly payments would be reduced to $804.62. The savings over one year will add up to $1,772.37 and $8,861.84 over a period of 5 years.

In addition, refinancing a 30 year mortgage with a lower rate and getting a 15 year mortgage may also be an appropriate move. Monthly payments would increase slightly, but you'd be allowed to pay off the mortgage in half the time.

Caution: this may not be for you.

Closing costs for refinancing can be expensive. So before you make any plans, be sure the savings you receive are considerable. Find out how long it will take to recover the cost of refinancing. Industry analysts say you should be able to do it within two years through the money you save on lower mortgages payments.

That of course depends on how long you plan to stay in your house, if you have plans to move within 3 or 4 years, it may not be a smart idea. On the other hand, if you do not plan a move for 8 or 10 years, refinancing may be in your best interest even if it takes 3 years to recoup closing costs.

Check out the rates and the firm offering them.

30 year fixed rates are presently in the 9% range. To find out the lowest rates, check local newspapers. Interest rate charts, updated on a weekly basis, are a good source for up-to-date information. But remember, the interest rate isn't the only consideration in your choice of lender.

Choose a lender as carefully as you would any other service company. Whether you are refinancing or applying for a first mortgage, find an organization that will be responsive to your needs. Personal service and protection is important at every step from application to closing, and after. The key to any business relationship is to feel comfortable with those individuals who are helping you.

But don't wait too long. Now may be the best time to take advantage of these low interest rates.
